Amazing CONTOUR sheet won't wrinkle, can't pull out

THE MOST RESTLESS SLEEPER can't rumple this amazing Contour* Sheet! It's the modern, time-saving way to make a bed. A Pacific Contour Sheet needs no smoothing, no retucking. When you get up, your bed is half made!

Four fitted corners, taped and sewed, slip over the mattress like a glove. A generous tuck-under holds the corners in place, keeps the sheet wrinkle-free.

Pacific Contour Sheets are a breeze to launder, too. They weigh less, handle easily—won't shrink because they're Sanforized. They stretch so smoothly over the mattress, ironing is optional.

In your linen closet, half your sheets should be Pacific Contours—the under sheets that give you the smoothest sleep of your life. Available in combed percale or extra-strength muslin in double, twin and crib sizes. Adjust to slight variations in standard mattresses.

Try your favorite store or send for folder and name of nearest dealer to Pacific Mills, Dept. AA1, 1407 Broadway, New York 18, New York.

Worth waiting for!

Pacific Contour Sheets are selling so fast that your favorite store may be temporarily out of stock during January. We are doing our best to catch up with the heavy demand by early February. Pacific Contour Sheets are worth waiting for!

How to enjoy a remodeling

Living in a house that's being remodeled can be a tough proposition. Here are 20 tips that will make it easier

By Pat Kraft

Clear out all rooms. Remodeling is like moving, only worse because everything stays till it's over

Remodeling is fun—before you remodel and after you're finished. But when you're in the midst of remodeling, it is agony and crisis. At least it was for us.

It needn't have been so bad. We didn't realize that remodelers—our generic name for carpenters, masons, painters, and other craftsmen—play rough. When they hammer, they hammer the daylights out of stuff. When they paint, they spatter. When they saw, the air is filled with noise and sawdust. And when they start chipping a hunk of stone, run for cover.

But we learned. And what we learned we give to you. While we shuddered in the sanctuary of a bedroom that was not to be remodeled, my husband caught a scrap of building paper flying by the window, and we wrote down 20 things to do the next time we remodel:

1. Clear out the room where remodeling will take place or overflow into. Any remodeling at all. And I mean clear out. Everything portable, including curtains, blinds, and pictures. Remodeling is like moving, only worse because everything stays till it's over. And when furniture moves out, or even if it doesn't, sawhorses and planks move in. True, the planks get sawed off if they are too long, but not until that extra length has bruised everything in reach.

2. Move china and glassware completely away from the work scene. It won't do just to put things neatly in a corner. A bull has nothing on a pipe-laden plumber when it comes to creating havoc with china—in a china shop or in your kitchen.

3. You can cover toilet bowls, sinks, and lavatories, even if you can't move them. Use newspapers. It's easier to keep out drain-clogging rubbish than it is to fish it out later.

A bull on the loose has nothing on a plumber with a pipe when it comes to breaking up china

4. Prized plants are often in vulnerable spots, since they are planted with display in mind. Protect them. Workmen can't always see where they're stepping—and when they step, they step hard. A few stakes driven in the ground around a plant will protect it without shading it.

5. If some things must stay in a room during remodeling (what would you do with a grand piano?), cover the open or hinged places with gummed wrapping paper, swaddle the package with sheets, and then smile at the foreman and ask for a tarpaulin to cover it all. Unwrap carefully or you'll spill the debris into the works.

6. Close the windows. It will keep wind from blowing dust (and there'll be plenty of it) around too much. Dust can foul clocks, delicate electrical mechanisms, and dispositions.

7. Close off other rooms. Keep them closed. Close the door after you when you go into one. A small rug rolled up at the threshold will help keep dirt from sifting in too badly. And if things get really bad, you can always board up the door and use a window.

8. Hammering is unholy noisy. You can't shut it out by closing a door. So when it gets too awful, take a walk. Those important decisions can wait till you get back.

9. Spot shoe-wiping mats between the part of the house being remodeled and the rest. Of course, if everything's being remodeled, you can forget about this and just move to a sanitarium.

10. Have the men spread tarpaulins where they are working. Strips of building paper or heavy wrapping paper along the traffic lanes will foil grit. Well, some.

11. For the duration of your project, confine cleaning to floors. That

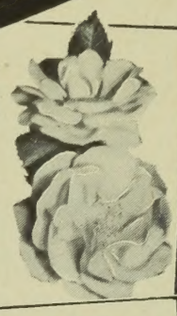
Gold-Medal Winner from France!

OPERA



(P.A.F.) A brilliant new Hybrid Tea from the well-known Jean Gaujard in France. Long slender buds are golden-yellow at the base, scarlet at the top. As the flowers open to a full 6", the color becomes a light scarlet-red with buff-yellow on reverse of petals.

The ONLY Rose Ever to Win 5 International Awards

FASHION

(Pat. 789). The finest Floribunda ever created! Entirely new color—luminous coral-pink suffused with gold. Long-lasting 3½" blooms. Immense clusters of 20 to 24 flowers in bloom continuously from June to frost. Grows 2½ to 3 ft. high.

A New Unfading Yellow Rose!

GOLDEN SCEPTER

(Pat. 910). Long graceful buds open into majestic, brilliant 5-5½" golden yellow blooms. Color fades little to end. Some of our testing stations report it to be "the best yellow rose for many years." And the long-stemmed, artistic high-centered blooms make perfect cut flowers for your home.

BEST Red Rose of All Time!

NEW YORKER

(Pat. 823). A red, red Rose that stays red until the last petals wither and fall. Non-fading, brilliant red 6½" blooms. Delightful raspberry fragrance. Long-stemmed, ideal for cutting. In bloom from June to frost.

Cherry-Red Blooms Up to 7" Across!

VOLCANO

(Pat. 951). One of the largest roses ever created . . . with blooms up to 7" across! Long buds are deep carmine—and slowly expand into truly immense, live glowing cherry-red blooms. Strong, bushy plant. Delicious fruity fragrance.

. . . Pitch and Tempo Control

now brought to record-playing

EVER WANT TO practice singing to an instrumental record tuned exactly to the pitch of your own voice? Ever want to dance to a slower or faster tempo? Ever dream of hearing records play—one after another—to the exact pitch that gives you greatest listening pleasure?

Then come prepared for a new miracle of radionic science. In the sensational new "Cobra-Matic," the simplest all-speed record player ever invented, Zenith now brings you "Pitch and Tempo Control," perhaps the greatest gift to the true music lover in all Zenith's great history.

Did you know that even the finest turntable motors can vary enough to make records sound off-key? Just as a fine watch varies in timekeeping accuracy.

Now—by simply touching a lever to adjust speed—you automatically adjust and control pitch and tempo to suit your own ears.

Here is more than a boon to the sensitive ear of the trained musical expert. Here is the opening of a whole new era of listening pleasure for millions. Here, for the first time, regardless of varying speeds in recording, regardless of personal preferences of conductors, you can satisfy your own idea of musical perfection.

And remember, please—you play the new Zenith "Cobra-Matic" with only two simple controls. Set one control for any record speed . . . 33⅓, 45, 78, and in addition, the coming 16 R.P.M., or any record speed yet to come from 10 to 85 R.P.M. Set the other control for record size . . . 7, 10 or 12 inch. That's all there is to it!

Pity the poor painter, and don't be too quick to dislike an effect. Things look different when the job is done way you'll avoid tracking some of the mess around, but more important, you'll save floors from grit. Use a vacuum cleaner, not a broom. A vacuum works fine on wood or linoleum if you turn the setscrew to tilt the mouth close to the floor. Do this quick cleaning at the end of each day's battle.

12. Don't worry about looks—yours or the house's—till it's over. A remodeling is like a baby. Everybody knows you're having one, and everybody understands.

13. Of course you'll have flies all over the house if you remodel in fly time. To date, DDT hasn't licked that problem. However, you can cut down your local fly population if you paint screens with DDT a few days before you start remodeling. Expect flies anyway, and keep food put away or covered.

14. Establish a base of operations for living in a part of the house not being remodeled, and hole up there when you can.

15. Clip ideas and keep them handy in one place while you're still in the pondering stage. A 20-cent paper portfolio is big and good. Here's where years of magazine clipping pay off. A picture gets to the point quickly, and every half-hour conference with the foreman while his crew marks time is at least a $10 luxury that would be better spent on aspirin and smelling salts. We felt helpless trying to tell our carpenter the kind of exposed beam we wanted across the fireplace alcove, but one look at a clipping and he said, "Oh, sure. I'll hand-adze an oak 8x10."

16. Try out any important furniture arrangements—and this is a must—before the last nail is driven. Do it some evening after the workmen are gone. That extra-long sofa may not work into your new scheme no matter how finely you drew it on paper. We had to have a big supporting oak beam moved eight inches so someone sitting in a fireplace chair wouldn't risk a crick in the neck trying to join in the conversation. The carpenters howled, but not as loud as we would have if we'd had to live with a mistake forever.

17. Don't be hasty about not liking an effect while it's still under way. Things look different when the scaffolding comes down and the new paint goes on. No matter what you feel like, remember you're an amateur.

18. But then speak up when something is finished. If it needs another touch to get what you want, this is the time to say so. If it's just right—well, workmen work better with praise.

19. Insist on what you want, but not blindly. Sure, it's your money, but there may be a better material for a job than the one you know and think [Turn to page 97

Architect: Blanton and Cole
Decorator: James Goebel

By Louise Price Bell

Do you want a place for reading, sewing, games, informal meals? Cram all these activities into your living room, and it will hardly be a place to greet guests.

That's why the Dan Kinerks of Tucson built a second living room, just for the family. The room has a storage wall; plus a pass-through for serving from kitchen. Linoleum floor and bamboo furniture take constant wear with little upkeep. The Kinerks got all this living for the cost of a single room.

The NEW Social

—what's in it for you?

By Jhan Robbins

On January 1 of this year, under the terms of the new Social Security Act, 10 million new wage earners were added to the 45 million already covered by Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance. You may be one of them. Or someone who works for you—even part-time like a gardener or a baby sitter—may be covered for the first time.

In recent years, the small monthly allotment to persons over 65 seemed to many more like vote-bait than it did like real insurance. Today, however, Social Security is another bigger story. More than 3 million people who now receive benefits are getting increases averaging 77.5 percent. The maximum payment has risen from $45.60 to $68.50. Workers returning after April 1, 1952, will be in line for even higher benefits. A man earning $3,600 a year will upon retirement be entitled to $80 monthly.

For the first time, divorced wives, dependent husbands and widowers of working women can collect Social Security. Ten million more persons, including many domestic servants, salesmen, farm hands, artists, realtors, and others who ordinarily list themselves as "self-employed," and some employees in nonprofit institutions, are now protected.

Like most laws and most insurance programs, the Social Security Act is complicated. And unlike most laws, this law cannot fully protect you, your beneficiaries, or your employees unless you understand the provisions which apply to you. Questions pour daily into the nation's 500 Social Security field offices. Here are a few that are being asked most often by average family people, and answers that should help you know where you stand:

What is Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance?

A family insurance plan provided for by the Social Security law and operated by the U. S. Government. It is designed to make up for your loss of earnings in old age and to give some help to your family if you should die.

Do I have to be in need to collect Social Security?

No, this is insurance, not charity or public relief.

Who pays for it?

If you work for someone else, you and your boss each contribute a sum equal to 1½ percent of your pay check up to $3,600. Self-employed persons contribute 2¼ percent of their annual income up to $3,600.

Do payments start automatically when I'm 65?

No, you have to ask for it. Several million dollars are lying around unclaimed right now.

Security law

How do I go about collecting my benefits when I reach 65?

If you are 65 or older and have a Social Security card, go to the nearest Social Security field office and apply for payments. Your monthly benefit is paid beginning with the month you file and are eligible. Don't delay. If you wait too long, you may lose some benefit.

If I die, will my survivors receive my benefits?

Yes, a widow, orphan and, in many cases, a divorced wife can collect your insurance benefits after you die. Widows receive benefits until their children are 18, then again when they reach 65 themselves, if they have not remarried.

If I keep on working after 65, can I collect Social Security?

If you are 75 or over, you can collect no matter how much you earn. If you are younger than 75, you can't collect Social Security as long as you are working and make more than $50 per month or $600 per year, unless you make this income in a field not covered by Social Security.

Will income from investments, savings, annuities, or other sources keep me from collecting Social Security?

No. As long as you are not working at an insured job, the amount of your income is immaterial.

How can I find out how much Social Security credit I have now?

Write to the Social Security Administration, Candler Building, Baltimore 2, Maryland, stating your request and including your name, printed or typed, your signature signed in ink, your Social Security number, and date of birth.

We don't have a full-time maid, but my wife shares a cleaning woman with some of her friends. Does each family have to make Social Security reports for her?

Yes, her wages must be reported everywhere that she is "regularly" employed. "Regularly" means that she puts in at least 24 days or partial days and earns $50 or more at your house during any 3-month period. You must deduct Social Security taxes from her pay check, chip in your share, and turn the sum over to the government.

Can't I handle all that at my office?

You can if you are the sole owner of a business or professional practice and are already making Social Security reports for your business employees on Form 941.

Part of the wages we pay our cleaning woman is taken out in meals, carfare, and from time to time, gifts of secondhand clothing for herself and her children. Do I have to figure that in?

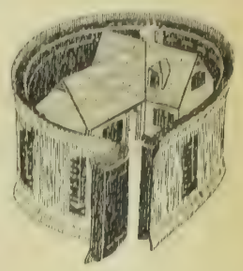
No, only wages paid in cash are counted toward Social Security credits. If carfare is paid in car checks or tokens, it does not count as a reportable part of her pay.

What household workers now come under Social Security?

If they meet the "24-day $50 test," all household workers including nursemaids, baby-sitters, gardeners, and laundresses are insured.

How do I go about filing a report on part-time help?

You can get a simple, brief report form from the nearest Collector of Internal Revenue. Every three months, you write down your employee's name, Social Security number,



Q. How much does insulation add to the cost of a new home?

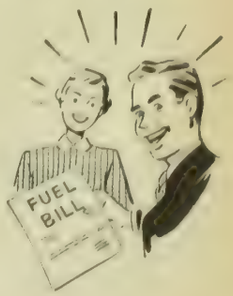
☐ Nothing ☐ About 1% ☐ Almost 9½%

A. Initially, insulation adds about 1% to the cost—around $150 in an average new 6-room home. However, an insulation like KIMSUL* (Regular or Reflective) pays for itself in fuel savings within a few years.

Q. Does a reflective insulation provide the best protection?

☐ Only in hot climates ☐ No ☐ Yes

A. A reflective insulation alone does not provide maximum protection. However, a reflective blanket insulation like KIMSUL combines an aluminum foil cover to turn back radiant heat, plus fiber blanket to resist convected heat. This double protection principle is the most effective method of stopping heat loss ever devised. The aluminum cover also acts as a vaporseal to shut out condensation. And this same double protection keeps your home up to 15° cooler on hottest summer days.



Q. How long will insulation last?

☐ 5 years ☐ About 15 years ☐ Lifetime

A. Reflective KIMSUL (or Regular KIMSUL) will last the lifetime of your house. This many-layer blanket can be easily installed by the home owner himself, or installation may be arranged by building supply or lumber dealers. It comes in a blanket of uniform thickness to provide uniform protection over every inch of covered area (no thick spots, no heat-leaking thin spots).

Q. Why should I insulate my house?

☐ Increase its value ☐ Provide greater comfort ☐ Save fuel

A. All three answers are correct. A top-quality insulation installed in ceilings and sidewalls adds greatly to the resale value of a house. An insulation like KIMSUL keeps your house warmer, healthfully free of drafts. It saves substantially each year on fuel for the life of your house.

and amount of cash wages you paid during that time. Mail it in, together with a check equal to 3 percent of this sum—half deducted from her pay and half contributed by you—to the same place where you pay your federal income tax.

Suppose he quits before he has worked 24 days and earned $50. What shall I do with the tax I have deducted from his weekly check?

Give it back. You do not have to make any kind of report on his wages.

What "self-employed" people now come under Social Security?

Your earnings count toward Federal Old Age Insurance if you work for yourself as a writer, photographer, appraiser, adjuster, artist, private teacher, sign painter, private detective, and many other categories. Check with your nearest Social Security field office if you think your occupation belongs on this list. You are also covered if you are the partner or sole owner of a beauty parlor, filling station, barbershop, bar, laundry, jewelry shop, drugstore, theater, hotel or tourist court, flower shop, taxi, tailor shop, advertising agency, secondhand store, manufacturing plant, or real-estate agency.

Is there a 24-day $50 test for self-employed persons?

Not quite, but you need not report for Social Security purposes any earnings less than $400 per year or more than the first $3,600.

Are there any self-employed occupations not covered now by Social Security?

Yes, you cannot collect and need not pay in if you are self-employed as a doctor, dentist, veterinarian, lawyer, farmer, osteopath, chiropractor, optometrist, architect, accountant, engineer, or funeral director.

What about income from rent or other investments?

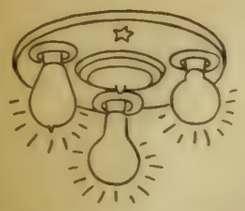
Income from investments does not count for Social Security purposes. Earnings from real estate do not count unless you are in the real-estate business.

How do I file a report if I'm self-employed?

File your Social Security report when you pay your federal income tax report for 1951 (due in 1952). A Social Security report form will be part of your tax blank. Make a deduction equal to 2¼ percent of your annual income (don't count earnings over $3,600) and send it to the Collector of Internal Revenue in your district.

I have a full-time job, and Social Security is deducted each week from my pay. I also earn a little on the side by working for myself. Does that "little extra" come up for Social Security deductions, too?

It does if it amounts to $400 or more a year.



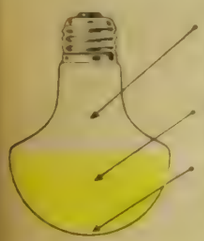
Do World War II veterans get special benefits under the new law?

Yes, if you're a World War II veteran, you are now credited with $160 in earnings for each month of active service if you were in service 90 days or more. If you were discharged because of a service-connected disability, the 90-day limit does not apply.

Does a veteran's pension or compensation affect his Social Security?

No, a veteran who has reached 65, or his survivors, can collect full Social Security benefits regardless of the amount of V.A. payments he has received.

New kind of lamp for ceiling fixtures does away with "bare bulb look"!



Now you can change
← this . . . to this →

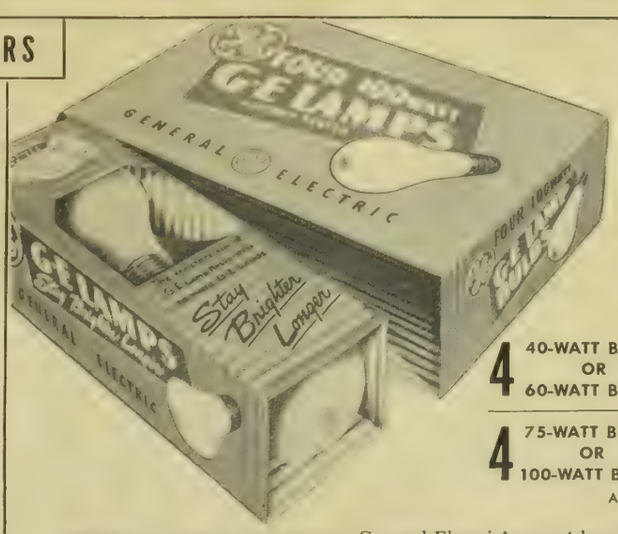
AT last you can do something about ceiling fixtures that have an old-fashioned "bare bulb look". And for the low price of a few lamp bulbs!

Just replace your old bulbs with General Electric's new kind of lamp specially designed for ceiling fixtures! Its unique shape and color dress up your fixtures. It sheds soft, indirect light on the ceiling. Its ivory enameled bowl is a "built-in shade" that mellows the downward light, giving new beauty to your furnishings.

Modernize your ceiling fixtures now—in living room, dining room, bedrooms and halls—with new General Electric 50-GA lamps! Base-up burning. 50-watts only 40¢ plus tax

Light is directed upward through inside frosted portion of the bulb.

Ivory enamel coating softens the downward light.



Unshaded spot here adds attractive sparkle to the bulb and to your room.

TWO WAYS TO BE ARMED AGAINST BULBSNATCHERS

1 THE HARD WAY. You could stand guard like this over your favorite reading lamp to keep someone else from swiping the bulb for another socket.

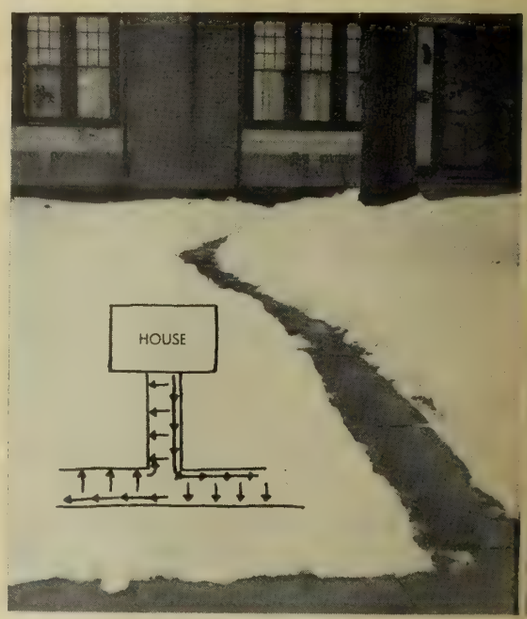
Snow shoveling—minus the backache

By Robert M. Jones

Shoveling snow may seem like a routine, uninspiring pastime to you. But not so for Daniel H. Spofford, a production engineer of Hartford, Connecticut.



Even as you and I, Mr. Spofford has to move a lot of snow off his sidewalks and driveway every winter. So, being of scientific bent, he made a detailed time-and-motion study of the job.

He reports: "Now I can clear my walks in about one-third the time most others take to do the job. And I'm much less tired when I finish."

Here are the results of his study.

Why lift that snow more than once? Give your shovel a coat of paraffin or ski wax, and the wettest snow won't stick. Melted paraffin, applied with an old paintbrush, works even better. File jagged edges that might catch

A method makes the job easier, and here's the best. Do a path just one width of the shovel first. Then finish clearing the width of sidewalk with sweeping strokes. Plan campaign as sketched, and you won't waste energy

Photographs: Edward Saxe

Take a tip from your wife — shoveling snow should be more like sweeping the floor than digging a ditch. (But that doesn't mean your wife should do it.) A smooth, sweeping motion uses the strength of your back rather than that of arms. Snow isn't lifted higher than necessary

If you want to prevent that blood pressure from mou ing, rest at regular intervals. Mr. Spofford recomme a 30-second rest for each 30 shovelfuls of 2-inch sn up to a 30-second rest for 10 shovelfuls of 8-inch s

Even with snow this heavy, it isn't necessary to clear your entire driveway to get your car rolling. Make just one path from garage to street, the width of the shovel on the driver's side of the driveway. (Mr. Spofford's drive is 150 feet long)

Then buck the drive open with your car—it's stronger than you. From garage, go ⅓ of distance first. Return to garage, and go ⅔ of the way out on the second try. The third time, buck out to the street. Run car in and out a couple of times

When a snowplow clogs your driveway, keep cool. Face garage, and move all snow to your left. Then the next plow won't put the same snow back. Shoveling snow sideways takes one smooth motion; forward takes two jerky motions

Make your kitchen look new with these practical walls

This kitchen was remodeled quickly and inexpensively with Armstrong's Monowall®. This low-cost material can bring any kitchen or bathroom up to date in only a few days.

The big panels are easily cemented in place over the old walls or any other firm surface. They may even serve as a facing for counters and cabinets. In new building, Monowall reduces costs because it replaces plaster, and it saves painting and decorating.

The three styles of Armstrong's Monowall used here are available in a whole range of lovely decorator colors. These colors will keep their beauty, too, because they're made of an unusually durable finish, designed to give many years of extra wear. This smooth, glossy surface can't hold dust or dirt. Smudges wipe clean with a damp cloth. If you're planning to modernize your kitchen or bathroom, be sure to get full details about this practical material. Your lumber dealer will be glad to help you.

Hole in one. Sometimes it's difficult to start a drill accurately into a length of pipe or a smooth metal surface. Clamp a scrap of wood over the spot you wish to drill, and go through the wood first. The wood will hold the drill in place until it starts to chew into the metal surface.

Stable label. You can make good labels that will stick to almost any surface from surgical adhesive tape. You can write on the tape with soft pencil or waterproof ink. Or, better still, stick it on typewriter roller and letter it.

Down the drain. A length of garden hose can help you open a stopped floor drain. Attach the hose to a hot-water faucet, and bind the other end with wet rags or friction tape until it will fit snugly in the drainpipe. Hold bound end firmly in the drain and turn on the hot water. Water pressure plus heat will remove most clogs quickly and effectively.

Latest Garden News?

By Dr. R. Milton Carleton

At last—seedless watermelon!

A "seedless" watermelon is the latest product of the plant breeder's skill. Seeds are reduced to small, immature specks like those in a young cucumber.

The new hybrid is produced by crossing a melon with the normal number of chromosomes (inheritance-bearers) with one in which the number of cells has been doubled artificially. This results in a melon with an intermediate number of chromosomes, known technically as a triploid.

This hybrid has been produced in six different varieties, including one which some watermelon authorities consider the finest-flavored melon in the world. The latter has a cream-colored rind.

Since the triploid produces no seed, it is necessary to repeat the cross each year.

Speed-up in fruit ripening

Ripening of apples and peaches has been speeded up by spraying the trees with 2,4,5-T in tests started in 1949 and continued in 1950 by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Rome Beauty apples sprayed with this hormone matured 30 days ahead of unsprayed trees. Summer apples were speeded up from 5 to 13 days, a much more significant advance from a home orchard and commercial standpoint. There are good summer apples that can be used instead of Rome Beauties, and if we could pick the earliest apples a week or two earlier, this would mean something.

Spraying of peaches was not quite so successful because fruit quality suffered from the spray.

Tuberous begonias flower in winter

Experiments now under way should result in a practical method for forcing tuberous begonias to flower during winter months—exciting news to begonia fans who have deplored the lack of winter bloom in this flower.

At a recent meeting of the American Institute of Biological Sciences at Ohio State University, I heard Dr. Kenneth Post of Cornell describe his experiments.

By flooding cuttings with lights from 4 p.m. to 2 a.m., Doctor Post brought them into flowering during the darkest days of winter, while unlighted cuttings from the same branch failed to flower.

LISTERINE TOOTH PA KINS

Saves you $

SIMPLEST WAY YOU EVER SAW to pick up $3.00! Every time you buy one of the new Listerine Tooth Paste "Thrift-Paks" (two regular 45¢ tubes for 59¢!) you save 30¢. And you get enough dentifrice to last the average family a whole month.

As makers of Listerine Antiseptic we would never put our name on a product that isn't top quality. No dentifrice beats Listerine Tooth Paste for (1) reducing tooth decay, (2) thorough polishing, (3) sparkling flavor, or (4) cleaning teeth and breath (we're the original breath experts!).

Mass production, modern machinery, and more than 60 years of "know-how" bring it to you at this rock-bottom price. Start buying Listerine Tooth Paste in the convenient "Thrift-Pak" today. Spend that $3.00 you save any way you want!

LAMBERT PHARMACAL CO., St. Louis, Mo.

..and TOOTH DECAY cut down as much as 60%!

How much can a dentifrice like Listerine Tooth Paste actually do to cut down tooth decay? Read this new, impartial evidence. Research just completed at a famous university definitely showed that this type of modern dentifrice, used regularly immediately after eating, can reduce cavities as much as 60%.

When it comes to cleaning, no tooth paste . . . not a single one . . . beats Listerine Tooth Paste.

vegetable specialists insist on growing this spectacularly colored pole bean for their own use.

The pods are a brilliant purple and look almost inedible. The flavor is superb, and I consider it the highest-quality bean in the world.

When I ask commercial seedsmen why it isn't offered in the trade, they say Americans won't eat freak beans, that only a conventional green-podded variety has any chance. The Blue Cocos bean once was offered in commerce under the name, Faust, but never caught on.

Count to 10 before you act

The old adage, "One year's seeds mean seven years' weeds," may have to be revised to cover more time.

Home gardeners, who frequently complain that seedsmen have supplied weed seed instead of the flower or vegetable ordered, fail to appreciate how long weed seeds can survive buried under several inches of soil. Because a particular weed hasn't been known in the garden for several years, they argue the only source was the seed packet in question.

In 1880, Professor Beal at Michigan State College buried flasks containing seeds of several common weeds to test how long they would survive. The seeds outlived Doctor Beal.

Dug up every 10 years, 3 of the original 20 species buried still are alive. Black mustard and water smartweed germinated when dug up after 50 years, but did not grow on the last test. Still surviving were mullein, curly dock, and night-flowering catchfly.

Crabgrass and plantain survived for 30 years.

Trousers and winning parsnips

I picked up an interesting (and possibly true) story while judging a flower show last summer. Preceding the judging, an old-time Scotch gardener was explaining the tricks in growing exhibition vegetables.

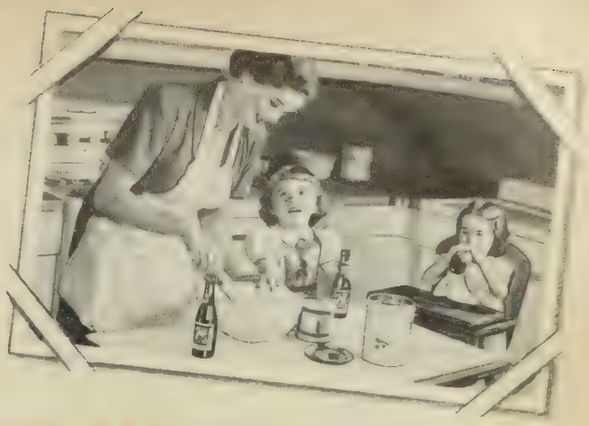
In his training days, the laird of the manor was eager to win at shows and went to all possible lengths to grow super vegetables. His head gardener knew that plenty of humus plus nitrogen was needed for top-notch parsnips, and double-dug his soil to a depth of 30 inches. In the bottom, he placed several worn-out pairs of the laird's trousers, covering this with well-rotted compost and earth. The laird was a consistent winner at local shows.

His theory, which apparently worked out in practice, was that nitrogen in the wool trousers would break down slowly and give a feed throughout the growing period. Which suggests that wool scraps and worn-out clothing might well go in the compost heap.

Sweet-corn "suckers"

Faithful removal of the "suckers" from sweet-corn plants is a waste of time, and does more harm than good. That's the inference of Dr. Donald F. Jones of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station to the American Seed Trade Association.

Doctor Jones points out that "suckers" do not suck food from the main stalk. Instead, they are feeders. If all leaves are removed from the main stalk, and the tillers (as he prefers to call them) are left intact, the ears on the main stalk will mature, fed by the leaves of the tillers.



This suggests that a plant with plenty of tillers given a little more room in the row, might well produce bigger, better ears than crowded stalks with the tillers removed.

How to referee your children's fights

Photograph: Fletcher

You can't stop all of it—and you shouldn't if you could—but here are tips on ground rules to minimize the mayhem, and the wear and tear on bystanders

By Josephine Poynter

Whenever I hear my 6-year-old sing out "Danny is a Doh-o-ope!" I brace myself for the crash and the roar of pain which inevitably follows. It seems to me that it is Jimmy who is the dope; he must know by now that retaliation by his bigger brother will be swift and unpleasant. Yet he still goes on deliberately provoking Dan's wrath. I don't even try to protect Jimmy from the consequences any more, but I do protect myself—usually by going away where I can't hear the fight.

Those of you who enjoy a rip-roaring argument over foreign policy or whether men are better drivers than women can probably put up with children's bickering better than those who come to calmer conversation the minute talk gets a little heated.

But just as you can't have a home without [illegible] disagreement, you can't build lasting personal relationships on uninterrupted harmony. That's especially true of children.

Sure, it's tough on Dad to come home tire in the evening and be faced with a houseful wrangling kids. It's nerve-wracking, and eve dangerous, for Mother to try to prepare di ner with a couple of youngsters fighting it ou on the kitchen floor. There's no reason, wh you should have to put up with quarreling these times. "Finish that fight outside" (or your room) is a simple, direct order eve father can make for his own protection. "N in here, boys!" Mother should say firmly, b fore she trips over the wriggling bodies burns her hand and starts yelling.

You won't stop rivalry by stopping a fig You won't eliminate wrangling and teasi and tears. Your children's feelings, wh normally switch like lightning from love hate, will remain unchanged. But you can s ceed in protecting yourself at a time wh your nerves won't stand the abuse. Lay do the law of "No fighting in here" before you come involved.

It just doesn't pay to [Turn to page

ABCs of decorating

By Mary L. Brandt

Colors in the above circle have been "grayed"—or shaded—to produce a set of practical decorating colors. Dozens of other usable shades are possible, of course. The large color wheel contains only the simplest of colors. They are pure colors; they have not been shaded or tinted. By adding white to colors in large wheel, you can produce many tints of each

Color comes first—

FIND the right colors, and your decorating is off to a good start. It's color that gives your home personality and makes a room cheerful. And color can do surprising tricks, too. Some colors seem to change the shape and even the size of a room. Color can warm a cold room and cool one which gets too much brilliant sun. So the first step in decorating is to learn all you can about color.

The wheel above shows only the simplest of colors. But it's the key or starting point for the thousands of tints, shades, and subtle off-tones used in things for your home. Sometimes these go by confusing fashion names, so it's easier to talk about color schemes if you use basic color-wheel names. Thus, vague forest green (which might be oaks, or pines, or maples) becomes dull, dark, bluish-green.

How to create color schemes ——→

If you study the color wheel, you'll see that half is cool: blues, greens, violets. Like sky and water, they are cooling and restful. They're receding, seem to push walls back and make furniture seem smaller. Warm colors are red, orange, yellow. Like fire and sunset, they're stimulating and cheerful. They're advancing colors, make walls seem closer, emphasize the size of a chair.

Clear, bright colors are in the large circle. Note their names, for each is the parent of a whole family of variations. You'll want to call them by their family name.

Dark variations are known as shades (pure color plus black). Tints can be made by adding white to any of the colors in the large circle. Color variations may have nondescript names: light red is often called pink, and dark red is maroon, but all are in the red family.

Dull or grayed variations are in the small circle. Actually there could be hundreds more for each of the parent colors, ranging between the clear color and the neutral gray in the center of the wheel.

How to plan a color scheme? It's easy. Forget the mumbo-jumbo and you'll find that all you do is combine three or four colors that go well together. For best results, you'll want to know your colors and follow these simple rules:

Every scheme needs the contrast of something dull, something bright, something dark, and something light. (See why the color terms are important?)

First, pick the colors for your walls and floor covering because they're the biggest areas of color. Floor coverings are usually the dull or dark color. Walls may be dark or light. Then pick colors for your draperies, upholstery, and slipcovers. These colors should be dull, dark, or light. Finally, choose one bright color for accents.

Stick to three colors in your floor covering, walls, furniture, and draperies. Add dashes of a single bright color. Don't be afraid to repeat the same colors over and over. Repetition ties your room together. And you can get variety with pattern, and with black and white.

Combine warm and cool colors for extra interest. But be sure to use them in different amounts so your scheme will have life.

Follow one of the three basic color-scheme plans: one color, related colors, or contrasting colors. All schemes are variations of these three types. Here, again, it's the color wheel that will help you pick the right combination. These pictures show how.

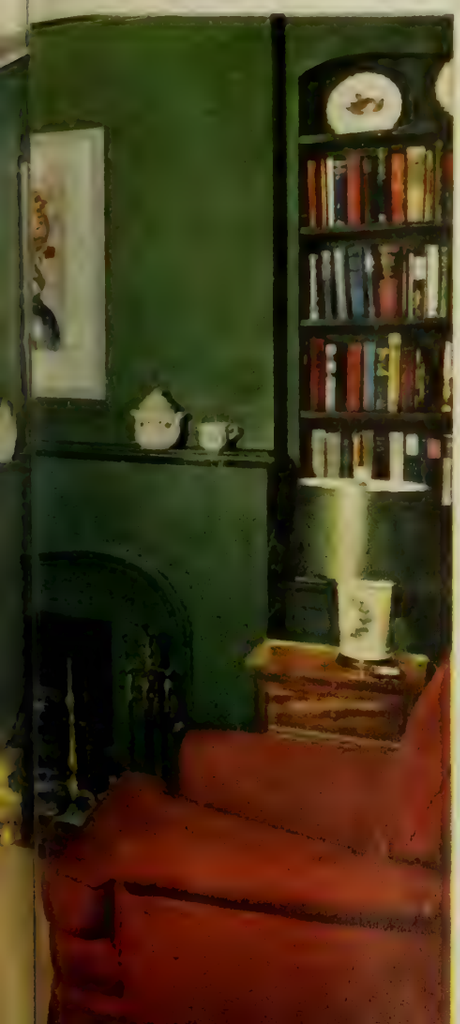
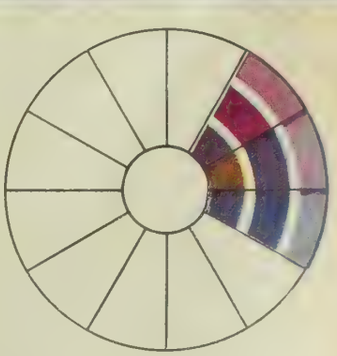
One color—and its variations

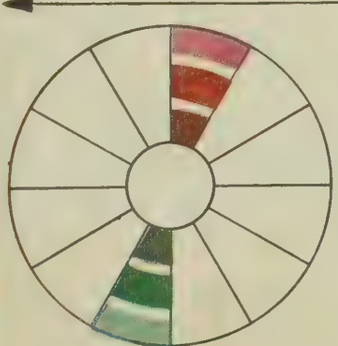
Photographs: de Gennaro; Suter, Hedrich-Blessing



Contrasting or opposite colors



Use tints, shades, and grayed tones of a single color, and you get a monochromatic scheme. It's restful but not monotonous when you have dramatic contrasts of dark and light and accents of clear color. Here there's added variety in the upholstery printed in brown (which is really a dull, very dark member of the basic yellow-orange family).



Related or neighboring colors

Combine colors side-by-side in the color wheel and you'll have a related-color scheme. (Or call it "analogous" if you want to impress the rest of your family!) Because neighboring colors are a lot alike, it's important to contrast dark and light, dull and bright. Note the effective touch of black. Flowers are exactly the right tint for an accent color in this combination by Decorator Marion Heuer.

Choose a pair of colors directly opposite in the color wheel and create a complementary-color scheme. It's not spelled like compliment, but the effect is just as pleasing. Using a pair of opposites just naturally means there'll be both warm and cool colors in the room. Let one dominate, perhaps in a mellow wall. White and black are neutrals and can be used in any contrasting-color scheme. Marion Heuer, decorator.

New climbing rose will bloom lavishly first summer

Pink Cloud is a wholly delightful, new stiff-caned climbing or pillar rose that behaves like a floribunda. From early June on, new canes keep rising, each tipped with a big cluster of buds (see upper left). These open into double, deep pink roses of good form and the size of those on Blaze

You'll have reasons to boast—if you plant what we've picked out for you. You'll have the best. We've made the choice from advance trials of all the dazzling assembly of new flowers available for the first time this year.

Each flower on our list has that special something that puts it way out in front.

A lot of things went into our choosing. Each item on the list will perform quickly and dependably for you—we made certain of that. Each will fill some special need. Each excels in its class, is better than similar varieties you could buy last year.

Every one has bred-in sturdiness. None is expensive. They're, all of them, flowers to get excited about.

You'll get a lift from being the first in your neighborhood to grow these new flowers. And the more of them you grow, the more exciting it is.

Better Homes & Gardens Five Star Home No. 2101 is

Big enough to grow in, small enough to pay for

By John Normile, Architect-Editor

To you who are dreaming about building a new house, good appearance and a fine plan are the most important things to watch for.

But if you're ready to build now, you are probably wallet-minded, and also interested in getting the most space for your money.

If you fall in either group (and if you don't, we don't know where to put you), you'll like Better Homes & Gardens Five Star Home No. 2101. It was erected by the economy-minded David D. Bohannon Organization, and furnished with costs in mind by Macy's of San Francisco. It's a smart-looking house from any side, it has an excellent L-shaped floor plan, and there are justifiable economies everywhere.

You save, for example, with the plan itself. The entrance is in the crook of the L. From this point you can go either to the bedrooms or the kitchen through a minimum of hallway. The living room acts as a buffer between the quiet bedroom wing and the noisier service wing, but is not in the line of traffic between the two wings.

You save on the location of the bathroom. Though it is in the bedroom wing, it is so near the front hall that it also serves as a powder room, eliminating the need for a second set of fixtures.

You save on the cost of a separate utility room. In a jog off the garage, there's space planned for laundry equipment, heating plant, and water heater. Your washing machine is exactly one step from the drying yard, and the kitchen door is only four steps away. If you're worried about washing in the garage in the winter, remember that the heat from your furnace or boiler will keep that corner comfortable. It will also keep the whole garage warm enough so your car will start instantly—an important saving on gas and motor wear.

How a home can be a comfort—

Practicality doesn't rule out good color. Green-and-beige basket-weave pattern of upholstered chairs brings out rich tones of combed-redwood walls. Clerestory windows, sloping ceiling add to apparent room size. Sofa: chairs side by side

It's a wonderful idea for beginners who have to count their pennies. It's what many people are seeking after years of trying to keep a cluttered house looking orderly. It's the answer if you furnish with growing youngsters in mind. Some people call it functional Modern; but others—who've discovered what it can do for small homes—call it common-sense living.

You don't have to know the definition of functional to know a good chair when you sit in one, or a desk that's easy to dust, or a room that stays neat and colorful without primping. The George Kirshbaums of Los Angeles will tell you that. They chose furnishings that look well in their home, and more important, are as efficient as the house.

The Kirshbaum's home is small; the impression of spaciousness you get is the result of skillful planning. Although the lot is only 38x75 feet, the outdoor living area is placed where it does the most good. The patio lengthens vistas in the living room, dining area, hall, and bedroom. And furnishings preserve the airiness created by large glass areas; chairs and tables are light-lined, small-scaled. Even color is carefully proportioned to the size of the house; it plays an amiable second fiddle to natural wood tones. In all, this house gives you a good idea of what modern decorating can do to make a home live well.

In Florida, the emphasis is on glass and openness

Along the Gulf Coast where Sarasota and the Siegrist house are located, snow is unknown. If the temperature reaches 32 degrees, it's headline news. So heat control is the most important need in residential architecture.

Architects Twitchell and Rudolph use huge expanses of glass to let in ocean and bay views, sweeping overhangs to keep the high sun off glass, and high sloping ceilings to let warm air rise and drift outdoors. The few partitions necessary for privacy don't obstruct the flow of air through the house.

Iowa fights temperature extremes

The broad plains country from the Rockies to the Great Lakes has no regional architecture of its own. The W. W. Humphrey house in Des Moines, for example, has low, long lines that hug the plain it rests on. It has a large screened porch, open on three sides, for days when the temperature gets above 100.

But in wise deference to the occasional 20-below-zero winds that sweep in unbroken, the house features a fireplace and conservative use of glass. Since no material is native, it relies on the universal brick, with a wood shingle roof for texture and tone.

Here are seven good homes

An around-the-country pictorial tour of what we're building today

How often, when you are studying house plans, do you say, "That one is fine for there, but we couldn't build it here!"?

To show how wrong you can be, here are seven top-notch homes from across the nation. Each fits its own area very well. But there is not a single home here that you couldn't build almost anywhere in America, with pride and satisfaction.

That's because improved techniques in heating, insulation, standardization of units have pretty well licked local production and climate problems.

In Pennsylvania, you see stone and rolling hills

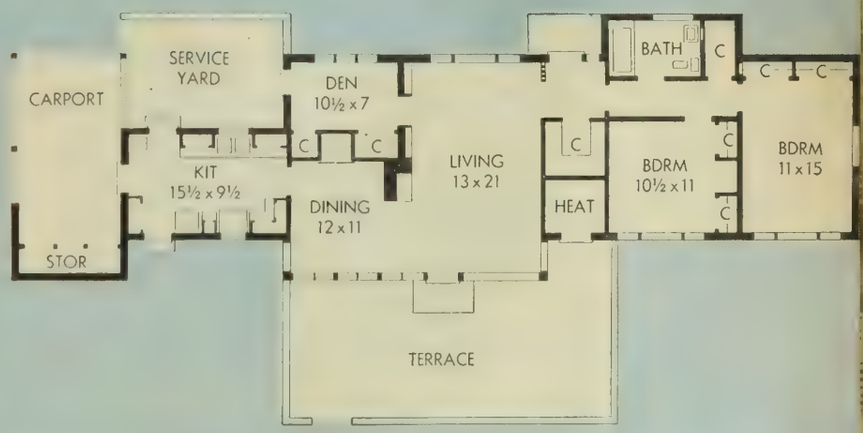
Long a stronghold of traditional homes, the Eastern states have more of a terrain problem than a temperature problem. In Castle Shannon, where the house E. M. Ghezzi designed for his brother is located, hilly, wooded sites are common and building stone is abundant. Here thin slabs of ledge rock are combined with wood, and a basement garage is tucked into the slope under the bedrooms. As in the rest of the country, vertical panels of glass light the living room, and broad overhangs under a low-pitched roof protect the glass from the weather.

Newman-Schmidt

Vermont means weathered wood, rocks, and views

If you've never been in upper New England, you may think Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine are made up of small, white hamlets isolated by mountains from other small hamlets and the world in general. It's a pleasant thought, but no longer true.

Today you see houses like this one in Burlington, by Architects Freeman, French, & Freeman, resting on the rises or sleeping on the slopes of the Green Mountains. You find as much glass as you would in Indiana or Utah, here aimed at stony streams, green valleys, birch-covered hills. You see one-story houses, most with gable roofs but a few with flat ones, taking their places among story-and-a-half Colonials. You see natural-wood exteriors matching the neutral tones of rocks. Planwise, rooms still huddle together, each with its own view and privacy.



Maynard L. Parker

In Arizona, shut out sun and daytime heat

Climate dictates design in Southwestern houses. Sun must be kept not only out of rooms but off glass. Windows are set in banks for good light; casements corral the breeze and direct it into the house.

In the Schimmel house in Tucson, by Architects Richard Morse and William Peters, planning is less open than in moist climates, since houses are closed against the heat during the day, but opened to receive the coolness of the night breeze off the desert. Adobe and stone—again native materials—are good protection against burning heat and drifting sand. Colors are pale, but strong shadows give houses punch and vigor.

How to plant around your house

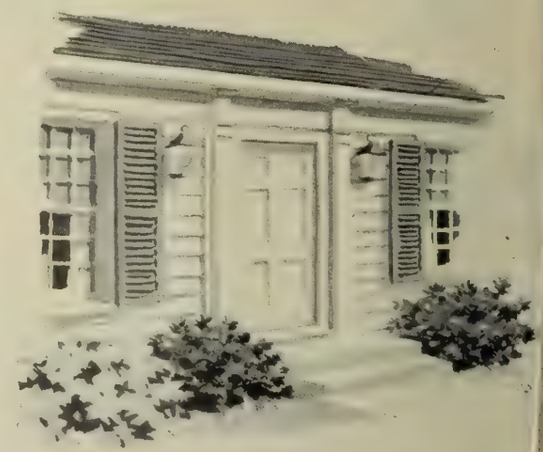
You can save yourself money and avoid that overgrown look by choosing plants that suit your corners, porches, and windows

Victor H. Ries

Perspective and understanding are the keys to happy results when planning your own foundation planting—for a new or old home.

Are you concealing the foundation, softening hard lines of house at corners, uniting your home with its setting?

In practice, less planting is needed where the floor level is near the ground. Planting should continue across the front only where the house has a high foundation. No tall-growing plants should be used under or near windows. The house should appear to rest solidly on the ground, not on a vague something hidden behind a mass of shrubbery.



Low-growing shrubs or evergreens are wise for most homes. They can be kept in bounds without severe cutting, and won't smother your house when mature.

Most shrubs require uniform soil moisture, summer and winter, and evergreens will die quickly under dry conditions. Many will be stunted if drainage is poor.

The average shrub or evergreen must have a least half a day of full sunlight to grow well. A few thrive in shade, but may not flower and fruit as well.

Wintercreeper vine may be your answer for narrow strip between a porch and walk or drive. Good in sun or shade, it has smooth, evergreen leaves, showy pale pink fruits. It can be trained to creep on the ground or to climb a brick or concrete foundation

The dwarf Mugho Pine is a good, globe-shaped ever green for planting near small porches without rails. Th Mugho needs sun. A low shrub or evergreen is mor satisfactory than pyramidal and spreading varietie

Informal, spreading branches of Pfitzer Juniper will emphasize ground-hugging lines of low house. Control height by disjointing branches which tend to grow upright at the stem joints. Plant at least 30 inches out

Try Regal Privet for corners of a Ranch-type house, in sun or shade. Hardy, quick-growing, with small, white flowers in early June, it has neat, horizontal branches, grows to 4 or 5 feet. Most homeowners plant taller shrubs near corners. But for best results, plant kinds that will not grow taller than the middle of the nearby doors or windows

Dwarf shrubs like Garland Spirea are good for planting near porches with a rail. Keep porch plantings not more than 4 or 5 feet wide. Your taller shrubs at corners may well be lower than the porch rail, and spreading kinds should be avoided. Try a graceful vine for porch privacy

Coralberry, a 3-footer with purplish-red berries in fall and small, yellowish-white flowers in July, is good near bay windows. Such windows are often used for growing plants indoors, shouldn't be screened with tall shrubs. Plant low shrubs out from overhang

More ideas and list of varieties on page 108

Low porches with but a step from ground to porch need little planting. A neat bed of groundcover 2 to 3 feet wide is sufficient. Compact, upright Columnberry, which grows to 3 or 4 feet, can be attractive at porch corners, needs little care, is soil tolerant

What makes a vacation fun? The things you do that you couldn't do at home.

What makes a vacation exciting? The things you do you never dreamed of doing.

What makes a vacation relaxing? The things you do to break monotony and banish tension.

What makes a vacation successful? The things you do together as a family.

What makes a vacation memorable? The things you have to talk about when you get back home.

By any and all of these yardsticks, you won't be getting your vacation's worth next summer if you don't take your foot off the gas, throw away your 600-mile-a-day schedule, and "take a break" a couple of times a day. And take it from us and the thousands of families who'll discover them this summer, there's no break, no change of pace, no antidote to boredom, no "let-me-tell-it-Pop" adventure like a family junket on a hair-raising, scenic "ride."

Swaying in an aero-car across a churning whirlpool, whizzing over the toe of a glacier in a glassed-in snowmobile, rubbernecking at mountains from a cog railway or an incline—these are the sort of adventures that make Swiss Family Robinsons out o City Family Smiths, and Baron Munchau sens out of Casper Milquetoasts.

Lilacs and ranunculus are seasonal companions in the garden, so Roberta Humeres combines them in an earth-colored bowl. She places the roundheaded ranunculus at the base of the arrangement with lilacs high above, as they grow. This gives a natural feeling

Have you ever arranged peonies in a water pitcher? Henry Varnum Poor puts the lush, heavy-headed flowers in a large hobnail-glass pitcher. His arrangement is loose and has a feeling of the freedom in which flowers grow. Cluster of dark peonies, leaves makes center of interest

One simple way to arrange flowers attractively is to follow the guidance of an artist.

How to do it? It doesn't mean you have to take private lessons from an authority. What it does mean is this: Choose a painting or print of a flower arrangement that pleases you. Then see how the artist does it.

How does he combine flowers and colors? How long does he make the stems? Where does he place the flowers? What type of bowls does he use?

Now follow the pattern. Use your ingenuity. You may be able to get the same effect with different flowers.

These photographs were taken at the Toledo, Ohio, Museum. There, garden clubs gathered a group of famous flower pictures and hung them in model room-settings.

Most of the time you see roses arranged by themselves. But why not combine them with other garden flowers as they naturally grow? Here Painter Maurice Vlaminck has done just that. For a container he uses a simple pitcher. He uses heavier round flowers low, lighter spiky flowers high in the arrangement. Notice, too, how the painting harmonizes with the furniture

DARK WALLS

Rich color like this coral makes your hall friendly as a handshake. But be sure the color you pick is deep and mellow—not drab or mousy. You don't spend much time in a hall, so the brighter the color, the better.

Earth brown is none too dark if you use it this way. Walls, draperies, upholstery are deep, harmonizing browns and blues. Beige carpet plus wood tones bring contrast. Then the white picture frame and the coral napkins touch off the whole scheme.

Let your walls match the background color of your draperies if you want a restful setting like this. Beige of carpet, blue of upholstery are in the draperies, too. That ties room together. Coral from hall comes into living room as a gay accent.

—all through the house

By Florence Byerly

There's no price tag on color. Rich color is no more expensive than drab color. And you can have those dark walls you admire for just the price of the paint. Dark walls are easy to scheme from, too. They're versatile enough to look right in any room — from your front door all through your home. The only rule is to use medium-light color for contrast and a dash of brilliant color or white for accent. So pick smart, deep shades of the colors you like. You can plan schemes as inviting and livable as these.

Dark walls in a small bedroom? Of course. They won't make it look any bigger, but they will make the room more interesting and more fun to live in. See how rich blue walls set wood colors glowing and add sparkle to yellows and beige.

Green is what you'd call a restful color. So rich green walls are a natural for your bedroom. See how they dramatize cherry furniture and colors picked from that drapery pattern—light green, melon, beige. White lamps are the sharp accent you need.

Beef stock in these

Just about everyone likes the good taste of beef. Here are seven soups, made with beef stock or with beef prominent.

BEEF NOODLE: Deep-flavored beef stock, pieces of beef, egg noodles.

BOUILLON: (Beef Broth) A clear broth delightfully flavored with vegetables.

CONSOMMÉ: Beef broth, accented with tomato, celery, carrots, herbs, and strained to a clear amber.

OX TAIL: Good beef stock, meaty ox tail joints, barley and vegetables. This is a robust, English-style soup.

VEGETABLE: Lots of different garden vegetables in a full-bodied beef stock.

VEGETABLE-BEEF: Vegetables, barley, tender pieces of beef, in a rich beef stock. A "square-meal" soup!

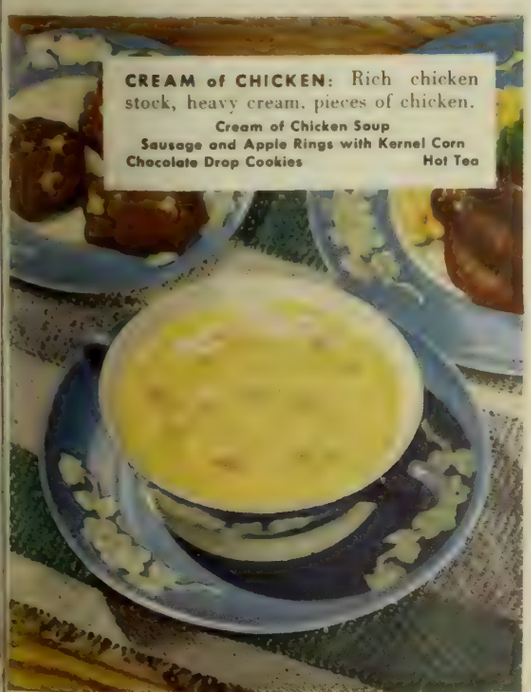
America is becoming more and more a soup-loving nation. Indeed, a recent U.S. survey shows that every day 27 million people eat soup for lunch. With soup being served so frequently, more and more different soups are being tried—such as beef, clam chowder and many others. Each, of course, differs in recipe, in ingredients and in cookery—to vary your meals delightfully. Yes, soup's a delicious, nourishing and economical way to feed your family well. You can "soup-shop" right here, on this page.

Soups with a Chicken Stock



Four soups with but a single thought—to give you the fine flavor of chicken you like so well: one with rice, one with vegetables, one with noodles, and one with cream.

CHICKEN with RICE: Chicken-rich broth, fluffy rice, tender pieces of chicken. A great all-the-family soup.

CREAM of CHICKEN (Illustrated below)

CHICKEN NOODLE: Hearty chicken broth, golden egg noodles, pieces of chicken. A popular "best-seller".

CREAM of CHICKEN: Rich chicken stock, heavy cream, pieces of chicken.

Other thick and hearty soups

You'll choose one of these when you're seeking a delicious, substantial, yet different soup.

BEAN with BACON: An old-fashioned thick bean soup, plump beans, flavored with bacon. A hearty "he-man" soup.

CLAM CHOWDER (Illustrated above)

PEPPER POT: Pieces of meat, macaroni, vegetables, and substantial meat stock make this fine Early American-type soup.

SCOTCH BROTH: A hearty main-dish soup, prepared with choice mutton, barley and vegetables. A soup—not a broth!

Principally vegetable

Each of these seven soups owes its special goodness to one or more vegetables, as its main ingredient. Soups here will help you when you're planning meatless meals.

CREAM of ASPARAGUS: A smooth purée of choice fresh asparagus, and creamery butter, with tender asparagus tips.

BLACK BEAN: Delicious purée of fine black beans, expertly seasoned. Once enjoyed only at famous restaurants.

CREAM of CELERY: Crisp garden celery, extra-heavy whipping cream, delicate cuts of celery.

CREAM of MUSHROOM: Cultivated mushrooms blended with extra-heavy whipping cream; mushroom pieces.

GREEN PEA (Illustrated in the menu below)

TOMATO: America's favorite soup. Luscious tomatoes, creamery butter, gentle seasoning.

VEGETARIAN VEGETABLE: A fine, flavorful vegetable soup, luscious garden vegetables, mingled in a delightful vegetable broth.

GREEN PEA: Nourishing purée made of green peas and fine creamery butter.

The country kitchen has long been a symbol of good cooking. Nothing fancy about country cooking. Just wonderfully good food. Old-fashioned pan rolls, flaky-crusted pies, high biscuits, rich soups, and fine, meaty gravies. And from the cellar, such choice treats as peach pickles, rosy crabapples, and jars and jars of crisp cucumber pickles, preserves, jams, and shimmering jellies.

The country cook is a plain cook. Country-cooked foods have honest flavors.

Old-fashioned pot roast

Remember the old-fashioned Sunday roast—so tender you cut it with a fork? And the brown potatoes, carrots, onions . . . and rich, brown gravy?

The good cook browns the meat carefully on all sides in a Dutch oven, pressure saucepan, or deep skillet, then adds a little liquid, just the right seasonings. The lid goes on tightly; the old-time Sunday roast cooks to absolute perfection.

An old-fashioned meal goes to the table. So expertly cooked and seasoned, it's a delicious feast.

Talk to your meat man about the best buys. You can get a blade bone, round bone, chuck, boneless neck, rump, heel of round, or thick end of brisket pot roast. Look below for meal ideas.

Sunday Best

MAIN DISH	VEGETABLE	SALAD OR ACCOMPANIMENT	DESSERT	NICE TO SERVE
Chuck or Rump Pot Roast* Brown Gravy*	Carrots Whole Onions Brown Potatoes	Tossed Vegetable Salad Clear Garlic Dressing French Bread	Baked Prune Whip* With Whipped Cream or Custard Sauce	Chilled Pineapple Juice Coffee

Let the roast cook in the oven while you go to church. That's the good, old-fashioned way. About 45 minutes to 1 hour before serving time, add the vegetables. Dessert can go in at the same time; it bakes at the same temperature. Last 20 minutes or so, slide the French loaf into the oven to heat. Last minute, toss the salad and make the gravy—while guests sip pineapple juice.

Whole Meal in a Roaster

Standing Rump Pot Roast*	Sweet Potatoes	Spiced Apricots and Prunes Jellied Vegetable Salad*	Coconut Cream Pie	Tomato Juice Cocktail

You could bake the pie shell at the same time you're browning the roast in the oven. Then the roast cooks very slowly (300°) about 3 hours. You add dried fruits and sweet potatoes to cook for another 30 minutes, or until they are tender. You can do this in an old-fashioned covered roaster or use your Dutch oven or deep, tightly lidded skillet. Heat some rolls in the oven, too.

Family Night

Blade Pot Roast With Corn-meal Dumplings*	Green Beans With Onions	Calico Salad* Dressing	Winter Ambrosia Big Sugar Cookies	Celery Soup Crisp Wafers Hot Coffee

The family troops in from the chilly outdoors to a nice, warm kitchen and catches a whiff of savory pot roast cooking on top of the range. Just before they're ready to eat, you drop the dumplings into the big kettle to simmer. While they cook for 15 minutes, you cook the beans and fix the salad. Dessert can be waiting in the refrigerator all ready to serve with cookies.

Extra-Quick Pot Roast

Beef Arm Pot Roast With Noodles*	Broccoli or Buttered Cabbage	Molded Grapefruit Salad* Crusty Rolls	Date-Tapioca Pudding*	Hot Consomme Celery and Olives Jellied Cranberry Slices

This roast is extra-quick because you fix it in your pressure saucepan. Arm pot roast is a good size for the pressure pan. Cook the noodles in boiling, salted water; drain. Make plenty of brown gravy for them. Unmold the salads and heat the consomme while meat cooks. If you fix the salads and pudding in the morning, you can cook meat and vegetables in 45 minutes.

Chili Pot Roast*	Lima Beans	Cole Slaw Whole-wheat Bread	Gingerbread Hot Lemon Sauce*	Tea or Coffee Crisp Pickle Slices

Soak Limas overnight. Cook the roast on top of range or in the oven 1 hour. Then add Limas and continue the slow cooking till meat and Limas are tender. Bake the gingerbread from packaged mix and serve it warm with plenty of lemon sauce. The cabbage for the slaw will stay crisp if you put it with ice cubes as you shred it. Drain it; toss it with your favorite dressing.

Delicious ways with winter pears

By Betsy McCracken

One good way to bring fresh, new flavor to your midwinter meals is with juicy pears. Serve them plain with a sprinkle of lemon juice or with a nippy cheese and crisp, hot crackers. Bake a luscious fresh pear pie or gingerbread upside-down cake. Or spice them for your relish tray.

The pictures above show you the variety of fresh fall and winter pears you'll find on the market. The plump, tender Comice—perfect for salads and out-of-hand eating. The slim, juicy Fall Russet. The full-flavored, green- to yellow-skinned Anjou. The small, russet Nelis—extra sweet. The delicious Bartletts, not shown, come in the late summer and early fall. You can buy them canned or glassed all year round.

Pear Upside-down Cake. Top's pear and walnut halves in a rich caramel sauce. Underneath is delicately spiced gingerbread. Serve with a frill of fluffy cream cheese. You can use the fresh Anjou or Fall Russet or canned pear halves

Pear-crisp Pie. Here's a fresh-fruit pie you can make in the middle of wi[nter]. For extra flavor, you add a little nutmeg, a little lemon peel and juice t[o the] pear slices. Any variety of fall or winter pears will make a delicious [pie]

Cranberry-stuffed Pears. An easy garnish, perfect with a slice of tender ham. Fill the center of canned pear halves with a spoonful of bright red cranberry relish

Spoon Pears. Halve and core Comice or Anjou pears. Drizzle with lemon juice. Eat melon-style

For neat-looking pear halves, core them with a melon-ball cutter or a teaspoon

- Cut waste space so every inch of cabinet room counts
- Bring new color, bold or pastel, into the kitchen

Your kitchen cabinets can make the difference between a bright, cheery, easy-to-work-in room and a drab, inefficient one. So whether you're considering building a new kitchen or rejuvenating an old, take a look at what the new cabinets offer.

Kitchen cabinets, 1951 style, are planned to fit your needs and space. Peninsula bars make a handy place for snacks, are a simple way to divide kitchen from laundry, eating nook, or the youngsters' play corner. Practical counter tops keep their brand-new look through spills, splashes, and stains. Swing-out or merry-go-round shelves put once-wasted corner space to work. Check these new cabinets with your kitchen needs.

Coneys. To cook frankfurters, cover them with boiling water; cover the pan. Let stand over low heat 7 minutes. Everybody's on his own when it comes to the sandwich makings.

This one's generous, 2 franks to a bun. Add a big spoonful of crisp piccalilli, a little paper cup full of mustard or catsup, slices of crisp, mild onion. Bun's extra good toasted.

Lazy-W Sandwich. Brown 1 pound ground beef in a little fat. Add 1½ cups chopped onion, 1 to 2 cups chopped celery, and ½ cup chopped green pepper. Cook till tender.

Add 1 10½- or 11-ounce can condensed tomato soup, ½ to 1 tablespoon barbecue sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper. Simmer 30 minutes. Crisp onion rings top each bunful.

Biddy on a Bun. Combine 2 cups diced, cooked chicken, 1½ cups chopped celery, ⅓ cup chopped sweet pickle, salt and pepper, ⅔ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing.

Spread on 8 toasted bun halves. Sprinkle with grated American cheese. Slide into broiler or oven to melt cheese. The salad stays crunchy. Put a big stuffed olive on top.

Cooks' contest—

Win a prize for your fruit pies and salad meals

Fruit Pies and Salad Meals are the moneymaking recipes in this month's contest. There are 21 prizes to try for: first prize of $10 and 20 prizes of $3 each. The top eight recipes will be pictured in the August Cooks' Round Table.

Fruit Pies make the most of August's array of fresh fruits.

What pie wins your family's praise? A luscious, golden peach pie—spiced just right, a green-apple pie flavored with brown sugar, a plump old-fashioned Concord grape pie, a fresh apricot pie?

Perhaps you have a special flavor combination such as cherry and peach or peach-pecan, apples with red cinnamon candies, blackberry and grated orange peel, or pear and walnuts.

Your pie may be one or two crust, use one fruit or several, or combine a fruit and cream filling. And if you have a trick such as a delicious way of spicing, a different crust, or a new topper for your pie, we want to know about it, too.

Salad Meals are a good way to beat the summer heat. We want to hear about your favorite salad and the dressing you serve with it.

Maybe a cool sea-food salad rates high on your table. You may toss chilled canned tuna, cucumber slices, and chopped celery with a tart celery dressing, serve a chilled salmon-olive mousse with a nippy mayonnaise, stuff tomatoes with crab-meat salad.

Perhaps you make a hearty tossed salad with strips of ham and cheese, hard-cooked egg slices, green beans, and mixed greens. Or pour a garlic vinegar-and-oil dressing over shredded cabbage and pork-ham luncheon-meat strips.

If gelatine salad molds, large or individual, are favorite hot-weather fare with your family, you may have a favorite such as molded ham salad with sweet-pickle dressing or a chicken-salad loaf. Send us the recipe you and family and guests like best.

And remember, the winners of these 21 prizes will receive the Better Homes & Gardens Certificate of Endorsement and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

1. Write your recipe clearly on one side of the paper. Send but one recipe at a time and mark it, "August Fruit Pies" or "August Salad Meals."
2. Print your full name and address clearly in upper right corner of recipe page.
3. Give measurements in level cups, tablespoons, teaspoons, never in heaping or scant measurements.
4. Be sure to specify in your recipe the brand names of the nationally known food products you use as ingredients—products available everywhere. We must know them so we can test your recipe with the same brands you use.
5. Include 50 to 100 words ab the history or origin of the rec you submit.
6. All recipes submitted become property of Better Homes & Gard
7. Entries must be postmarked midnight, January 31.
8. Address the recipes you ente 5401 Tasting-Test Kitchen. B Homes & Gardens, Des Moines 3, Io

Franco-America
SPAGHETTI

Chicken-Mushroom Pie

Use canned chicken; you have a quick casserole—

- 1 cup sliced carrots
- 6 tiny onions
- 1 10½- or 11-ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup
- ½ cup milk
- 3 cups diced cooked chicken
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Cook vegetables in small amount of boiling, salted water until tender. Combine soup and milk; heat to boiling; add vegetables, chicken, and parsley; pour into 1½-quart casserole. Top with Baking-powder Biscuits: Sift 1 cup enriched flour with ¼ teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoons baking powder; cut in 2 tablespoons shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add ⅓ cup milk all at once and mix. Roll or pat ½ inch thick and place on hot filling. Bake in hot oven (450°) 15 minutes. —Mrs. F. B. Andrews, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Tamale Pie

Easy to put together and delicious—

- 1 16-ounce can tamales, sliced
- 2 cups cubed leftover roast beef
- 1 6-ounce can tomato paste
- 1 15-ounce can whole-kernel corn
- 1 cup sliced ripe olives
- 2 teaspoons chili powder
- 1 10½- or 11-ounce can consomme
- 1 1½-ounce package corn chips
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Line a 2-quart casserole with sliced tamales. Combine remaining ingredients except chips and cheese and pour over tamales. Top with corn chips and sprinkle with cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350°) about 1 hour. Serves 6 to 8.—Mrs. Dorothy Taylor, Houston, Texas.

Ham 'n' Chicken Pie

It has a sweet-potato crust—

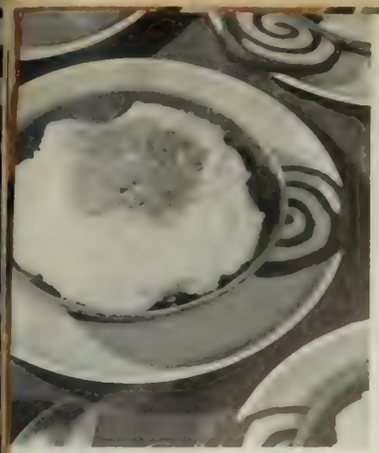
- 3 tablespoons chopped onion
- ¼ cup chopped green pepper
- 1 10½- or 11-ounce can condensed cream of chicken soup
- ½ cup milk
- 2 cups diced cooked ham
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

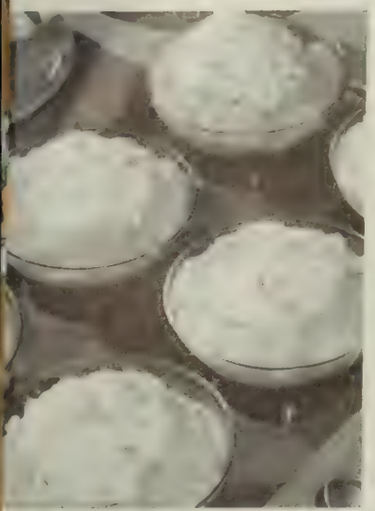
Cook onion and green pepper in hot fat until onion is golden. Combine soup and milk and stir into onion mixture; heat to boiling. Add ham and lemon juice. Pour into greased 1½-quart casserole and top with Sweet-potato Crust: Combine 1 cup enriched flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, and ½ teaspoon salt. Combine 1 cup cold mashed sweet potatoes, ⅓ cup melted fat, and 1 beaten egg. Whip. Add sifted dry ingredients; mix. Pat crust to fit casserole. Gash. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 40 minutes. —Mrs. Raymond Suchomel, Elmhurst, Illinois.

Cooks' Round Table of Endorsed Recipes

RECIPES ENDORSED

Desserts





Lemon Fluff

Looks pretty fancy, doesn't it? But read how easy it is—

- 1 14½-ounce can (1¾ cups) evaporated milk
- 1 4-ounce package lemon-flavored gelatine
- 1¾ cups hot water
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- 1 cup sugar
- 2½ cups vanilla-wafer crumbs

Chill unopened can of milk in refrigerator until icy cold, about 3 to 4 hours. Dissolve gelatine in hot water. Chill until partially set. Whip until light and fluffy. Add lemon juice and sugar. Whip chilled milk and fold into gelatine mixture. Line bottom of 9x13-inch pan with crumbs. Pour over gelatine mixture. Top with remaining crumbs. Chill until firm. Cut in squares and center each with a maraschino cherry. Serves 12. —Mrs. Palmer C. Vincent, Hillsdale, New York.

Lemon-Pear Whip

It's airy and delicately flavored, has an unusual coconut topping—

- 1 3-ounce package lemon-flavored gelatine
- ¾ cup hot water
- 1 No. 2 can pear halves, well drained
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- ½ teaspoon vanilla

Dissolve gelatine in hot water. Add 1 cup syrup drained from pears and chill until partially set; whip until light and fluffy. Crush pears and fold into mixture; then fold in whipped cream and vanilla. Pour into 1-quart mold and chill until firm. Unmold on plate or fill sherbet glasses. Serve with Lemon Coconut Topping: Combine 1 cup shredded coconut, 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel, ¼ cup sugar, and 2 tablespoons lemon juice; toss lightly. Serves 6 to 8.—Mrs. Carl Fischer, Los Angeles, California.

Lemon-Rice Pudding

An easy way to make rice pudding. And you'll like the lemon flavor—

- 1 package vanilla pudding
- 2 cups milk
- 2 cups cooked rice (⅔ cup raw)
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1 egg white
- 2 tablespoons sugar

Prepare pudding with milk as directed on package. Fold in rice and lemon peel. Cool. Beat egg white until foamy, add sugar gradually, and continue beating until stiff. Fold into pudding. Serve with Lemon Whipped Cream: Fold 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 teaspoons grated lemon peel, and ¼ cup sugar into ½ cup heavy cream, whipped. Serves 6.—Mrs. L. S. Smith, Chicago, Illinois.

Snow Pudding

Trim it with toasted almonds and serve it with golden custard sauce—

- ¾ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups boiling water
- 5 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ cup cold water
- 2 stiff-beaten egg whites
- ⅓ cup lemon juice

Combine sugar, salt, and boiling water. Blend cornstarch and cold water and add to sugar mixture. Heat to boiling and cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly; cool slightly and fold in stiff-beaten egg whites and lemon juice. Pour into 1-quart mold which has been rinsed with cold water. Chill until firm. Serve with Custard Sauce: Beat 3 egg yolks slightly; add ¼ cup sugar and ⅛ teaspoon salt and blend. Stir in 2 cups scalded milk gradually. Cook in double boiler until mixture thickens, stirring constantly. Chill and add ½ teaspoon vanilla.—Mrs. Ralph D. Fuller, Bemus Point, New York.

Meats

Gold Nugget Meat Pie

You cut it in pie-shaped wedges to serve—

Crust:
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- ½ cup milk
- ¾ pound ground round steak
- 1 beaten egg
- 2 tablespoons grated onion
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 3 tablespoons catsup

Filling:
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
- 1 12-ounce can whole-kernel corn, drained
- 1 cup strained canned tomatoes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon basil

Soften bread crumbs in milk. Add meat, egg, onion, and seasonings; mix well. Line the bottom and sides of 10-inch piepan with meat mixture. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 40 minutes. Filling: Cook onion in butter until golden. Add remaining ingredients and simmer about 10 minutes. Fill meat crust with hot corn mixture. Bake. Garnish with parsley.—Mrs. Mary Newman, Columbus, Ohio.

The Best Cooks Use Stokely's Finest Foods

Mrs. J. C. Koutnik, 6318 N. E. Miami Pl., voted by members as Best Cook of North Miami Garden Club.

VOTED "BEST COOK"

Take it from Mrs. Koutnik! She knows the flavor-difference in Stokely's Finest Foods makes the flavor-difference in a dish. Those Stokely Honey-Pods are special peas, grown from special seed in special soil . . . picked just when Stokely knows they're at their finest. Tender, sweet, garden-fresh. And Stokely's Finest recipe makes a Pickle Relish that tastes like homemade. Enjoy them both, in:

PICKLED PEAS—Drain and save liquid from a 303 can Stokely's Finest Peas. Melt 1½ tablespoons butter; blend in 1½ tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt and few grains pepper. Stir in ¾ cup liquid; boil 1 min. Add the peas and 3 tablespoons Stokely's Finest Sweet Pickle Relish; heat. Makes 4 servings.

Chuck or Rump Pot Roast

It cooks slowly and tenderly in oven—

Select a 3- to 4-pound chuck or rump pot roast. Roll in flour; season with salt and pepper; brown on all sides in hot fat on top of range or in hot oven (450°). Add ½ cup water. Cover and cook in slow oven (300°) 2½ to 3 hours or until tender, adding more water if needed. If desired, add small whole onions, carrots, and potatoes the last 45 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

Brown Gravy

Don't miss the wonderful gravy you can make with pot roast—

For each 1½ to 2 cups liquid from meat, put ½ cup water into a screw-top glass jar, then add 4 tablespoons enriched flour. (Remember, the water goes into the jar first.) Mix flour and water by shaking the jar, mix them in a small bowl or shaker, or with a whip or egg beater. Pour flour mixture very slowly into the meat broth; stir while pouring. Turn off heat until the flour mixture is thoroughly blended with broth, then turn to gently simmer, and stir constantly until gravy is bubbling all over. Continue cooking until starch cooks and flour mellows, stirring occasionally.

Baked Prune Whip

Save this recipe for your oven meals—

- 1 cup cooked prunes, pitted
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 3 stiff-beaten egg whites
- ¼ cup sugar

Mash prunes; add ¼ cup sugar. Add lemon juice to beaten egg whites and gradually beat in ¼ cup sugar. Fold in prunes. Pour into ungreased 7-inch casserole. Bake in slow oven (300°) 40 minutes, or until set. Cool. Serve with custard sauce or whipped cream. Serves 4 to 6.

Blade Pot Roast With Corn-meal Dumplings

Roast simmers in an excellent sauce—

- 3 pounds beef blade pot roast
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ½ cup water
- 1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
- 3 onions, sliced
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- ¼ cup catsup
- ¼ cup vinegar
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

Rub meat with salt and pepper; brown in hot fat. Add water, tomato sauce, onions, and garlic. Cover and cook over low heat 2 hours. Combine remaining ingredients; cover and continue cooking until tender, about 1 hour. Serve with Corn-meal Dumplings: Combine ¾ cup corn meal, ½ cup enriched flour, ½ teaspoon salt, and 1½ teaspoons baking powder. Add 1 beaten egg and ½ cup milk and blend. Stir in 2 tablespoons melted fat. Drop batter by spoonfuls into hot sauce. Cover pan closely and simmer 15 minutes.

Standing Rump Pot Roast

You add dried fruits and sweet potatoes the last 30 minutes—

- 3 pounds standing rump pot roast
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 onions sliced
- 1 cup cider
- 1 cup water
- ¾ cup dried apricots
- ¾ cup dried prunes
- 4 whole cloves
- 6 large sweet potatoes, cut in half

Brown meat in hot fat in hot oven (450°); season. Add onions and cook until golden. Add cider and water; cover and cook in slow oven (300°) about 3 hours. Add fruits, cloves, and sweet potatoes and continue cooking until potatoes are tender, about 30 minutes. Serves 6.

Jellied Vegetable Salad

We think it's the combination of vinegar and lemon juice that accounts for its extra-good flavor—

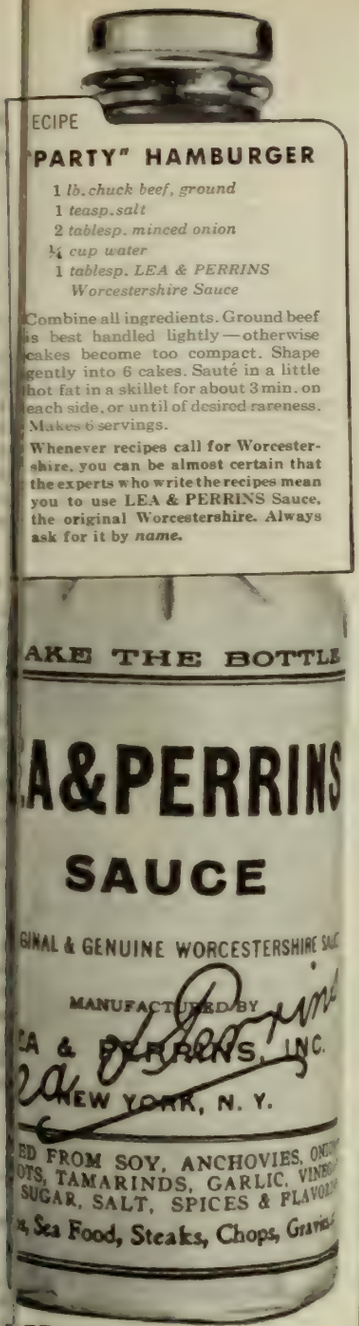
- 1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatine
- ¼ cup cold water
- 1¼ cups boiling water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup sugar
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- ¼ cup vinegar
- 1 small onion, grated
- 1 cup crisp shredded cabbage
- 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- ½ cup julienne-cut carrots
- 1 cup chopped celery
- ¼ cup sliced stuffed olives

Soften gelatine in ¼ cup co[ld] water. Dissolve in 1¼ cups boilin[g] water. Add salt, sugar, lemo[n] juice, and vinegar. Stir to dissol[ve] sugar. Chill until partially set. Ad[d] remaining ingredients. Chill [in] oiled individual molds or a shall[ow] pan. Serves 6.

Calico Salad

We call it calico because we use [both] red and green cabbage—

- 4 cups shredded cabbage (red and green)
- 1 cup diced apple
- ¼ cup minced onion
- ⅔ cup salad dressing
- 3 tablespoons vinegar
- 1 teaspoon celery seed
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Pineapple slice



Combine cabbage and a[pple]. Combine remaining ingred[ients] except pineapple; blend well; [pour] over cabbage and apple. Toss l[ight]ly. Garnish with pineapple. S[erve] 6 to 8.

Date-Tapioca Pudding

You can have it ready and wait[ing] the refrigerator—

- 2 slightly beaten egg yolks
- 4 cups milk, scalded
- ⅓ cup quick-cooking tapioca
- ½ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon
- ¼ cup chop[ped] dates
- 2 stiff-beaten egg whites
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix egg yolks with small a[mount] of milk; add tapioca, sugar, and remaining milk. Cook in [dou]ble boiler 10 to 12 minutes [after] water boils, stirring frequen[tly] bring quickly to boiling over [high] heat, stirring constantly. R[emove] from heat; mixture will b[e] Fold in dates. Fold hot [mix]ture into egg whites. Cool slightly, [add] vanilla. Chill thoroughly. S[erve]

Beef Arm Pot Roast With Noodles

In a pressure saucepan, you can cook it in 35 minutes—

- 3 pounds beef arm pot roast
- ¼ cup enriched flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ cup water
- ¼ cup vinegar
- 2 bay leaves
- 5 whole cloves
- 2 onions, sliced

Roll meat in flour; season. Brown in hot fat in pressure saucepan. Add remaining ingredients; cover and exhaust air. Cook at 15 pounds pressure 35 minutes. Serve over cooked broad noodles.

Molded Grapefruit Salad

There's the refreshing tartness of grapefruit, the crispness of apple—

- 1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatine
- ¼ cup cold water
- ½ cup hot water
- ½ cup sugar
- Dash of salt
- 1 cup diced, unpared apple
- 1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) grapefruit, undrained
- ½ cup broken California walnuts

Soften gelatine in cold water; dissolve in hot water; add sugar and salt. Cool. Add apple, grapefruit, and grapefruit syrup; chill until partially set. Add nuts. Chill in oiled molds or a shallow pan. Unmold and garnish with endive or lettuce. Pass mayonnaise or salad dressing. Serves 6.

Chili Pot Roast

Big Limas cook with it the last hour—

- 1 large onion, minced
- ¼ cup fat
- 1 3-pound beef arm pot roast
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 1 teaspoon dried celery leaves
- 1 10½-ounce can condensed tomato soup
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1½ cups dried Limas, soaked overnight
- 1 cup water

Cook onion in fat until soft; remove. Dredge meat with flour; sprinkle with salt, chili powder, and celery leaves; brown in the hot fat. Add soup, mustard, onion; cover. Simmer 1 hour. Add drained Limas and water. Simmer until meat and Limas are tender, about 1 hour. Serves 6.

Hot Lemon Sauce

Eat it on big squares of warm gingerbread—

- ½ cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup boiling water
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1½ tablespoons lemon juice

Mix sugar, cornstarch, salt, and nutmeg; gradually add water; and cook over low heat until thick and clear. Add butter and lemon juice; blend thoroughly.

Middleman

Ours is a sad, unhappy lot.
Our son's too big for the trike he's got,
While I maintain that he's much too small
To ride a two-wheeler bike at all.

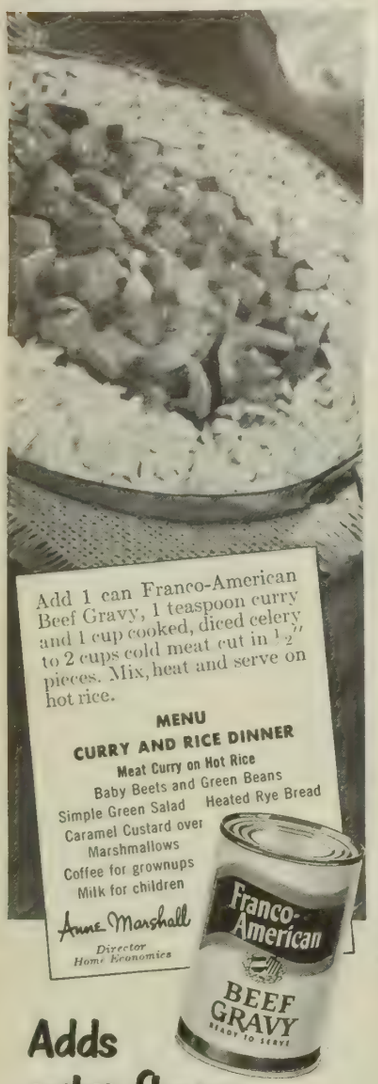
Campfire BROILED GRAPEFRUIT

A little bit sweet, a little bit tart, and a big bit simply wonderful! Cut grapefruit in half. Then cut around each segment and remove core-like membrane from each half. Notch rind. Sprinkle with sugar, fill center with canned cherries and broil about 5 minutes. Top each half with a Campfire or Angelus Marshmallow. Return to broiler until marshmallow melts. Serve at once.

Campfire BAKED APPLES

Family favorite in party dress! Bake apples in usual way. While still warm, top with a snowy Campfire or Angelus Marshmallow. Pop under broiler just long enough to toast a golden brown. Variation: dip marshmallow in milk and dust lightly with cinnamon before placing on each apple. Good? Good!

Campfire and ANGELUS MARSHMALLOWS



Magic ingredients for the yummiest salads, frozen desserts, ice cream, icings, meringues, and other goodies. Lightest, fluffiest, most delicious of all. And always fresh—in four separately sealed Packettes to each outer-sealed economy pound package. Campfire and Angelus—your sweetest buy in marshmallows.

Roast Duckling

Apple-Raisin Stuffing Brown Gravy

Glazed Sweet Potatoes

Cranberry Sauce Molded Vegetable Salad

Hot Whole-wheat Rolls

Assorted Cheeses With Crackers Coffee

NEXT time you're looking for something extra-special for a company meal or Sunday dinner, plan to serve duckling. Roast it with Apple-Raisin Stuffing as we have above. Or braise it in a spicy orange sauce (page 84). You'll have a meal your guests will remember.

The plump, young ducklings come dressed, ready for the oven. Follow the roasting directions below. For a crisp, brown finish, place ducklings under broiler a few minutes before serving. Or brush with a mixture of 2 tablespoons honey and 1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet at end of first hour of roasting.

The Glazed Sweet Potatoes cook in the oven right along with the ducks. Platter gets a simple garnish of orange slices, each centered with a walnut half.

Dessert is easy. Arrange an assortment of your favorite cheeses and crackers on a tray.

How to roast duckling. Place duck, breast side up, on a rack in a shallow baking pan not more than 3 inches deep. Do not cover or add water. Do not prick skin. You do not have to baste duckling.

Roast in a slow oven (325°) until meat thermometer inserted in stuffing registers 165 degrees. Duck will be moderately well done but juicy. For a very-well-done duck, temperature of the stuffing should read about 185 degrees.

Time roasting guide:

Dressed weight—5 to 7 pounds
Medium well done—18 minutes per pound
Very well done—22 to 25 minutes per pound

Apple-Raisin Stuffing

2 cups pared, chopped apples
4 cups fine, dry bread crumbs
½ cup seedless raisins
2 tablespoons melted butter or fortified margarine
⅓ cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup stock or hot water to moisten

Combine apples, bread crumbs, and raisins. Add remaining ingredients. Mix lightly. Mixture should be rather dry, since apples add moisture during roasting. This makes enough stuffing for a 4- to 5-pound duck. Lightly fill bod ity with stuffing. Do not pac several small poultry pins fro side of opening to other. opening with light twine.

Glazed Sweet Potatoe

8 medium-size sweet potatoes
2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
1 tablespoo grated c peel
¾ cup da syrup
¼ teaspoo

Cook whole unpared swe toes, covered, in boiling, sal ter until tender, 30 to 40 Peel; halve. Arrange in baking dish. Combine re ingredients. Heat to boilin over potatoes. Bake in n oven (325°) 30 to 40 Spoon syrup over potato sionally. Serves 4 to 6.

10-minute Cranberry

CHERRY CLUSTER PIE

a Martha Logan "HELPING HAND" Recipe

Watch the little hands. They mark "success secrets"—and "reasons why"—for making perfect pastry.

FIRST OF ALL—make Cherry Cluster pattern by tracing on tissue paper the design outlined here. From this make a cardboard pattern. Then keep the pattern with this recipe.

PIECRUST: Sift 2 c. sifted all-purpose flour with 1 tsp. salt in a bowl. Cut in ⅔ c. Swift'ning with pastry blender or 2 knives until particles are size of small peas. Sprinkle with cold water, a little at a time, over different parts of flour mixture. Toss lightly with a fork. Use just enough water to hold dough together—about ⅓ cup. Turn onto waxed paper. Press gently with the paper into a ball. Let stand at room temperature for 15 minutes. This distributes moisture evenly and helps prevent dough "pulling back" when rolled.)

Divide dough in half. Press into a round shape on lightly floured surface or pastry cloth. Using a rolling pin with knitted cover, lightly roll dough to circle ⅛" thick. Use light strokes. Roll from center out. Lift rolling pin as it nears edge. Invert 9" pie pan on dough, cut to 1¼" beyond edge of pan; fold dough in half; lay fold in center of pan; unfold. Fit pastry in pan. With finger tips or small ball of dough, press from center out. (This removes air bubbles.) Trim, leaving ¼" pastry beyond pan. Fold this under. Allow to rest 5 to 10 min. (This reduces shrinkage during baking.) Flute edge. Prick entire surface. Bake in 450° F. oven 12 to 15 min.

Roll out remaining dough in same way. With pattern, cut out 5 cherry clusters using tip of knife. Bake 8 min. Just before serving, fill shell with filling; top with pastry clusters.

CHERRY FILLING: Drain two No. 2 cans unsweetened cherries; reserve liquid (about 1½ c.). Combine ¾ c. sugar and 3 tbsp. corn starch in a sauce pan. Gradually stir in cherry liquid until blended. Simmer 10 min.; stir frequently. Cool. Stir in cherries.

It makes flakier pies than any other all-purpose shortening!

Try this Cherry Cluster Pie and find out what Swift'ning does for pastry! Because of its higher shortening power, Swift'ning actually makes flakier piecrust than any other all-purpose shortening. That same extra richness in Swift'ning makes shortcakes and biscuits more tender, too.

GIVES YOU HEAVENLY CAKES!

Yes, really heavenly—whether you use the creaming or no-creaming method. Wonderful Swift'ning has its own special quick-mix ingredient for finer cakes. Light, yet moist, Swift'ning cakes keep their first-day freshness for days and days. They're richer, too, thanks to that extra richness of Swift'ning.

BETTER FOR FRYING, TOO!

Foods fried in Swift'ning are digestible all the way through. And they're extra delicious because Swift'ning doesn't dull their natural flavors. Pure, delicate Swift'ning leaves no "off" flavors or odors in frying.

DIGESTIBLE . . . AND NUTRITIOUS!

No other all-purpose shortening is more digestible than Swift'ning.

Important, too—wonderful Swift'ning contains a combination of nutritional elements not supplied by any other all-purpose shortening.

Never before has there been one shortening that does so much and gives you so much as Swift'ning! Try it today.

Braised Duckling With Orange Sauce
Fluffy Wild Rice
Lettuce and Water Cress Salad
Spiced Whole Peaches Celery Curls
Cloverleaf Rolls
Little Mince Pies Coffee

HERE'S a meal that's sure to make a hit with the menfolk any day of the week.

While the duckling simmers gently in the orange sauce, you cook the rice and fix the salad. Cut wedges of lettuce and combine with green water cress. Drizzle a seasoned lemon-oil dressing over the salad.

For a colorful relish tray, open a jar of chilled spiced peaches. Arrange on the tray with crisp celery curls.

Dessert time: Each person gets his own Little Mince Pie. You can make these tarts in advance. Then just before time to serve, heat them in the oven. This calls for coffee. So be sure to put on a big pot while the tarts are warming.

How to braise duckling. Cut duck in quarters. Place skin side up on rack in shallow baking pan. Roast in slow oven (325°) 1 hour. Cook giblets. Prepare sauce using giblet broth and fruit juice. Transfer duck to covered pan. Pour sauce over duck and cover tightly. Continue baking in sauce till tender, about 30 minutes.

To cook giblets. Place giblets, neck, wing tips, and any pieces of fat from around vent opening in small saucepan with 2 cups water and ½ teaspoon salt. Cook, covered, over moderate heat until tender, about 40 minutes. Pour off broth. Allow fat to rise. Pour it off.

Good old country cooking

A pork chop's a pork chop (and oh, that cream gravy!). Country-cooked food has a perfection that comes from cooking a lot and cooking the same food many times. Learn the tricks of the country cook, and you've mastered top-secret information in the art of fixing a delicious meal. Some of the tricks you'll find in these recipes.

Rutabaga-Apple Whip

Two simple ingredients—and such a delicious result—

- 2 medium apples
- 4 cups diced rutabagas
- 2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper

Pare and quarter apples. Cook in small amount of water until tender. Mash with fork, or sieve. Cook rutabagas until tender; drain and mash. Combine apples and rutabagas; add butter and seasonings. Mound on chop plate and surround with Glazed Apple Rings and Braised Pig Hocks.

Glazed Apple Rings

See how pretty they are on the platter, page 60—

Wash and core apples; cut in rings. Simmer rings in syrup of 1 cup water, 2 cups sugar, and 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Baste often. Cook until just tender.

Braised Pig Hocks

An old-fashioned dish you may have missed—

Place pig hocks in Dutch oven or kettle with tightly fitting cover. Sprinkle with salt. Add water to cover. Add ½ cup chopped celery leaves, 1 onion, sliced. Cover tightly. Simmer until very tender, about 2½ to 3 hours.

Deep-dish Chicken Pie

A big bakerful, hot and really chickeny—

- 1 cup chopped celery
- 6 to 8 tiny whole onions
- 4 tablespoons chicken fat
- 4 tablespoons enriched flour
- 2 cups chicken stock, milk, or cream
- 4 cups cooked chicken, cut in large pieces

Cook vegetables until tender. Melt chicken fat, add flour, and stir over low heat until brown. Add stock, stirring constantly until thick. When mixture boils, reduce heat. Season to taste. Alternate layers of chicken and cooked vegetables. Pour over hot gravy and top with Perfect Biscuits: Sift 2 cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar, and 2 teaspoons sugar into mixing bowl; cut in ½ cup shortening until mixture re[sembles] coarse crumbs. Add mil[k] all at once and stir just until doug[h] follows fork around bowl. Pat [o]roll ½ inch thick; cut with biscu[it] cutter. Arrange on top of chicke[n] mixture and bake in hot ove[n] (450°) about 15 minutes. Bake re[-] maining biscuits on ungreased cooky sheet in hot oven (450°) 1[0] to 12 minutes.

Braised Short Ribs

Serve a big bowl of onion gravy with these—

Brown short ribs in hot fat; se[a]son with salt and pepper. Add ½ cup hot water; cover tightly an[d] bake in slow oven (300°) about 1½ hours. Potatoes, carrots, and onio[ns] may be added last 45 minutes of cooking, if desired.

Savory Onion Gravy

- 4 cups sliced onions
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 3 tablespoons enriched flour
- 2 cups meat stock or 2 bouillon cubes (dissolved in 2 cups hot water)
- 2 teaspoons bottled gravy-flavoring concentrate
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- Salt and pepper

Cook onions in hot fat until s[oft] and yellow; stir in flour. Add me[at] stock or dissolved bouillon cub[es] add gravy flavoring and Worce[s]tershire sauce. Gradually add [the] flour mixture; cook over low h[eat] until thick, stirring constantly. A[dd] salt and pepper. Cover; simmer [10] minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

Split-pea Soup

You make a meal of it. Have a dessert like a peach cobbler—

Soak ½ cup dried split peas [in] quarts water overnight. Ad[d] medium-size onion, diced, and [cook] until peas are tender. Press thr[ough] sieve. Heat to boiling. Blen[d] tablespoon flour with 2 tablesp[oons] melted butter and add to soup [and] until well mixed. Season with [salt] and pepper. For additional [rich]ness, ¼ cup cream may be a[dded]. Smoked ham may be cooked [with] peas. Serves 6 to 8.

Bean-pot Beans

The real McCoy—with molasses, onion and bacon. All slow-baked—

- 2 cups (1 pound) dried navy beans
- ¼ pound bacon, unsliced
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- ½ cup dark molasses
- ½ cup chili sauce
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 medium-size onion, sliced
- 2 cups hot liquor

Wash beans, cover with w[ater] inches above beans), and so[ak] night. Add bacon; cover; [bake] over low heat (do not boil) [until] just tender (about 1 hour). [Drain,] reserve liquor. Remove bacon, cut in 1-inch cubes. Pour beans to 2-quart bean pot or c[asserole]. Bury bacon cubes in beans. [Add] combined remaining ingredients. Cover and bake in slow oven ([300°]) 6 hours. If necessary, add liquor or hot water during [last] Serves 8.

Boston Brown Bread

Thick slices spread with cool butter. Mmmm!—

1 cup rye flour
1 cup whole-wheat flour
1 cup corn meal
$2\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup seedless raisins
¾ cup molasses
2 cups buttermilk

Sift together dry ingredients, add raisins, and mix well. Add molasses to buttermilk and stir until well mixed; add to dry ingredients and beat until batter is smooth. Fill 2 greased molds two-thirds full. Steam 2 to $2\frac{1}{2}$ hours.

Fresh-fried Potatoes

A regular feature in a country breakfast or supper—

Cut pared potatoes in ⅛-inch slices. Fry over low heat in heavy skillet in bacon drippings or other fat. Season with salt and pepper. After potatoes are browned, turn and fry slowly on other side. Do not cover.

Broiled Ham Slices

The country cook fixes them in a skillet. Use skillet or broiler—

Preheat broiler. Trim rind from ham slices; cut edge in several places to prevent curling. Place on broiler rack 3 inches below heat; turn once. Allow 15 to 20 minutes for ½-inch slice. Thin slices of ham may be pan-broiled over medium heat.

Fried Eggs

Use just enough butter or bacon fat to coat skillet. Slide in eggs. When white is set and edges cooked, add ½ teaspoon water for each egg. Cover skillet. Cook to doneness you desire.

Plastic curtains

come out of the kitchen

Textured surfaces of new plastic materials fool the eye and almost fool the hand. All of them take a quick, soap-and-water wipe-off

By Helen Stark

For privacy at the breakfast table, use sheer sash curtains of polka-dot print which suggests dotted swiss. The ready-made draperies shown here have a shantung texture, but they're plastic, too, so can't be harmed if Junior tries to look out the window while his hands are filled with buttered toast

Photographed at Bloomingdales of New York by Bill Jackson

Twin materials — one sheer, the other drapery weight — have damask-like texture copied from an Eighteenth Century fabric in a small diamond pattern. To control the glare from the sun at big windows, the translucent curtain is pleated on a traverse rod. It can be drawn aside to allow more light in on dark days

Open bedroom windows and crisp white pique ruffles are usually a bad combination. But rain or soot can't stain these ruffles, and they'll never need ironing, for they are really plastic with a ribbed surface; wash and dry in a matter of minutes. Pastel-tinted window shade is washable plastic, too

Panels printed in a floral pattern which tapers away ➡ toward the ceiling have a gray-and-white background which suggests brush strokes or irregular-textured linen. It's a style which could be used with Traditional furnishings, too. There's plastic again in the quilted upholstery and in Venetian-blind tapes

Do they think you're made of money?

By C. Howard Smith

Are dollars just free passes to pleasure to your children? If they have no idea how you earn your income or how many things it has to cover, they'll take handouts as a matter of course

Shopping and paying some bills will help him appreciate money

"Hey, Pop, I'll need a dollar for the game tonight."

You undoubtedly recognize both the voice and the request. Johnny wants a night out with the gang. You know that, at the moment, his happiness is tied up in being able to get to that game. So, if you can, you try to accommodate him.

But have you stopped to think, as you lay the money in his outstretched palm, whether he knows what a dollar really is?

If you have, you'll be interested in the case of 12-year-old Judy Fogg. Recently, her folks had occasion to ask themselves the same question about their daughter.

When Judy entered junior high school, the Foggs promptly became aware that she had a lot of new uses for nickels and dimes. At first, they paid little heed to her requests, except to give her what they thought they could afford. But by Thanksgiving they noticed a change in her needs. She was asking for money more frequently—and for larger sums. At the same time, they observed that an impersonal note was creeping into her demands. It was not ingratitude exactly. Still she appeared to be taking their assist-

DEVOE POINTERS for home painters

HOW TO PAINT YOUR CEILINGS

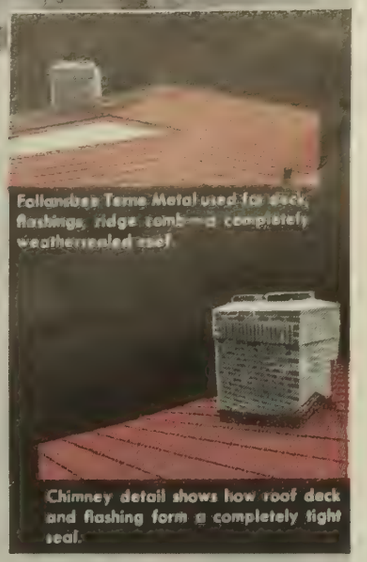
Use small brush for edges and a lamb's wool paint roller. Roller means no dripping . . . applies paint 2 to 4 times as fast . . . and gives smoother job. Always start near main source of light and work away from it . . . easier to see places you have skipped.

WHY PAINT MASONRY?

Concrete, stucco and brick surfaces absorb moisture like a sponge. This weakens cement and mortar. Soon cracking starts because of temperature changes. Painting prevents this damage . . . also reduces indoor dampness and heating cost. You need a paint specially prepared for masonry surfaces. Bay State Brick and Cement Coating is the paint to use.

WHAT TO DO WITH BRUSHES BETWEEN JOBS

If you are sure you'll be painting again in a few days don't bother to clean your brush. Just wrap the bristles in kitchen aluminum foil and they will stay soft for several days. If you postpone painting for a week or more, soak brush in "keeping" mixture of ⅔ raw linseed oil and ⅓ turpentine—wrap in newspaper to prevent kinking.



HOW TO PAINT A WINDOW

Best bet is to hold strip of metal or cardboard on glass and against molding. Paint wood, letting brush lap over onto shield. Best brush is an angular one. Another way to keep paint off glass is to use masking tape . . . pull off tape as soon as paint sets.

YOU can get all the painting accessories you need—and many more helpful tips—at your neighborhood Devoe dealer. Why not stop in and see him very soon? You'll find his name listed in the classified section of your phone book.

FOLLANSBEE TERNE METAL ROOFING

In fact, Follansbee Terne Metal is the ideal roofing material for contemporary homes which emphasize the low-pitch and flat surface design trend. The use of Follansbee Terne Metal for roof deck, flashings, valleys, gutters assures complete and permanent sealing against all kinds of weather in all climates.

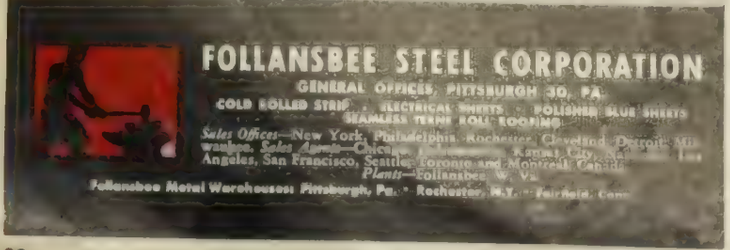
colorful because you can paint it to harmonize with any exterior color scheme you choose.



attractive because it can be installed with many variations in design to conform to architectural detail.

permanent because it is time-tested on roofs installed fifty to seventy-five years ago and still in satisfactory service.

fireproof because it forms a complete roof cover of metal which is fireproof and sealed against drafts.

weathertight because the deck and all flashings, gutters and valleys are of one material tightly sealed together.

The full story of Follansbee Terne Metal is contained in a booklet titled "Beautiful Lasting Roofs". Ask your sheet metal roofing contractor for a copy.

You save with the key feature of the house—a sto age partition. It separates the entrance hall from th dining area. It creates a pleasant doorway throug which you enter the living room. It completely scree the dining area and rear terrace from view throug the front door. And it screens the bedroom hall fro dinner guests. Besides all these functions of priva and traffic control, the storage partition serves as coat closet and china closet, and is much less expens than a regular wall.

next time—it will be different. The noise and dirt will still be there. After all, workmen can't operate like mice. What will be different is our preparation. Next time wet plaster will still splash, but not into the coffeepot. Paint may speckle places it isn't wanted, but not my walnut game table. There will always be putty all over new windowpanes, but not in the sink drain.

Your dog and mine

Didn't you ever get so bored that you felt like chewing on the furnitur

By Russell K. Lowry

My 8-month-old Boxer chews on furniture while we're away from home. How can we break him of this habit?—W. E., Ohio.

Boredom is one thing an active pup can't stand. So he whiles away long hours by chewing, or doing anything else that enters his head. Any bad habit a dog has must be corrected when he's actually in the act. The only thing to do when you are absent is to tie or pen up your dog where he can't reach forbidden objects. But supply chewy rubber toys as playthings.

Is it true that if a purebred female mates with a mongrel it will affect her future litters?—W. D. P., North Carolina.

Puppies from such a mating will, of course, be mongrels, but this in no way influences future litters.

We recently bought a Dalmatian puppy. We are now told the breed is very susceptible to mange. What can we do to prevent it?—Mrs. A. M. P., Massachusetts.

Dalmatians susceptible to mange? Never heard this one. In fact, mange is very much on the rare side as an affliction of dogs. Enjoy your dog. You can practically forget about the threat.

Our tiny Toy Manchester will soon be four years old. Is this too old to have her bred for the first time?—J. M. S., Maryland.

Females of all breeds can bear litters up to 8 or 9 years, though caesarian operations are sometimes required in upper-age brackets. But your pet is right in the prime of her life, and is just right for mating.

Nonsense! Many thousan puppies are either given aw sold every day, with their m still preferring to stick by the fir sides. Once pups get throu nursing stage, it's a case of a saying, "Look, you guys an ga get out and hustle up ma your own!"

Painting prevents this damage . . . also reduces indoor dampness and heating cost. You need a paint specially prepared for masonry surfaces. Bay State Brick and Cement Coating is the paint to use.

WHAT TO DO WITH BRUSHES BETWEEN JOBS

If you are sure you'll be painting again in a few days don't bother to clean your brush. Just wrap the bristles in kitchen aluminum foil and they will stay soft for several days. If you postpone painting for a week or more, soak brush in "keeping" mixture of ⅔ raw linseed oil and ⅓ turpentine—wrap in newspaper to prevent kinking.

HOW TO PAINT A WINDOW

Best bet is to hold strip of metal or cardboard on glass and against molding. Paint wood, letting brush lap over onto shield. Best brush is an angular one. Another way to keep paint off glass is to use masking tape . . . pull off tape as soon as paint sets.

YOU can get all the painting accessories you need—and many more helpful tips—at your neighborhood Devoe dealer. Why not stop in and see him very soon? You'll find his name listed in the classified section of your phone book.

What's wrong with this family?

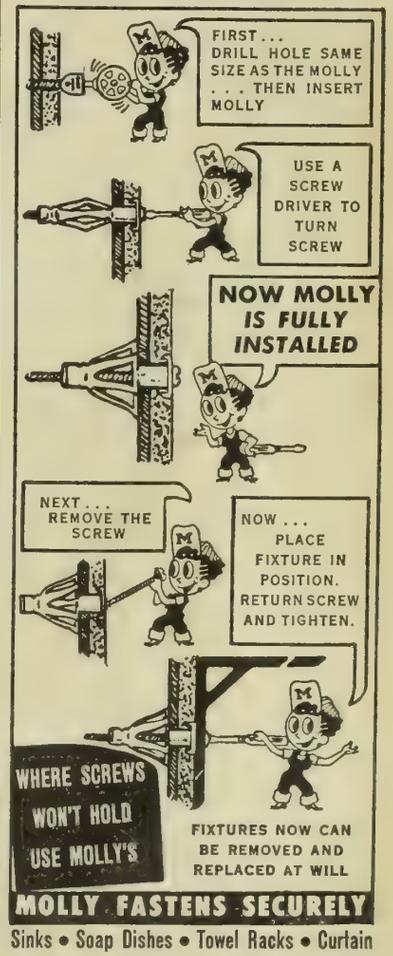
What's right. The Grahams' desire to protect their children from life's harsh experiences is an instinctive, normal reaction.

What's wrong. Though they meant well, the Grahams failed in their effort to save their children from grief. They erred in trying to shield their children against pain that results inevitably from the death of a loved one.

The Grahams would have done better to reason that life is never all sunshine and that death is an experience which all of us, children as well as grownups, must know and meet. They might also have considered that death can lose much of its terror when our loss is shared with those who love us.

The parents should have let the children take part in the burial. Unless the dog had been badly mangled, the children should have been allowed to see him. If Buddy were badly injured, Dad could have protected the children from unnecessary shock and horror by wrapping the body carefully.

All of us are frightened in the face of death. From the beginnings of history, man confronted by death has feared that this unknown force might engulf him, too. The rituals of burial have served through the centuries to relieve man of this fear. When we have done "everything possible" for the departed one through such ceremonial acts of love, we somehow feel we have appeased the great, unknown forces around us, and our fears are calmed. The Grahams, in depriving their children of this final gesture, also deprived them of that peace of mind that would stem from their giving the pet a last evidence of affection.



In the presence of death, whether the loved object is human or animal, you can give your children the greatest protection through these two things: (1) A strong sense that they own a parental love which shares their griefs as well as their joys; (2) the opportunity to express their grief through the rites which human wisdom through time has created to lessen the pain.

Snowmobile: Odd-looking? Can you think of a better gadget for gadabouting on a glacier like famed Athabasca in Canadian Rockies?

for skiers, most chair lifts—and you'll find them near every mountain area—run all summer for the benefit of sight-seers. It's a quiet, easy—and quite safe—trip through space, the closest approach yet to a magic carpet. At the top, you can feast on scenery you'd never see from the highway—peaks all around you and matchless views of mountain valleys at your feet. The trip down, you'll find, is what you'll remember most. It's like having a front-row seat in the balcony of a tremendous amphitheater.

There's a state-owned chair lift at Belleayre Mountain in the Catskills, less than 150 miles from New York City. There's one near Banff in the Canadian Rockies, one at Sun Valley in Idaho, and one at Boyne Falls, Michigan. They're all over New Hampshire and Vermont. Jackson, Wyoming's, "steepest in the world" gives you a terrific view of Jackson Hole and the Tetons. At Squaw Valley, near Truckee, California, you dangle 8,200 feet up the mountainside in pairs. Prices on chair lifts vary from four bits to $2.

Longest chair lift in the world—nearly three miles altogether—is the one at Aspen, Colorado. It conveys you like a pig in a packing house, only right side up and for a happier end, up 2,200 feet to the top of Ajax Mountain. There's a halfway house where you can get off and stretch before plopping into Mountain, you can see into seven states on a clear day. Even if you drive up Lookout Mountain, a ride down and back on the incline will be the highlight of your day. Round trip: 50 cents.

Scheduled to reopen this summer is the cable railway up Mount Holyoke at South Hadley, Massachusetts. Built before the Civil War, it showed a spectacular view of the Connecticut River to such tourists as Abraham Lincoln and Jenny Lind. Fare is expected to be 25 cents and a dime.

There's an incline you can ride without a ticket down in Georgia. At Tallulah Falls Gorge, near the town of Tallulah Falls, the Georgia Power Company will give you a ride on its 1,165-foot incline and a tour of its hydroelectric plant.

At the Royal Gorge, just out of Canon City, Colorado, you cannot only peer down into the famous crevasse, you can shinny down the steep cliffs in a cable car for a closer look at the swift-flowing Arkansas, and the Denver and Rio Grande rails which look like toy train tracks from the rim. You can drive—or walk—across the world's highest suspension bridge not far from the top of the incline. A combination ticket for both incline and bridge costs $1.50 per person. Children under 7 are free.

You get a longer, less precipitous ride on a cog railway. The longest and most spectacular one in America is up Pike's Peak. You make the hour-and-20-minute climb in an observation car, powered by a modern diesel engine or a chugging little steam locomotive. It's 9 miles to the top—14,100 feet above sea level. The fare is $5 for adults, $2.50 for children (plus tax). For no additional fare, you can go one way by cog railway and one way by limousine on the famous Pikes Peak Highway.

First of its kind in the world, the Mount Washington cog railway in New Hampshire huffs and puffs 3¼ miles, mostly on an old-fashioned, high, wooden trestle, to the 6,288-foot summit of the highest mountain in New Hampshire. A sawed-off little engine with a boiler mounted cockeyed so it will be horizontal on grades as steep as 37 percent pushes you up, and eases you down, one cog at a time, on the return trip. Fare: adults, $4; children, $2 (plus tax).

If you're in southern Colorado, with time to spare and a yen for real adventure, board the Denver and Rio Grande's narrow-gauge "San Juan" for 200 miles of seldom-seen mountain splendor. It's a 9-hour trip from Alamosa to Durango, and you can't come back till the next day. With a parlor car palatially Victorian in turn-of-the-century elegance, the San Juan is the only long-distance narrow-gauge train in the country operating on a daily schedule. The route cuts through jagged mountains, hugs the granite rim of a 6-foot

Oklahoma's problems are wind, heat, and fine soil

Like steers backed into the wind, houses in the wind-swept cattle and oil regions face away from blasts across the plains, and open toward the sheltered east and south. In the house Architect Raymond Carter designed for the Warren Whites in Oklahoma City, west rooms are weather-buffers, while all other rooms enjoy the seclusion the spread-out wings of the house afford. Hipped roofs with straight eaves repeat the flat lines of the land.

In Oregon, low roofs and native lumber are characteristic

In the heart of the lumber country, you naturally find wood used extensively. On the Percy Lowell house in Eugene, Architect Claire Hamlin has used cedar, both horizontally and vertically. Because of mild, open winters, the plan is open. A through carport makes good use of the slope and extends the horizontal lines.

Do they think you're made of money?

ance for granted. They began to feel that Judy's view of money was out of focus.

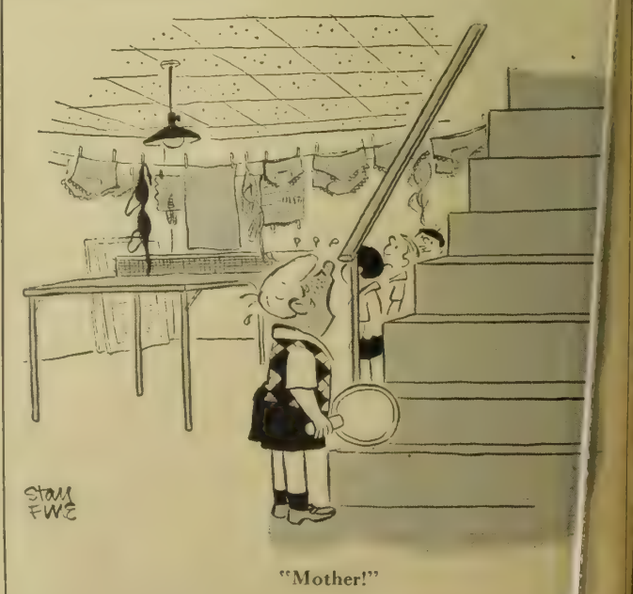
You may have been shocked, as the Foggs were, to learn that your children can be a trifle unfeeling in accepting money. The reasons for their attitude may lie mainly in your failure to give them a few definite facts about what money is and what it can do.

For one thing, your youngsters find money a fascinating, new toy. They are quick to see its power to buy them what they want. But without guidance, they may attach to it more than usual importance. The result is that it crowds former associations out of their lives, and they begin to live in a money-centered world.

Then, too, you may fail to make your boy or girl understand that you are giving them money in addition to, not in place of, the other family ties of love and security. So they may sometimes misinterpret the financial support they receive from you as a sign of their own sufficiency. As a result, they give the impression of living apart from the family group. Note the impersonal relationship that helped to awaken the Foggs to the change in Judy.

In the case of your own Johnny and Mary, just handing over money isn't enough, for money in itself isn't an adequate token of your affection. You must begin early to show them the "how," "when," "where," and "why" of money.

You'll find that this kind of guidance pays off in two ways. It will teach them to be moderate in their demands on you. And they'll not be so likely to think of you as a mechanical cash register with endless resources. Here are some suggestions to help you get across t them what a dollar really is:



First, give Johnny and Mary a honest idea of your financial stand ing. For example, don't conceal th truth from them in such a wa that they think you are wealthy you aren't.

Of course, they probably neve need to know to the penny wha your family income is. But by th time they are ready to ask you reg ularly for spending money, the ought to know approximately hov you are fixed. Later, they shoul be able to evaluate fairly well th things in which you have investe your money—your home, car, fur niture, and insurance. In this way they'll not get big ideas about mor ey that doesn't exist.

In telling them the truth abo your income, it isn't necessary nag them about the scarcity money or scare them with threats starvation or eviction. If a cri arises that you think they m know about, introduce them tc gradually and calmly. When y have made them understand th part, they'll be more inclined adjust their needs to your abi to give. Children who know w money is all about don't exp their parents to sacrifice someth important in order to buy a f ball ticket.

Naturally it isn't wise to ve Johnny and Mary a handout e ry time they ask for it. But be r dy to explain why. You won't s sfy them with, "Please don't b ner me now; I've already told you No twice." But you might me ion previous amounts given in th as week and explain that the p en request is a little out of lin Or

Don't let "Lazy Windows" mar your home

You can't hide your window shades from anybody. What sort of impression do they make? Have they stretched and curled and sagged out of shape? Are they cracked or torn? Do they have that "limp look" so unflattering to your decorating scheme? These things don't happen to CLOTH window shades, oil-painted or plastic-coated. Made with a strong, flexible base of firmly woven cotton fabric . . . as easy to clean as your curtains . . . CLOTH window shades have the body and weight it takes to stay trim, crisp and straight-hanging year after year after year. Substitute materials come and go, but only CLOTH window shades are a positive cure for "lazy windows."

Ask them to give you from time to time an account of what they've done with their money. You'll have a chance then to insist on their spending some of it usefully for school needs, charity, and gifts. When they spend for pleasure, remind them to think of others as well as themselves.

Occasionally sound a note of economy by urging them to put a part of their allowance into a savings account, no matter how small the amount. In this way you'll be able to teach them to plan for things that might be out of reach otherwise. Then encourage them to make decisions between two items if they have saved enough for only one. And be firm about having them stick to their choice.

Another way of getting money into your children's hands is to let them do things for you. For example, you can hire them to mow the lawn or trim hedges or wash the car. They'll be pleased to find out that their efforts have real value to you in terms of money. You might set up a little table of prices you are willing to pay.

Remember, of course, to list the things for which you will not pay, such as bringing groceries on the way home from school. In that way you'll avoid giving them the impression that you must pay them for everything they do. And you'll have a chance to emphasize that some services around the house are their reasonable duty.

Also, it's a good idea to let them do odd jobs outside the family circle. Your friends and neighbors may need a little extra help. Your children can give them assistance in running errands, baby-sitting, shoveling snow, and the like.

When they come home with their quarters and half dollars, take an interest in what they have earned. Encourage them to save a little, share a little, and buy a few items they can use at home and in school. Also praise them for their efforts. That will make them confident that they're doing something worthwhile.

Your own situation will help you decide whether you ought to give your children an allowance or require them to earn their spending money. Some parents have successfully tried a combination of these systems, using a minimum allowance as base pay and then urging their children to add to it with their own earnings.

But however you approach your aim of giving your youngsters practical experience in managing their financial problems, you'll need, in addition, to teach them the facts discussed earlier: the extent of your financial ability to help them, the sources of your income, and the ways in which you use your income, to support your family.

This program will help them to see that the importance of money lies mainly in its relationship to other things. They'll understand then that there are many things that it cannot buy. They'll see that your love and the feeling of security they get from it and their association with a happy family circle are beyond the reach of money.

get mixed up in children's battles yourself. You're asking for more trouble if you pitch in with Ronnie or Barbara and point your finger at the other one: "You did too do it first; I saw you!" If you step into the scrap and fight along with your children, either actively or verbally, you're apt to find both of them on your neck! Or they may overwhelm you with a long list of grievances which led up to the fight. You'll be forced to listen when you'd much prefer to read the paper in peace and quiet.

Of course, you are big enough to put a stop to any given fight if you want to, but you might as well admit the true reason: that the wrangling is bad for you, not for the children.

We are not considering here the really disturbed child who strikes out and fights everybody and everything in his path. This article deals with normal children—your Alice, who teases her little sister; your Tom, who can't be in the same room with his cousin Dick for a minute without a wrestling match. Next time, before you interfere, look carefully into the fight and the background for it. Are you sure that little sister wouldn't rather be teased by Alice than ignored by her? Maybe Tom and Dickie are sparring, in their way, just as adults experiment verbally on different conversational levels before establishing common ground. Stay out of it.

Interfere only when the battle is seriously inconveniencing you—or when a child is armed. If one or both of the children engaged in the fight is holding anything harder than a powder puff, you are automatically obliged to raise yourself up out of that easy chair and confiscate the weapon. The consequences, both physical and psychological, of one child's inflicting an injury on another are too serious to risk. If you do have to step in, remember that you are the referee—not a contestant.

You can't—and shouldn't—stop children from fighting altogether. Who admires a Casper Milquetoast, junior grade, who allows himself to be pushed around and abused with no better defense than tears or tattle-taling? Youngsters need to do a certain amount of fighting, and quite often they enjoy it. As Rita, a sophisticated 5-year-old friend of mine, said to her mother, who protested over her fights with Jimmy on the ground that he was her good friend, "Of course he is my friend. I wouldn't fight with him if he wasn't!" Some fighting is necessary to the establishment of give-and-take relationships. It should be viewed with alarm only when it's the only thing children do. If your children would rather fight than eat, play games, or roller skate, you had better start looking for the reason.

Of course you shouldn't let a child be picked on. Don't, for instance, let him be the whipping boy for an older or tougher youngster. Mike's mother finally realized that Mike and her best friend's little boy were a bad combination. George, whose older sisters led him a merry chase, saved up all his hostile feeling to unload on Mike who was younger, lighter, and easily intimidated. Mike was taking a steady beating from George, who was not even actually his friend, but his mother's friend's little boy. The mothers broke up the combination, to their mutual regret, and now each boy plays with friends nearer his own age and weight.

Maybe your children fight because they haven't enough equipment and opportunities for play. They need some outlet for their energy and high spirits, for their feelings of rivalry and resentment—outlets like pounding toys for 2-year-olds and punching bags and competitive sports for teen-agers.

Make sure that each child in your family enjoys an equal share of possessions privileges, and parental affection. If Joan doesn't have enough toys of her own, she is pretty likely to help herself to what she needs from Kathie's room. If the baby gets all the attention while Billy sulks unnoticed in the background, Billy is probably going to make the most of the first opportunity to whack him.

Don't try to fool yourself into thinking that your children should love each other all of the time. You're lucky if they love each other some of the time. Don't make normal conditions worse by prohibiting healthy forms of rough-and-tumble play such as spanking the dolls or killing "robbers." Don't deny your children the opportunity to work out their wider feelings in pillow fights and arguments. Even spitting, while not exactly endorsed, is recognized by experts as a more advanced method of fighting than biting or hitting.

Note-writing is a more advanced form of attack than name-calling; indeed it's often employed by adults in "letters to the editor"!

Every child is entitled to a fair chance to work through the various stages of fighting techniques—landing one time at the bottom of the heap and another time at the top. This is the way he learns to manage his own feeling; and, eventually, to acquire respect for the feelings of other people. Give your younger generation a chance to fight—in peace!

Passing through

A house is but an obstacle
Upon a small boy's track . . .
A short cut to reduce his time
From front yard to the back!

★ Geneva Gold Medal

The first rose in history to win all three international awards—a striking new long-stemmed beauty with the color allure of a polished gold nugget. Long-pointed yellow buds, dramatically shaded with orange and red, open to big, high-centered blooms with a rich Tea fragrance unequalled in any other yellow rose. The big plant, with its abundant glossy foliage, is vigorous in all areas, and you can cut long-stemmed golden beauties from spring until fall. One of today's most talked-about roses, a magnificent addition to any garden. $2.00 each; 3 or more, $1.70 each.

"THE BOOK OF BETTER ROSES"
ARMSTRONG'S 1951 ROSE CATALOG

★ Describes 107 of the world's finest roses
★ Including both the latest and the "Top Ten" All-America winners
★ Contains 79 full-color illustrations
★ Offers many money-saving group selections

New varieties and established favorites to choose from—outstanding Hybrid Teas, Floribundas, Climbers, Tree Roses.

This book is prized by rosarians both for the beauty of its illustrations and the accuracy of its descriptions. You are told which varieties are showy but lack fragrance, which do best in certain climates. You get the facts you need to judge which are best for you. In addition, you'll find helpful, interesting data on how new varieties are developed . . . how All-America winners are chosen.

Here is a beautifully illustrated, informative book which will afford any lover of fine roses many hours of real enjoyment!

Armstrong roses are famous for the sturdy, vigorous growth and luxuriant blooms which make them showpieces in any garden. We ship only plants which are fully two years old, grown at Armstrong's own nurseries in California—where more All-America winners have been developed than anywhere else in the world. (Even of the "Top Ten" All-America winners, five were Armstrong developments.) And, every rose you get from Armstrong is guaranteed to grow and bloom in your garden. Armstrong's "Book of Better Roses" is yours, free. Simply fill out and mail the coupon below. Our supply of these valuable books is limited, however, so do it now.

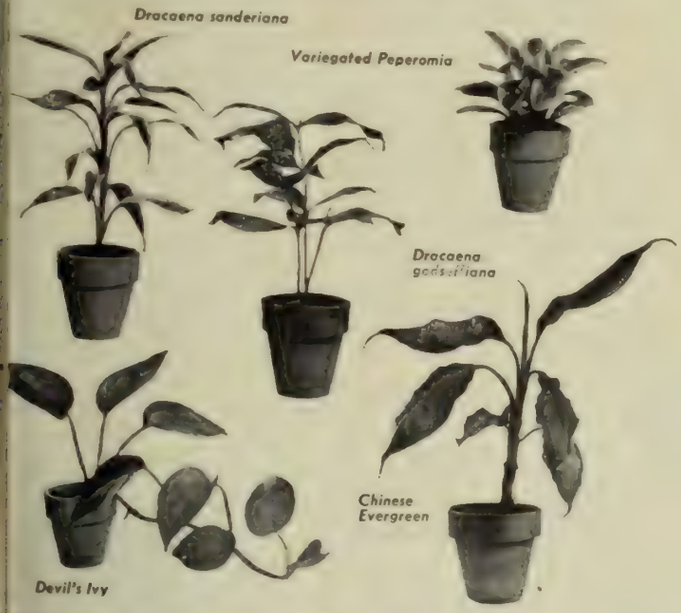
Add that touch of green with a dish garden

Foliage plants for the decorative bit of green you want on tables, mantel, or wherever needn't mean high-priced arrangements in expensive brass, copper, or bronze containers. Nor built-in planters.

Combine smaller, inexpensive indoor plants in a dish garden the size you want—one that you can move from place to place.

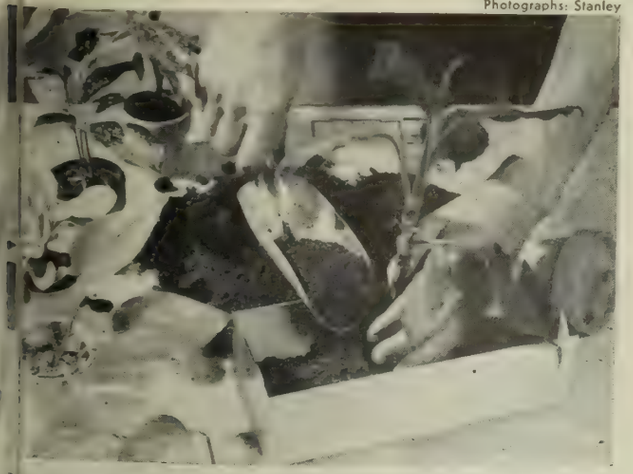
Drainage, soil, watering, and light are the success ingredients. Keep the soil moist, but not soggy-wet with water. Give your plants plenty of indirect light, but not direct sunshine through a window.

Here's how to make a dish garden, step by step:



A half-inch layer of charcoa in the bottom of your contain er will help keep soil sweet Or use sand, fine gravel, pieces of broken clay pot Cover the drainage lay with a thin layer of soil good mixture is 2 parts go garden soil, 1 part sand, part leafmold or acid pe moss. Now for the plant

Place your hand over the soil ball of your tallest plant and turn the pot upside down. If you bump the rim of the pot sharply against the edge of the table or shelf, the soil ball will come out readily, as shown. Placing the plant in your container is next. Be sure to keep root ball intact



...nts you buy can be transplanted to larger, more colorful pottery or ...tal containers. Or keep them in the small pots they come in, and ...ce in any attractive, leakproof bowl, vase, or box that fits your ...me. Vermiculite around plants in original pots will slow soil drying

...foliage plants above combine well in a dish garden, with varie-...ed kinds adding color and interest. Others are croton, dieffen-...hia, sansevieria, nephthytis, ferns, pellinia, saxifraga, and vitis

"THE FOUR QUEENS"

GORGEOUS—SPECTACULAR BEAUTY

HUNDREDS OF BLOSSOMS (often thousands) this fall—glowing red, golden yellow, rich, luxurious purple and lustrous copper-bronze, all for only one dollar! This is a regular two dollar value. Take advantage of this special offer and save one dollar on these 4 plants which are easy to grow and guaranteed to bloom this year. They bloom for years. Your garden will be an enchanting blaze of color for weeks from early September on if you plant these hardy "Four Queens". You'll pick bouquet after bouquet of colorful blossoms 2 to 2½ inches across from plants 2 feet high and 2 to 3 feet wide so profusely covered with flowers that you can't even see the foliage.

YELLOW QUEEN—A rich, bright clear yellow as cheerful as a sunny day, in a bouquet or in the garden.

CRIMSON QUEEN—The most outstanding Red Cushion Mum we have ever seen. It blooms into a perfect mound of rich, blazing color and is about six inches lower than the other three varieties.

BRONZE QUEEN–A new variety introduced by us last spring. It's the perfect fall flower—golden bronze with touches of copper and warm tangerine. Particularly outstanding because of its tremendous number of vari-colored blossoms.

PURPLE QUEEN–No flower in your garden will create a greater sensation, for it is an unusual Mum with its rich, velvety purple color.

. . . and give your lawn a complete, beauty treatment

Now! New process Vigoro: Nourishes longer—goes ⅓ further—as it supplies a complete, balanced diet for strong, healthy growth!

No . . . it's not too early! Grass roots are active even when the soil is still cold. Thus, long before grass tops "green up"—the roots are ready and waiting for nourishment. And since Vigoro doesn't depend entirely on soil bacterial action, it can go right to work immediately.

What's more, spring thaws and rains will work the Vigoro down to the roots. And vigorous roots mean a thicker turf . . . a turf that needs less watering in the hot summer days to come. Get Vigoro today. Apply at the rate of just 3 lbs. per 100 sq. ft.

The diary of a plain dirt gardener

By Harry R. O'Brien

Donald dug a hole—it being a balmy day. David rustled out our live Christmas tree. Between them, they planted it. I didn't lift a hand to help

Jan. 1 This year began last night—at the supper table. It was an oration by Mrs. Maggie that got it started.

"Why don't you just let that big bed where you had glads and mums last summer go to grass?" said she. "Then you'd have a fine grassy plot between the two rose beds that wouldn't take so much work.

"You try to do too much. You can't grow everything every year. So my advice is to cut down. Put more of the garden space into lawn. It will be a lot easier to mow it than hoe it."

"You are right," says I, "but not that bed. I aim to put that in strawberries. It is the bed in front I aim to take out of circulation. I want to plant it to permanent perennials that will take little cultivation. I aim to plant it to flowers that will last for years. That's why I put the new narcissus across the front of it."

Whereupon Maggie was horrified. That bed where she wants grass would never do for strawberries. Whoever heard of strawberries in a flower garden, between two rose beds?

"I don't care whether that is what the book says or not," says I. "I'm not gardening just to have a fancy place for somebody else to look at. Strawberries are wonderful to get the ground in good condition for more flowers. The straw rots down and makes mulch to turn under."

Well, we shall see, and time shall tell. But anyhow, this new year finds us all still on hand. And still planning.

I think I'll grow fewer annuals and hope for more time to put in on perennials. Roses will be about the same. But mebbe cut out cucumbers this year, put out a few less kinds of sweet corn, and so on.

My hopes—not resolutions—are to hoe the quackgrass in the rose beds, keep down crabgrass on the rear lawn, use some magic on the grapes so they'll do better—though maybe plant food and elbow grease would be more sensible here—and inspire David to fill up that hole by the side of the house where he dug out that dead evergreen last spring.

Jan. 2 Will wonders never cease? Maggie took the trimmings off our live Christmas tree today. Donald went out and dug a hole—it being a balmy spring day. David rustled out the tree. Between them, they planted it. I didn't have to say a word, much less lift a hand.

This has been a peculiar year, so far. It surely is the first in 20 years that by now I hadn't counted up my material blessings and accurately inventoried my financial assets.

Can it be because those new rose catalogs have come by mail? Plumb full of purty pictures and the most entrancing narratives about the new varieties. Sitting and reading puts all thoughts of savings made last year right out of my mind.

"Oh, they fly through the air with the greatest of ease—
Those greedy blue jays on their flying trapeze."

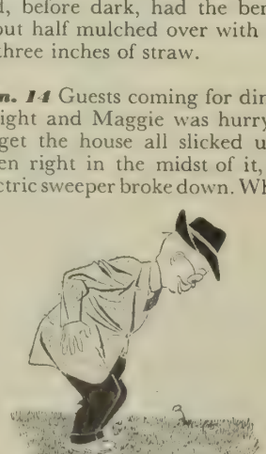
Sure 'nuf, with temperature down to winter again and a thin layer of snow on ground, there were those jays. More than any time this winter. They kept on the go, so I just couldn't get an accurate count.

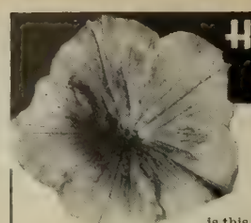
I saw Maggie changing the location of her African-violet. She was mumbling about the kind of soil in the pot. It looks so queer.

"Look at the plant," says I. "If the plant is doing all right, that's the important thing." As far as I can tell, it does look good.



But apparently Maggie has given up hopes for her amaryllis. I see she has set the pot out on the hall bench by the cellar door. Evidently it is headed for oblivion, via the ash can.

And did I mention that Maggie thinks she gave me a certain book for Christmas? Just between us, there was some finessing and finangling on my part and it really was my present to her. It's a rather new book—came out mebbe a year or so ago—called Garden in Your Window, by Jean Hersey. Mrs. Jean is an energetic gardener whose writings you have doubtless seen before. There is a lot of practical information in it and sprightly written, about house plants and such.



There was a trainload, more or less, of ashes and trash in the basement. So this late afternoon, David got out the trailer he built last summer, pulled by the garden tractor. He loaded it up and started off into the garden and down a path. He hadn't gone 15 feet until the wheels had cut through the thin layer of frozen soil and he was mired down.

Now the book says to cover up strawberries when the temperature gets down to 20. This is usually just before Thanksgiving around here. Well, believe it or not, it hasn't been that cold yet this winter. But methinks the berries had better be covered anyhow. So we got busy and, before dark, had the berries about half mulched over with two to three inches of straw.

Jan. 14 Guests coming for dinner tonight and Maggie was hurrying to get the house all slicked up—when right in the midst of it, her electric sweeper broke down. Which

There was a pretty yellow flower in bloom on the south side of the house. Crocus? It was a little dandelion was a calamity, for the guests were Genevieve Callahan and Lou Richardson, from California, both well-known writers of today and old friends of ours.

Jan. 18 Back home just ahead of suppertime, to hear terrible news. Maggie's cleaning woman tried to use that broken sweeper. Sparks flew off where the wire goes into the handle and nearly scared her to death. David was called to use his knowledge of electricity and repairing, but couldn't make it work right.

So Maggie phoned to the sweeper dealer agency for a repairman. Out he came pronto and said it would cost more than $20 to do the repairing. What shall we do? This present faithful sweeper has been in continuous use for about 15 years now. Goodness knows how many times it has been serviced and repaired. During the war years, it had been patched up with used parts from another sweeper.

We got busy and before dark had the strawberries about half mulched over with two to three inches of straw

Jan. 19 As I worked hard in my study this morning on an emergency matter and so could not be disturbed, the doorbell rang. Then a tocsin sounded from the living room. Would I come down and take a look? I couldn't. But I did.

There was the sweeper man back with a brand-new, streamlined, super de luxe 1951-model sweeper. Why not buy it instead of repairing the old? The net result of the negotiations is that Maggie said she would.

"I'll give you a check," said Maggie.

Believe it or not, that sweeper salesman didn't know how to take complete payment in full. He had to phone back to the office and find out how a cash sale is handled. Seems as though everybody buys 'em a third down and installment payments on the rest.

You know, neither of us was brought up that way. We don't buy on installments. We do without, save our pennies, and then buy when we can pay for it. But land sakes—what old fogies we are.

Jan. 21 A woman down South has written, offering to send us blooms of some azaleas and camellias. I had to reply that it isn't legal to ship plant materials from there to here unless they have been inspected by the proper officials and are accompanied by a certificate certifying that they are free of damaging insects or diseases. I don't want to have it on my soul that I aided some pest to get off to a good start in our wonderful community.

Jan. 22 "We have a night-blooming cereus that looks like it will bloom sometime between 10 and midnight tonight. Wouldn't you folks like to come over and watch it?" asked a voice on the phone about 8 p.m. I declined with thanks on grounds I am too busy—which is the gospel truth.

The other day word come from a man who has a Sacred Lily of the Nile—or is it of India?—that was in bloom and would I hurry over to see it. I will not. That is the very identical affair that Maggie threw out in the drive when it bloomed here years back. The pesky thing stunk up the whole house. Ought to be a law agin it.

But in pursuit of my bird-feeding chores, bless my soil if I didn't spy green shoots of narcissus peeking up along the south side of the house. A sure sign of snow and zero weather before long.

Jan. 24 Summer here—thermometer up in 60's. As I did walk about the soggy lawn this late afternoon after the evening papers, there was a pretty little yellow flower in bloom by the shrubbery on the south side of the house. Crocus? Nay, my friend. It was a dandelion. If you don't believe it, just come on over and look for yourself. This is a sure sign we'll have a cold blizzard and snowstorm on April 15.

Jan. 25 Warmest day hereabout in recorded weather history. When I looked, it was 75. I heard on the radio it was 78 downtown. If it hadn't been for the sopping mud, just think of all the spring work I could have done. Didn't need to put a lump o. coal on the fire all day.

Jan. 28 Just ahead of twilight, I was ahummin' that old hillbilly song about "She'll be coming 'round the mountain when she comes," only I was making it go about coming 'round the elm tree. There hasn't been a nuthatch around all winter. When they do come, it is usually in the evening, and I spy 'em, hopping upside down, around the trunk of the elm tree where there is a box of sunflower seeds, or the other one with a suet rack on it.

Bless my soul, I hadn't kept vigil for five minutes, until a nuthatch did come around from the backside of an elm and hop downward. It helped itself to a sunflower seed, flew way up high, put the seed in a crack in the bark, and went to work to get its meal.

Jan. 30 Home late, after having stayed around the office too long, to face a domestic crisis. Maggie has at long last decided we must install tile in bathroom and lavatory. Mebbe all new fixtures too. The boys set up a clamor and say it's unnecessary and we can't afford it. But in came the plumber tonight, arms full of catalogs of fancy new plumbing fixtures. Time shall disclose the outcome of it all.

GERMAIN'S SENSATIONAL

ALL AMERICA ROSE WINNERS

Retain Their Crown in 1951!

AARS

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN 10 YEARS—All America Winners of 1950 retain Rosedom's highest distinction a second year. No varieties entered in the '51 trials were considered equal to the high standards attained in 1950. Thus Germain's two top Hybrid Tea Rose Winners—"Mission Bells" and "Capistrano"—reign again for 1951!

Mission Bells

The outstanding Rose Creation and Top Hybrid Tea Rose Winner in the All America Selections in 1950. Long tapering fiery salmon buds slowly open to large perfect, high centered blooms, often 5 to 6 inches across of brilliant, clear salmon pink with a beautiful golden sheen in the heart and at the reverse of the petals. Heavily branched bushes, wonderful cutting stems, abundance of blooms, and the rich tantalizing fragrance of the true tea-scented rose make Mission Bells a favorite of rose lovers everywhere.
☐ $2 each ☐ 3 for $5

Capistrano

A gorgeous All America Rose Winner excelling in vigor of growth and beauty of color. Beautiful long tapered buds of bright cherry-red open to immense long lasting fragrant blooms of clear sparkling rose-pink, borne on long strong stems.
☐ $2 each ☐ 3 for $5

New All-American flower champs

Begins on page 40

plants revel in heat and can be planted after the tulips fade. Torch is an annual, comes readily from seed sown where the plants are to flower.

In Glitters Marigold we have the seemingly impossible—something better than the score of top-ranking marigolds already on the market. But Glitters wins because of the perfection of the modeling of its curved petals, the petal substance, the clean canary yellow color, size (flower heads to three inches across), and stout necks.

With Burpee Hybrids your zinnias take on an elegance zinnias haven't had before when coupled with size and colors that range from creamy white through apricot and azalea pinks to rich orange-shaded rose-red. Plant them for garden color, cutting, and summer hedges.

Regal Rose Larkspur is one of several rich, new colors of annual larkspur that shows up importantly in the garden with strong cylinders of tightly packed rosettes held tall and regally at the time the Madonna Lilies and annual poppies bloom. Sow seeds early and, if possible, where they are to flower.

Sweetpea Fragrance refutes for all time the complaint that sweetpeas are not as sweetly scented as they used to be. Grow Sweetpea Fragrance in quantity for cutting, and especially for arranging with some of its own foliage in ruby glass. Sow the seeds early, mulch about the lower stems, and water generously at least once each week.

Hollywood Hybrids Lilies are one of the most brilliant of the new groups of vigorous and hardy garden lilies now coming on the market. Stems are wiry and graceful and bulbs are for sale at popular prices. So we are suggesting that you grow these brilliant red flowers both for garden groups and for bouquets of unusual elegance. Plant bulbs in full sun or very light shade in a soil that contains a good amount of humus.

Bright rose-reds, whites, pinks and fetchingly eyed patterns can be expected from a packet of seeds of the new, hardy phlox strain Beltsville Hybrids. Seeds germinate best when sown in late winter or early spring while nightly freezes still occur. This phlox grows to 24 and 30 inches in partial shade. Favorites can be selected after the first season's blooming and propagated by division as named varieties are.

Outstanding new perennials:

Phlox Brigadier. Wide, flat heads of brightest red made up of enormous florets are typical of this brand-new variety which grows to approximately 30 inches in a sunny in full sun.

Phlox White Admiral. A glistening white counterpart of Brigadier with single florets often reaching the size of a silver half dollar on well-fed, well-watered plants. Both Phlox Brigadier and Phlox White Admiral must be bought as plants.

Delphinium Loveliness. This is one belonging to a strain noted for having its flowers all out at once. Each flower is double, with pale blue inner petals and a robin's-egg blue outer layer. Heavy branches from the base of the main bloom spire prolong the display. No seeds, only plants are offered. Set plants as early as possible in full sun or very light shade.

A sixth annual making our recommended list is a new cleome—a giant candidate for background position named Helen Campbell. White. Sow seeds in a sunny position and thin young plants to stand four feet apart. The glistening white flowers are excellent in combination with zinnias, marigolds, calendulas, dahlias, and shades of petunias.

Throw in a thriller

Still puffing: Ancient iron horse still chugs up cog railway to 6 foot summit of Mount Washington, highest peak in New Hamps shelf through Toltec Gorge. At Cumbres Pass, you're up 10,000 feet. Even more spectacular is the thrice-weekly run of the "Silverton" from Durango to Silverton—a 90-mile round trip you can make in one day. With the tiny, glass-topped observation car clinging precariously to a rock ledge through richly colored Animas Canyon, this is considered by many rail fans to be the most exciting train ride in America.

It's a far cry from the natural canyons of the Rockies to the man-made ones of Manhattan, but, if they're new to your family, the high-rise elevators of Empire State Building are quite a ride, too. They shoot you upward 66 floors at a crack.

Like the little girl on her first ride they tell about, you're apt to wonder "if God knows you're on you're way up." From the observation platform, you can lord it over the lesser skyscrapers from this highest building in the world. You can ride to the top of other towers in New York, and in nearly every big city, there's at least one tall building with an observation tower.

Not all excursion elevators whisk you up. At Hoover Dam you get on at the top and ride down through the concrete heart of the dam to the powerhouse, a vast gallery with gleaming generators straight out of Buck Rogers. One for every family's scrapbook, this is especially fascinating to kids. If they're under 12, Uncle Sam lets them in free. It'll cost you 30 cents.

If you really want to stake out a family claim to the Grand Canyon, stop long enough to take an all-day mule trip down to the water's edge, a mile below the canyon rim. Though the trail scares you just to look at it, you can trust your mule. He's made the trip before. The trip from the South Rim costs $10 per person, from the North Rim, Children under 12 can't go.

It's too cold for mules on a cier and too treacherous on a dune. But that needn't keep family off either. Man has inv some strange conveyances, none more bizarre than a snc bile or a dunescooter.

The former, built especia exploring the toe of Ath Glacier, in the Canadian F between Banff and Jasper like an armored car on skis. take you on a skidding, 8-m ploration of the glacier, brinks of crevasses, somet deep that a stone dropped be heard to hit bottom. $2; children under 12, $1.

The dunescooter is so else—an overgrown hot-r 10 wheels and a 6-passeng ity. It dune-scoots you down over 10 miles of th body of shifting sands in outside the great deserts.

Rides into the Ocean leave from Mears, Michi can also scoot over the Bear Dunes on the Leel insula. Headquarters for Glen Haven.

If you like your sand tionary, drive your ow onto the hard-packed along the ocean's edge Beach, Florida or a Washington. Daytona i made famous in autom runs, but don't try to ords on your own. Al can cruise along the At for 26 miles with the s your tires, take it eas hundreds of bathers o

Daytona has anothe more adventurous—" in speedy, three-whee You can do this, Springs in California

Boat trips are a d every place there's a

Even so, most of them are refreshing changes of pace on any vacation. Some boat trips are more than merely interesting or restful. In fact some are anything but the latter. But if you're looking for family adventure, you can do your relaxing when you get back home.

The "Maid of the Mist" has been edging visitors up to the very foot of Niagara Falls for more than 50 years. It's still one of the brightest vacation thrills 90 cents will buy.

Take one of the more ambitious boat trips—the 190-mile round trip through Hell's Canyon on the snarling Snake River. The Snake's current is so swift that it takes 12 hours to make the trip upstream from Lewiston, Idaho, but only 4 to return. Rapids challenge the navigator. To give you just an idea of what the Snake is like: The only time Lewis and Clark turned back on their famous expedition was when they tried to find passage through Hell's Canyon. This is an overnight trip, and food and accommodations at a modern lodge in the canyon are included in the fare of $20. (Children under 10, $10.) Boats leave Lewiston at 7 a.m. Wednesday and Saturday except during low water.

If you want your excitement short but concentrated, hire a Quillayute Indian guide to take you out beyond the breakers in a dugout at La Push, an Indian village on the Pacific Ocean side of Washington's Olympic Peninsula. The guides are skillful, won't take you out if the ocean's too rough. On a one-hour trip, which costs $7.50 for your entire party, you go close enough to sea lions to take their pictures from the dugout.

Other boat trips take you down mysterious rivers that flow underground. Kentucky's Mammoth Cave has several short ones. At Penn's Cave, five miles east of Center Hall on Route 95, in central Pennsylvania, your entire trip is through murky waters illuminated only by the searchlight of your boat. Fare: adults, $1; children, 50 cents (plus tax).

Glass-bottomed boats at Silver Springs, in Florida, and at Catalina Island, off Southern California, thrill you, not with speed, but with glimpses of an unbelievable world beneath the waters. In Florida, you can also go on jungle cruises up rivers where long-billed birds doze and alligators sun themselves on swampy banks.

To reach scenic Tahquamenon Falls, in Upper Michigan, you take both a "Toonerville Trolley" and a river boat. You board the Toonerville—a quaint little train with two gasoline-propelled locomotives and 10 dinky passenger cars, each named for a Paul Bunyan character—at Soo Junction at 10 a.m. It's a 5-mile ride through the wilderness, taking a little over half-an-hour to reach the two twin-screw boats waiting on the Tahquamenon River. (Adults $2.50; children 8-14, $1.25; tax included. Children under 8, free.)

Don't miss riding a ferry. It's a lot more of an adventure than the average bridge. You can still find ferries where secondary roads cross major rivers. One of the most historic is the one at Old Shawneetown, Illinois, in operation almost 150 years, but there are others all up and down the Ohio and the Mississippi. Pete's tiny cable ferry across the tip of Lake Charlevoix to Ironton, Michigan, is a far cry from the big ferry steamers on the Great Lakes, but it's still quite an adventure.

And although you can whiz across the Snake River in Jackson Hole, Wyoming, on a modern bridge, don't miss the chance to cross this treacherous mountain torrent the way the pioneers had to cross it. Leave your car on the north bank and ride across the Snake and back on recently restored Menor's Ferry. This is one ferry where you can even provide your own motive power. The operator works the boat across the river by turning a large wheel which tightens ropes running to pulleys which ride cables strung bank-to-bank. He'll let you help him if you have a strong back. The oat trip: Great for all-day outings, steamers still ply rivers like the udson, Mississippi, and Ohio. Others operate from Great Lakes cities

Snake River ferry: Mountaineers crossed this way at Moose, Wy ming. Now there's a bridge, but restored ferry gives taste of pioneerin 25-cent fare (children free) includes admission to a museum.

At Pocahontas, Virginia, you can drive your car straight through a coal mine. You travel a paved road the entire length of old, high-ceilinged Number 3—the original tunnel driven in 1882—and can see every phase of mining operations without leaving your car.

A family used to be able to have a whee of a time on foot. In some places you still can.

Take the venturesome catwalk to the Cave of the Winds under the American Falls at Niagara Falls, New York. From the time you exchange your clothes for flannel suits, waterproof coats, and moccasinlike shoes, and go down the elevator to a tunnel burrowed in solid rock 174 feet down, you know you're in for an adventure.

The guide leads you across sturdy wooden bridges and platforms—rebuilt annually over wicked-looking boulders—each step taking you nearer the gigantic curtain of water.

At Hurricane Deck you stand at the mouth of the Cave of the Winds—the only natural opening behind the falls. Around you whips a strong wind. To keep your balance, you cling to the rail. Behind and 167 feet overhead, the American cataract leaps out, to tumble thunderingly at your feet. The trip takes 40 minutes, and costs $1. Kids 4 and under can't go.

Lost River Gorge, near North Woodstock, in New Hampshire's White Mountains is another hiking attraction. Better rent overalls at the headquarters if you have on good clothes, because you have to crawl, bend, twist, slide, squeeze, and climb! There are two trips. If you're a "sissy," you can choose the easier. (Admission, 50 cents.)

Another hiking trip small children will enjoy is the "Enchanted Trail" through Rock City, on top of Lookout Mountain at Chattanooga. Even grownups will have heart-in-throat moments crossing the high swinging bridge, ar looking out from Lover's Lea Youngsters will delight at the trai climax: fairyland caverns whe storybook characters like Cind ella and Snow White sparkle lu nously in dark recesses. (Adm sion, $1.20, children 60 cents.) you want to visit Rock City ride the Lookout Mountain cline, drive up Lookout Moun and ride the incline down back.

Most real caves, of course, "naturals" when you're lookin something to add memories family trip. The best-known like Carlsbad and Mammoth electrically lighted. But if you to see what a big one is like u electric lights, try Marvel Ca Notch, Missouri, in the C west of Branson. Only the gi first room—"The Cathed has electric lights. Complications

When bringing up the second child,
Our plans were well rehearsed,
We wisely used the knowledge gained
In bringing up the first.

To all the problems that arose
Our answers were the true ones,
And would have worked if she had not
Presented lots of new ones.

towers you see in the national forests. Most of them, like the highest one of all at Nogaulus in the Davy Crockett National Forest, Trinity County—you guessed it—Texas, are open to sight-seers. Don't look back, though, once you start to climb. And don't sue the forest service if you can't walk the next day.

It doesn't cost a cent either to climb the world's largest statue—Miss Liberty—but you won't take a hundred dollars for the experience. There's a small fare, of course, for the boat ride from Battery Park to Bedloe's Island, but that's all.

If you don't want to climb the first 195 steps up the pedestal to the statue's base, you can take an elevator that far. Don't be too proud to take it. There are plenty of steps left—154 narrow ones that wind steeply around the vertical pole in the statue's center. The sensation is like climbing out of a deep, hollow well; a look over the guardrail is a peek into a dark, bottomless pit. Women should wear low heels, and the whole family should take it easy. Your legs will probably cry for two days afterward anyhow.

You'll stop at Miss Liberty's crown, where the links are actually observation windows, and you'll look out on the world's busiest harbor and all of New York City. The lady's head will accommodate 40 people.

You see, it doesn't make much difference where you travel. There's bound to be something that's fun and exciting to see or do and talk about, if you just don't pass it by!

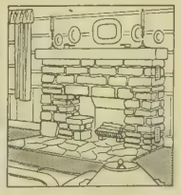
FIREPLACE WARMS ALL THE ROOM, EVEN ADJOINING ROOMS

CIRCULATES HEAT!

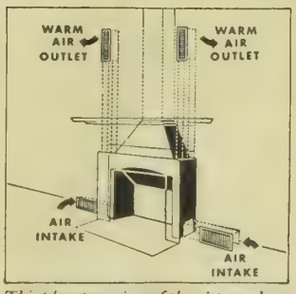
Build your fireplace around the Heatilator* Fireplace unit and enjoy the cheer of an open fire plus cozy warmth in every corner of the room. The Heatilator Fireplace saves heat usually wasted up the chimney. Draws air from floor level, heats it, and circulates it to warm all the room and even adjoining rooms.

Will not smoke



The Heatilator unit is a scientifically designed steel form, complete from floor to flue, around which any style fireplace can easily be built. It assures correct construction, eliminates common causes of smoking. Best of all your Heatilator unit adds little to the cost of the completed fireplace. It provides all the vital parts of the fireplace — saves the cost of a separate damper, firebrick, and masonry otherwise required — and on most jobs reduces time and labor.

Cuts furnace operation



A Heatilator Fireplace makes furnace fires unnecessary on cool

Ideal for basement recreation rooms

Makes summer camps usable months longer

This phantom view of the picture above shows how the Heatilator draws in air at floor level . . . heats it and circulates warm air to all corners of the room.

Spring and Fall days, cuts weeks from the furnace season, dollars from fuel bills. Use it to supplement furnace heat during bitter weather or as an auxiliary heater in case of fuel shortage or furnace repairs. In mild climates the Heatilator Fireplace furnishes all the heat needed by many homes.

PROVED BY 24 YEARS USE

Your fireplace is a long term investment. Get the one fireplace unit that has proved itself in thousands of homes for 24 years. Look for the name "Heatilator" on the dome and damper handle of the unit you buy. Accept no substitute. See it at leading building material dealers everywhere. Mail coupon today! NEW HOME HUMIDIFIER restores moisture to dried-out air; protects health, saves on fuel!

Now you can overcome the harmful effects of parched, overheated indoor air simply and inexpensively with MOIS'N-AIR. This scientifically designed and tested home humidifier restores nature's all-important moisture balance. Simply place evaporators in bowl, pour in ordinary tap water. Dried air circulates through the water-soaked evaporators, is loaded with moisture and discharged back into the room. You feel the effects immediately—the air is easier to breathe, you are more comfortable at lower temperatures. Completely automatic, requires no electricity. Makes a handsome planter when decorated as illustrated. Bowl colors: Ivory, Green, Light Blue. Splendid as a gift. Sold by leading department stores. The MAN NEXT DOOR

Gardening would be a lot more fun if we could lie dormant all winter, like our perennials.

I am glad to report that that bald spot on the lawn is no longer noticeable and looks exactly like the rest of the yard—under three inches of snow.

What singing is more delightful than that of young carolers outside your door, particularly when one of your own is with them?

Kids are wonderful actors. They manage to show complete surprise at their Christmas gifts, even though they get what they've been hinting at for months.

The new garbage grinder in our sink is so much fun we've all been hunting things to throw into it.

I ran into Pete Butler the other day, first time we had seen each other in 10 years. We hashed over some boyhood pranks and agreed that, if we had grown up in the city, we'd have been called juvenile delinquents.

A lady is a woman who can smile and be silent when the hostess serves her dieting husband a large slice of Boston cream pie.

Free advice to sons-in-law: Never refer to your mother-in-law as such, but speak of her always as your wife's mother.

My wife and I are inveterate midnight snackers. Our dreamhouse will have a refrigerator in the master bedroom.

A gentleman is a man who can tell his wife her slip is showing without making her think he's criticizing her appearance.

We never have to go through the after-Christmas routine of exchanging gifts of clothing. At our house, there's a size and shape to fit anything that has ever been knitted or woven.

Last year we knew an unmarried girl of 29 who was considered an old maid. This year, 30 and married, she has just joined the Young Mothers Club.

When Ted Porter's wife complained that he never brought her candy and flowers any more, he countered with, "No, but I never brought you bacon and eggs before we were married, either." I haven't talked to Ted lately to see how he made out.

Problem for parents: How to keep a daughter at once demure but "dangerous," sweet but "sophisticated," cautious but carefree.

Long before the scientists harnessed and controlled sources of boundless energy, our schoolteachers accomplished the same thing in kindergartens.

The family gave me a new pair of ice skates for Christmas. I don't know whether they want to flatter me or collect my insurance.

I have always maintained that a man should be allowed to shave without interruption. Now my thoughtful family has given me a pitcher and bowl to use in the bedroom.

"I try to sit out all the new theories in child psychology," says my wife. "Most of them end by announcing that too much psychology isn't good for a child."

Yep, history repeats. As bride and groom, we had six couples in one night to enjoy our new crystal radio set. This week we had the same six in to enjoy our new TV.

Signs of the changing times: When the den that was your pride and joy when you built becomes just another bedroom.

"Darning!" George Barrows said wistfully, fingering the growing hole in the heel of his wool sock. "Most women think it's something that went out with the stereoptican."

When you bring your wife home a fine book, don't expect her to thumb through it as eagerly as she would a new catalog.

Rummaging in my den for our Christmas-card mailing list, I found my 1950 New Year's resolutions. They seem satisfactory; all I need to do is dust them off for 1951.

On second thought, I've resolved not to make any New Year's resolutions. They're either too hard to keep or too easy to break. I'd rather go along, trying to do the best I can each day. For such an effort, the quitting time never comes, and the starting time is always now.

We finished our attic and did the work ourselves

WE BOUGHT a house with an "expansion attic," but after three years and two babies we hadn't saved enough money to finish it. We decided that our only hope was to do it ourselves. Most of what you see was done with our own hands, right down to laying the Armstrong's Linoleum Floor.

My husband got some advice from a carpenter who later helped a bit with the fancy work. He suggested the louvered doors for good cross-ventilation and also the storage drawers built into the partition between bedroom and bath. That last idea was a wonderful space saver.

People say, "Weren't you scared to tackle it yourself?" We were at first, but once we started it wasn't difficult—everyone was so helpful.

They told us at the store that we could even lay our own linoleum, especially if we used Armstrong's Jaspé Linoleum Tile. It comes in little tiles, only nine inches square. All you do is spread the paste and put the tiles down, one at a time. They gave us a folder that told us how to do it. We didn't have any trouble at all.

As you can see, I picked the same Armstrong Floor color for all three rooms. I had a reason for that. I wanted to use bright modern colors, different in every room, and the same warm gray floor helped tie them all together in one harmonious scheme.

I'll have to admit we're proud of what we accomplished. My husband says it proves you never know what you can do until you try. To me it proves something else—there's no use sitting around and waiting for your ship to come in. With the wonderful things that you can get today—like Armstrong's Jaspé Linoleum Tile—it's easy to have an attractive home even if your budget is a little tight.

Write for the "Decorator's Answer Book"—the latest collection of do-it-yourself decorating ideas by the noted home stylist, Hazel Dell Brown. Its 32 pages of full-color illustrations will inspire ideas of your own for decorating any room in your house, whether it's old or new. Send 10¢ (15¢ outside U.S.A.) to Armstrong Cork Company, 6102 Elm Avenue, Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

Besides being beautiful and lending itself to har[me] custom designs, Armstrong's Jaspé Linoleum Tile is w[lder]-fully easy to keep clean. It's the perfect floor for be[oms] as those pesky fuzzballs can be whisked up in a jif[f]. F[or] bathrooms, Armstrong's Jaspé Linoleum Tile is a [ide]a splashproof floor. Style No. 5 is shown inset with Pla[id] [Blue] No. 29. Ask your local merchant about Armstrong [Jasp]é Linoleum Tile and instructions for installing it y[our]sel[f]. Ask us to send you free room plans and list of furn[ish]ings.

D THAT WAS IT! Now she understood why people had been avoiding her of late . . . why Bob had become so indifferent. She appreciated over-hearing the truth, brutal as it was, because now she knew what to do . . . Why risk offending when Listerine Antiseptic is such a delightful, easy and extra-careful precaution against simple cases of halitosis (unpleasant breath)? It instantly freshens and sweetens the breath, and keeps it that way, too . . . not for minutes but for hours, usually. We solved the riddle of family happiness

Photograph: Harriet Arnold

By Don Harper

Our son stopped hitting his sister when we replaced punishment with

Tears, scoldings, whippings built up into tumultuous scenes before we realized we were putting the cart of "discipline" ahead of "happiness"

Sometimes it's hard to believe that we're the same family we were six months ago. It seems ages past that there were fights over every bedtime for the children, morning scoldings about dressing and getting off to school, and fusses over eating that ruined everybody's meal. It seems a long time since my wife and I wondered if we were a couple of incompetent neurotics raising two antisocial youngsters.

I don't mean to say we are without problems. Situations arise daily in our family, as in every other, that cause tensions, friction, conflicts, and difficulties, but we have learned how to overcome them. Six months ago we felt we were being run by our problems; today we feel we can turn most of the tears into smiles.

Some months ago while my car was in a garage being repaired, I promised my young son that we would go fishing the very first day I had the car again. Meanwhile we got [illegible] tackle ready, bought new lures and hooks, [illegible] talked about where we would go.

The day came when I got the car. I sta[illegible] home, and on the way, my motor quit [illegible] good. A friend in a truck pushed me into [illegible] drive, tooted his horn, and drove off. A [illegible]ment later my son ran out, thinking I [illegible] driven up and tooted for him. "Now we [illegible] go fishing!" he cried happily.

"Not today," I started to explain. "Yo[illegible] the car . . ."

That was as far as I got. The joy in hi[illegible] was replaced by a stricken look of bet[illegible] then by blind rage. He turned, raced th[illegible] the house, knocked over the baby, sla[illegible] the door of his room shut, and began thr[illegible] playthings wildly at the windows and [illegible]

That was all I needed. [Turn to [illegible] uick Verdict of the New-Car Season:

"Smart Buy's Buick"

modernize the triumphant phrase f an old campaigner—"They came. saw. It conked 'em!" ther words, folks are calling this t-stepping '51 Buick terrific.

rever you look, you find reasons for rvor.

SPECIAL blossoms forth with a full all its own—Sedans, Rivieras, Con-oles—new in styling, new in power-ight ratio—new in performance—new in thrift—smartest car for its price that Buick ever offered.

The De Luxe SPECIAL is as luxurious as its name implies.

The SUPER has everything it takes to make it the standout performer and buy of the middle-price brackets.

And the ROADMASTER literally tops all previous standards of comfort and luxury. You sink hip-deep in double-thick, pillow-soft Foamtex cushions—feast your eyes on new fabrics that have the look and texture of custom excellence.

You can enjoy the sweeping view from the generous glass areas of the '51 Buick to the fullest—for now you can have glare-and-heat-reducing windshields and windows.†

Add to all this the mighty power of Buick's Fireball engine—the superb smoothness of Dynaflow Drive—a ride that's the marvel of the industry—and you can understand why Buick dealers' showrooms are drawing the crowds.

Better go, see for yourself, what all the excitement's about.

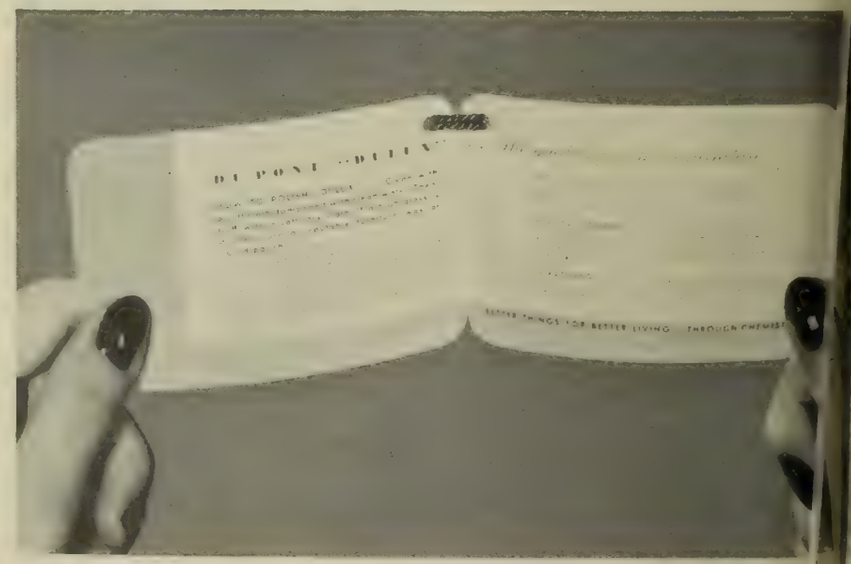
How to buy quality-finished furniture



. . . and live happily with it for years . . . and years!

Always ask the furniture salesman these questions about the finish. Does it resist marring? Scratching? Discoloration? Printing? He'll say YES to all these questions when the furniture is finished with Du Pont DUCO lacquer or DULUX furniture finish.

Be on the lookout for this tag when you're buying because it tells you the furniture finish is made by Du Pont—a name famous for nylon, rayon, cellophane and many other fine products as well as DUCO and DULUX. It's a name that stands for known quality.

The Du Pont tag does more than identify quality-finished furniture: it contains helpful information on its easy home care...tells you how to keep pieces looking beautiful for years! So remember the slogan "The Better the Finish, the Better the Buy." You're sure of a quality finish when you know it has the famous Du Pont name!

pt, my wife accused me of g him from the table, and another family meal was ruined.

And there was more. At just the times we wanted him to be on his best behavior, he would whine, flare up at nothing, insult strangers, act up in public, and deliver a sneak punch at the baby.

In general I tried to ignore anti-social behavior until it got to the point where I lost my temper and landed on him. If he struck, he was struck. If he was stubborn, I matched his stubbornness. If he resisted, he was forced, often to the accompanying shout that he was going to mind or else.

These spur-of-the-moment punishments were often effective—for a few minutes. But many times, before the sting of the first spanking had disappeared, I was delivering another. And no scoldings, no spankings, no punishment ever broke a bad habit or curbed future misbehavior.

The one fact that both comforted and troubled me was that despite all our conflicts, we were a close family. We had never questioned the fact that we did love one another, or that our family would stay intact. That's why it seemed such a crime that with all our expressed and demonstrated love, we should have such miserable periods of conflicts and anger.

I had the feeling, even in the worst moments, that all of us had the will to cooperate and be happy, but we didn't have the method. For a while, it had been my habit to blame separation during the war, constant postwar moving, and things like that, but I knew that I couldn't blame the war for everything, forever. Somewhere along the line we had made a wrong turn, and it was up to us to back up until we found where we'd gone off the road.

It was after the fishing flare-up that my wife and I sat down together to examine the situation.

USE DEPENDABLE

CHAMPION

Spark Plugs

BE A CHAMPION DRIVER

. . . Good Spark Plugs are the Key to More Power!

Airline pilots know that the ability to get maximum engine power at a given moment is the greatest single safety factor they have. That's why 95% of the airlines fly with Champions!

Maximum engine power for passing is also a safety factor in driving. If your car lacks power, take American Airlines' word for it and install new Champion Spark Plugs.

"AMERICAN AIRLINES requires spark plugs that give maximum power, economy and dependability. Naturally, then, dependable Champion Spark Plugs are the approved standard for our fleet."

Is your child's future worth a Wurlitzer Piano?

Character building begins in boyhood

Of course you see that your son gets off to school on time, that he keeps up with his homework, and that he gets reasonably good grades. But your plans for him never stop there. You want—oh, how you want—him to learn all the finer things that can help him most in life.

A Wurlitzer Piano and a chance to play it now can be an important part of his training for success.

In their mastery of music, children acquire self-discipline, self-assurance, poise—and more. Their ability to create happiness through music can bring lasting, lifetime rewards.

A Wurlitzer can give your child a better chance in life

Wurlitzer Piano Model 2300. Available in mahogany, walnut, maple, and blond mahogany.

And Wurlitzer Pianos are favorably priced

Wurlitzer Pianos are famous for fine construction, splendid tone and stamina. Famous for values, too. And today, these values are greater than ever. This is made possible by a very simple fact: More people buy Wurlitzer Pianos than those of any other name.

Wurlitzer is famous not only for fine pianos but for the finest in electronic organs, too. Among these is a remarkable new instrument for the home. Easy to install. Easy to play

WIRES CONCEALED... BEAUTY REVEALED

As your background for living, you'll want the walls of your home to look their best. And they will, if you plan a disappearing act for telephone wires. All it takes is a little arranging before you build or remodel.

Simply mark on your floor plans the places where you'll want telephones—now and in the future. Then your architect or builder will see that pipes are placed inside the walls to carry telephone wires to these spots. Later, as telephones are installed, wires run through these pipes or raceways will be hidden from view.

How much is your home worth?

Think you know? If you do, you may save yourself real money on your income tax return when you eventually sell it

By Stephen B. Vreeland

If you ever sell your home—and chances are good you will, sometime—you'll then find yourself smack up against the federal income tax laws. That could hurt, too. But it needn't.

Under existing laws, if you sell your home at a loss, you can't deduct that loss from your taxable income (unless you used your home in your business—which most of us don't). But if you sell at a profit, you must add that profit to the other incomes reported on your tax return. It becomes rather important, then, to know whether you're a loser or a profiter.

Your profit is the difference between what you get for your house and what is called the "cost basis" of it. You'll know the first figure, obviously. But you may be way low on the second—and that's where the chart below comes in. It will enable you to keep a permanent, accurate record of your home's cost basis.

The cost basis is generally much more than just the original purchase price. You start with that, sure, but you can also legally add:

1. Expenses connected with the original purchase: attorney's fees, costs of title search and policy, appraisal fee, financing costs, cost of survey, and so on.

2. Expenses involved in selling the house: The agent's commission, advertising costs, abstract fee, recording fee, and so on.

3. Capital expenditures: These are expenditures for alterations, improvements, or additions which prolong the life of your property, increase its value, or fit it for a different use.

New African-violet climbs and creeps

A big, fast-growing African-violet strikingly different from ordinary kinds is sure to be a big hit among the fanciers of this popular plant

By Dr. Eran Roberts

Photograph: Harvey Cox

The new plant can be used as a climbing house plant like philodendron and ivy vines. A good way to train one is to let it grow upward on a wire-type pole frame. The wire pole helps the plant grow upright: side branches grow out between the cross wires. It also may be grown in a hanging basket

Brian Perkins

Recently brought from Africa, the new species, Saintpaulia grotei, has a brown, creeping stem which grows up to 2 feet the first year, leaf stems up to 10 inches long, and leaves up to 4 inches across with small pockets between veins. Light blue flowers shade to deep violet at centers. A limited supply will be available this spring

Storage-unit entrance halls

By Elaine Hadley

Here are ideas for screening off part of a room. Perhaps your front door opens right into your living room, and you'd like to separate the two some way. A partial wall may be just the answer you're looking for. Build it in and use it as a planter, a storage wall for books and games, a place to display your hobby, even as a place to house a radio-phonograph.

This planter partition in the Thomas Yedor home is shaped like a T. One side of the T forms the front entrance hall. On the other side is the dining area. The top of the T faces the living room. The Yedors store their card tables and folding chairs inside the end of the storage partition. Designed by Mort Helper

A conversation piece just inside the f[ront] door is this modern, projecting case w[hich] forms the entrance hall in the Grant H[ol]win home. Glass doors protect hobby [col]lection from dust. The case not only se[rves] the entrance, it helps form the music c[orner] and provides storage space for Bald[win] books and sheet music. Architects: G[eorge] Vernon Russell, Eduardo Jose Sama[ngo].

CRISCO'S DOUBLE-TREAT CAKE

(Makes two 8" layers and 8 to 10 cup cakes*)

Follow directions carefully, be sure to use Crisco, and we promise you a lighter, richer, moister, more tender cake. The Crisco Quick Method cake recipe is different—that's why it's sure-fire!

All Measurements Level. Measure into bowl:

2½ cups sifted cake flour • 1⅔ cups sugar
¾ cup milk • ⅔ cup Crisco • 1 teaspoon salt

Blend by hand or with mixer (medium speed) for 2 minutes. Stir in:

4½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder

Now add: ½ cup milk • 5 egg whites • 1 tsp. vanilla

Blend by hand or with mixer (medium speed) for 2 mins. Half fill two 8" (1¼" deep) layer pans rubbed with Crisco, lined with heavy waxed paper. Bake remaining batter in cup cake pans rubbed with Crisco and dusted with flour. Bake all cakes in moderate oven (360°F.); layer cakes about 30 mins., cup cakes about 20 mins. Cool cakes in pans on racks for 15 mins. before removing. Loosen edges from pans with spatula. Place racks over cakes and pans; invert. Cool and frost.

If you prefer, bake batter in two deep 9" pans (1½" deep).*

With single-acting baking powder, use 5½ teaspoons.*

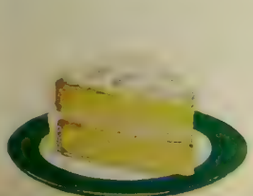
CREAMY ICING

½ cup Crisco • ½ tsp. salt • 1 tsp. vanilla
6½ cups sifted confectioners sugar • ¾ cup milk

Blend Crisco, salt and vanilla. Add sugar and milk alternately. Beat until creamy. To ⅔ of this amount blend in 3 squares of melted chocolate and ice between layers and sides and top of cake. Divide the remaining amount of icing into three parts. With vegetable coloring, tint yellow, green and pink. Ice cup cakes on sides and tops.

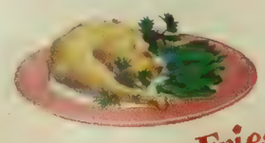
BIGGER, BETTER CRISCO COOK BOOK gives you 112 pages of exciting new recipes, lots of full-color pictures. Send 25¢ in coin and a Crisco label any size, for New Recipes for Good Eating. Mail to Crisco, Dept. M, Box 837, Cincinnati 1, Ohio. Offer good in Continental U. S. and Hawaii.

It's lighter! It's richer! It's made with Crisco!



Look! You get a rich, velvety family cake—plus almost a dozen party cakes—from just one recipe! And you get them oh, so easily—with Crisco!

For blended into every spoonful of pure, all-vegetable Crisco is a cake-baking secret no other type of shortening has. And Crisco's Quick Method cake recipe given above is built around that secret. The result? A lighter, richer, moister, more tender cake than you'll get with any other type of shortening or any ordinary recipe!



The Crisco way is quick—only 4 minutes' mixing! Easy! No eggs to beat, no creaming—and only one bowl needed. Yet with it you're sure of light, fine-textured cakes you're proud to say are yours!

So bake yourself a light 'n' luscious Crisco cake real soon. Use your favorite recipe—or Crisco's wonderful work-saving Quick Cake method. You'll find pure, creamy Crisco makes any cake a better cake! And you'll see for yourself why more women bake with Crisco than any other brand of shortening!

Two rooms—

One television set

Television a problem? Do the children want to watch cowboys and cartoons while you're entertaining guests in the living room? Or you're in the living room when your favorite program comes on—and the set is in the study. Your set can't be in every room at once, but here's an arrangement for making it serve you in two rooms, at least. The solution is as simple as a turntable between the rooms.

Photographs: Suter, Hedrich-Blessing

In the living room, Architect Henry Newhouse removed one bookcase and placed the television set on a turntable. You can see it from any seat in the room. It can be turned to face the study, too. The cupboard doors can be closed when set is being used in the study

In the study, children watch their favorites while you play bridge or sit in the living room. Arrangement gives your set double use, without taking any floor space. Decorators: Lubliner and Himmel

STIR-N-ROLL Pastry (DOUBLE CRUST)

Preheat oven to 425°.

1. Mix together.....2 cups sifted GOLD MEDAL Flour
1½ tsp. salt

Pour into a measuring cup (but don't stir)... ½ cup Wesson Oil, ¼ cup cold milk

Then pour all at once into flour.

2. Stir lightly until mixed. Round up dough ...divide in halves. Flatten each half slightly.

3. Place one half between 2 sheets of waxed paper (12-in. square). Roll out gently until circle reaches edges of paper. If bottom paper wrinkles, turn, roll on other side. Peel off top paper. If dough breaks, mend without moistening by pressing edges together.

4. Lift paper and pastry by top corners; they will cling together. Place (paper side up) in 8 or 9-in. pie pan. Peel off paper. Gently ease pastry into pan. Trim even with rim.

TOP CRUST: Roll as above and place over filling. Trim to rim. Seal by pressing gently with fork or by fluting edge. Snip 3 or 4 small slits near center. Bake about 40 minutes, until golden brown and the juice bubbles through the slits, in hot oven (425°).

IMPORTANT! For one-crust pie shell, make half the recipe. Place rolled dough in pan. Prick thoroughly with fork. Bake in very hot oven (475°) 8 to 10 min.

*If you use Gold Medal Self-Rising Flour (sold in parts of the South) omit salt and reduce baking temperature 50°. Bake double-crust pie about 10 minutes longer.

STIR-N-ROLL Biscuits

You can make 3 kinds of biscuits with this same recipe

Crusty, thin ROLLED BISCUITS
Light, fluffy PATTED BISCUITS
Crispy, golden brown DROPPED BISCUITS

Preheat oven to 475°.

Sift together..... 2 cups sifted GOLD MEDAL Flour
*3 tsp. double-action baking powder
*1 tsp. salt

Pour into a measuring cup (but don't stir together)..... ⅓ cup Wesson Oil, ⅔ cup milk

Then pour all at once into the flour.

Stir with a fork until mixture cleans sides of bowl and rounds up into a ball. For drop biscuits: drop dough onto ungreased cooky sheet. For rolled or patted biscuits: smooth up dough by kneading about 10 times without additional flour. With the dough on waxed paper, press out ¼-in. thick with hands, or roll out between waxed papers. For a thicker biscuit, roll dough ½-in. thick. Cut with unfloured biscuit cutter. Bake 10 to 12 minutes on ungreased cooky sheet in very hot oven (475°). Makes about 20 medium biscuits.

NOTE:

1. For buttermilk biscuits, use 2 tsp. double-action baking powder and ¼ tsp. soda. 2. If you are doubling or tripling the recipe, measure oil and milk into a bowl; then pour all at once into the flour.

New raspberry isn't red

Newest of fruits is Amber, a red raspberry that isn't red, but a beautiful golden orange.

I tasted this luscious fruit at the New York State Experiment Station last year, and it has all the quality of a high-grade red raspberry except for color. Propagating stock went out to several commercial nurseries in 1950. Plants should be available to the public this fall or the spring of 1952.

Milk-fed petunias

According to recent accounts, petunias fed with milk are bigger, better, brighter, and last longer.

Actually, milk is a fair nitrogen fertilizer, but far too costly for the average homeowner to use. It would take about a ton of milk to contain enough nitrogen to equal the amount of that element in a 100-pound bag of 10-8-6 fertilizer.

If skim milk can be had for practically nothing, it's worth applying to the compost heap, where it aids bacterial breakdown of plant wastes.

How to grow super onions

A hint for those who want to win the biggest onion class at fairs or flower shows: Super onions should be possible by growing them inside in warm temperatures when nights are long.

The difference between a big onion and a small one reports Dr. R. H. Roberts of the University of Wisconsin, is largely the effect of more flower buds inside the bulb of the bigger onion. The larger the onion the more seed stalks it will produce.

These stalks fail to grow in warm temperatures in short days, while the onion continues to enlarge.

Good news for the gardener

An all-purpose insect killer and cure for plant diseases may soon be a reality.

Scientists now are testing a new chemical which may prove to be a universal control. But they aren't ready yet to talk much about its many uses.

It was produced originally as a killer of the hig resistant redspider-mites that developed with use DDT. It also cleaned up fungus diseases and acted a general plant stimulant. Studies in 1950 showe to be the best control for fungus diseases, one wh did not cause more injury than the disease itself, a killer of red mites not destroyed by Parathion.

The new chemical does not belong to the grou highly dangerous phosphate compounds, as do n

"It's What's Under the Casing that Counts"

of the newer insecticides. Its possible effects on men and animals are being checked, and the material may not be ready to market until 1952.

Bugs fight back

A highly disturbing turn in insects' war on man is development of resistant strains which can't be killed by potent modern insecticides.

Latest pest to develop resistance is the beetle that carries the Dutch elm disease organism. Until now, DDT has been the only low-cost, generally available weapon to use against this disease. But counts of larvae hibernating in bark of elm trees after last summer's spraying showed the highest number of survivors since discovery of DDT. Late tests with chemicals do not seem to have borne out early promises of a material that would cure sick elms if applied to the soil around them. Equally disturbing is the increase of red spiders that can't be poisoned by highly toxic Parathion.

Insects, which produce several generations a summer, can quickly build up a new race from one or two survivors. Man, with only one generation in more than half a century, must match wits against insects' quick evolution to meet new situations.

Old better than new

Recently I rode around the world's largest evergreen nursery with one of its top executives. When asked how he kept his stock so clean and free of red spider, he said. "We've tried everything, but always go back to 24 ounces of nicotine sulfate in a gallon of molasses to 100 gallons of water. It doesn't wash off with the first rain, and it kills red spider!"

New better than old

At a meeting of the American Society for Horticultural Science, Dr. V. N. Lambeth of the University of Missouri reported that Fordhook 242 Lima bean is superior to the older Fordhook variety because it will set more pods in cool weather.

Where Fordhook 242 set 91 percent of its blossoms at 62 degrees, the older regular Fordhook set only 3 percent. And Fordhook 242 is more tolerant of wet soils. At higher temperatures up to 90 degrees, there is little difference between the two.

Speaking of shortcake

Here's news for those who want strawberries spring, summer, and fall.

Red Rich, a new everbearing variety from Minnesota has as good quality in October as in June. Old kinds lack sweetness in late fall, perhaps due to lack of sunshine. And late fall is when berries are most welcome. Plants of the new strawberry seem healthy and vigorous, although runner production is not as great as some of the older everbearers.

Strawberry growers who live in areas where red stele root rot destroys strawberries will be interested in a new variety, Vermillion, developed by Dr. A. S. Colby at the University of Illinois.

Not only is Vermillion resistant to red stele disease, but it also resists leaf spot, leaf scorch, and leaf blight. The plants I saw at Illinois were about the most beautiful strawberries I've ever seen. Plants won't be available until sometime in 1952.

BEFORE: They are a problem, aren't they? ... those walls with cracks and blemishes. You'd like to redecorate them. But no ordinary paint can hide the flaws. And replastering is so expensive, so messy, you wonder if it's worth it.

AFTER: The walls of the new-looking room shown below were resurfaced and redecorated with one coat of Seafoam Green Dramex. The cost of the Dramex used was only $6.40. Dramex is smart ... and so inexpensive to use.

New Walls for Old Without Replastering

Do you have cracked walls that need redecorating? ... a room of unfinished wallboard you'd like to make look like lovely plaster? Then you'll welcome an amazing new product called DRAMEX. One coat of DRAMEX colors like paint—resurfaces like plaster. You can literally brush on beautiful new walls!

Now there is a simple way of changing old walls for new ones —without replastering. It's a wonderful, new—and—different product called DRAMEX Interior Finish. Dramex fills cracks and nail holes—hides all blemishes—as it colors. One coat gives you new wall surfaces ... plaster-hard, beautifully colored and finished. You can use any of the lovely colors shown below—or intermix colors to create your own smart shade.

Dramex—perfected by the makers of Bondex, the world's largest-selling cement paint—is also ideal for finishing wallboard rooms. Contractors are using it in fine new homes. Just tape and seal the joints—apply Dramex—and, presto, you have lovely "living room" walls. No cracks or blemishes! No tape marks showing through. Dramex mixes easily with water—dries in four hours—has no paint-y odor. It's actually fun to use, easy to use, practical to use.

WHERE CAN YOU BUY DRAMEX?

Dramex is available at better paint dealers everywhere. For the name and address of your nearest Dramex dealer ... PHONE ANY WESTERN UNION OFFICE ANYWHERE IN THE U. S. A. (by number) and ask for "OPERATOR 25." In Canada, write The Reardon Co., Ltd., Montreal.

BRUCE BLOCK FLOOR gives you fresh, modern beauty in lifetime oak. Install over concrete or wood.

▪ In today's smart new homes you see a decided preference for materials that are natural in texture, natural in color, natural in design. So it's not surprising to find Bruce Hardwood Floors one of the most popular ingredients in modern room decoration.

Patterned by nature with distinctive grain and mellow coloring, these floors set the stage for any furniture, fabric, or wall treatment. Their handsome designs, as pictured here, are in harmony with all architectural styles.

Because they are solid oak with a superb factory-applied finish, your Bruce Hardwood Floors are easily maintained—and will still be lovely when great grandchildren grow up.

When you build or remodel ask your architect, builder or lumber dealer about these naturally beautiful floors. For new booklets with color photographs write E. L. BRUCE CO., BOX 397-A, MEMPHIS 1, TENNESSEE.

Force bloom on cut branches

Q How can I force cut branches of shrubs and trees into bloom indoors? K. L. K., Michigan

Now is a good time to cut branches from plum, cherry, pussywillow, forsythia, spirea, and almost any woody, flowering shrub, to force them into bloom. The nearer to spring you cut them, the more quickly they'll burst into flower. Pick a day when temperature is above freezing.

Start with basic cut, shown here with forsythia. On either a tree or shrub, cut back to a side branch, and never leave unsightly stubs. Always select twigs with lots of buds

How we retired with $250 a month

WE'RE having a wonderful time, Betty and I. We're doing all the things we've dreamed of doing. We're really living. Summers, we pack the car and take trips. And it's all thanks to a check for $250 that comes by mail, regular as clockwork, every month!

The neighbors think we're rich. Few guess the truth. Actually, almost anyone can provide the regular income we have—if he starts young enough.

Luckily for me, I was about forty when Betty began to worry about our future. "You're going to want to slow up in a few years," she'd say, "You won't always want to work." And I'd laugh. Because I felt fine. "I still have twenty good earning years ahead of me," I'd answer.

But one day she stopped me. She asked me how much I'd earn in the next twenty years—not counting raises. I did some quick arithmetic, multiplying my salary by 20. It ran up into six figures! I gave her the answer, and grinned.

Betty wasn't impressed. "How much of that do you think we'll save?" she asked. I had to be honest. We were spenders. "A thousand or two," I admitted.

"That's just our trouble," she said. "We can't seem to save. That's why you ought to get one of those retirement income plans. And now."

I could see that Betty was right. Most of what I'd earn in the next 20 years would go—as it always did—unless I made some systematic plan for our future then and there. So I looked into the subject and discovered the Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plan.

It was a way I could make part of my salary now buy me a retirement income later. All I needed was to start in time.

With a Phoenix Mutual Plan, I could get a check for $250 a month for life, starting in 20 years, when I reached 60.

Betty and I were both mighty happy the day I applied and qualified for my Phoenix Mutual Plan. Right away it gave us a feeling of security. But the big day came, twenty years later, when our first Phoenix Mutual monthly check for $250 arrived in the mail. I retired. Now Betty and I are having the time of our lives—with no money worries.

Good builders like to show new houses while they are still under construction. That way, they can point out important features that will later be covered up. This house, for example, will be stronger and more comfortable to live in because the walls are built with Armstrong's Temlok® Sheathing.

Temlok Sheathing is an unusually strong building material made of wood fibers formed together into large sheets. Besides making the whole structure strong and tight, Temlok adds valuable insulation. In winter, that means substantial fuel savings and extra comfort. In summer, the house will be cooler.

Armstrong's Temlok Sheathing not only builds and insulates at the same time, but it does both jobs at the cost of one material alone. Temlok saves money by saving time. Many builders cover a whole house in one day. It's such an easy material to work with that it saves days of expensive labor. There is little or no waste in cutting.

If you're in the market for a house, be sure to ask your builder or lumber dealer for the full details about Armstrong's Temlok Sheathing. You'll find it's the practical way to build.

Chimney-cleaning brush can be pushed up the chimney from your fireplace or basement. As it goes up, it is in the collapsed position. As you pull it down, the steel blades open like an umbrella to clean soot and dirt from the walls of the chimney. Available in two sizes, one for lined chimneys and pipes up to 7", another for larger chimneys. Collapso Chimney-cleaning Brush, $4.95, in stores. Includes a 40-foot steel push rod. Flour City Brush Co., 301 Fifth Ave. South, Minneapolis, Minn.

Grip holder for handles of heavy household equipment such as mops, brooms, or garden rakes and hoes, attaches to door, wall, woodwork, or 2x4. Grooved hard-rubber gripper swings down to pull tight against handle and swings up easily, releasing handle. Handle is held in place by its own weight. Holder won't mar or scratch handles. Hand-L-Hold, 29c, in stores. The Bassick Co., 437 Howard Ave., Bridgeport 2, Conn.

Alarm clock goes off automatically every morning without your having to reset it. Once you have it set to wake you at the right time each morning, you turn it off when it rings, and the lever automatically switches into position to ring again the next morning. Or can be reset for a different hour. Everset electric 24-hour automatic alarm clock, $8.95, plus tax, in stores. Telechron Inc., Homer Ave., Ashland, Mass.

Lenses in wide-vision binocular are especially made to cut out glare from footlights and field lights, to outline objects clearly on hazy days. Rectangular shape reduces distortion at top and bottom of image, gives a wider field of view. Three-power Brilliant Binocular $14.95, with case, plus federal tax, in stores. Four jewel tones: pearl, gold, gray, tortoise shell. Wide Vision Optics, Inc., 646 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago 11, Ill.

Songs from American folklore offer children an irresistible invitation to act out the words and the story, dance, or play the tune on rhythm instruments. Possible rhythm activities are noted for each song, along with ways to draw children into the actions suggested by words and melody. Songs to Grow On, $2.95, in stores or plus postage from manufacturer. Edward B. Marks Music Corp., RCA Bldg., Radio City, New York, N.Y.

Bubble level attaches to any electric hand drill, makes it easy to drill absolutely true holes horizontally, vertically, or at any angle, merely by watching the bubble. Bubble level is mounted in a slotted holder with a hand-set screw, and can be set at any angle up to 90 degrees. Can also be used on electric and pneumatic drilling machines. Midget Ken-Drill Level, $5, in stores. Singer Kennedy Corp., 21 E. Van Buren St., Chicago 5, Ill.

How to run your country acres without their running you

If work threatens to crowd fun out of your life, perhaps a McCormick Farmall Cub tractor can help in your pursuit of happiness. It can save hours of your time, and save your energy, too.

You don't wrestle a Farmall Cub... you ride it. You sit at ease while you plow, harrow, plant, cultivate, mow, and do the dozens of other power jobs your country place requires. No tugging at heavy levers... hydraulic Touch-Control raises and lowers implements with fingertip ease. Yes, driving a Cub is so much fun that everyone will want to do it... leaving you free to slip off to the golf club or to your favorite fishing waters.

Ask your nearby International Harvester dealer today to show you how a Farmall Cub can make your country life more fun and less work.

ding drives, removing snow, moving and ·ling earth, cleaning stable yards . . . these s that are usually backbreakers are easy n a Farmall Cub and a McCormick grading le. And remember—twice as many people buy Farmall Cubs as any other one-plow tractor . . . because the Cub has more big-tractor features. Made in cost-saving large quantities, the Cub is actually priced lower than any comparable tractor. It gives you more, for less.

Hauling is another job at which a Farmall Cub will save you hours and backaches. Your Cub can provide belt power, too, for grinding or mixing feed, shelling corn, mixing cement, and sawing your winter supply of firewood.

Mowing 1½ acres an hour is easy with a Farmall Cub equipped with a McCormick five-foot mower—easy even when the growth is heavy. You can mow your lawn with a Cub, too, pulling gang mowers.

Plowing gets done at the right time when you own a Farmall Cub. No missing the season while you wait for a custom plowman. You can plow 3 to 3½ acres a day, then disk a fine seedbed even faster.

The best side trip we ever took

By C. C. Meeden
Baltimore, Maryland

We hadn't planned it that way. It all happened because of a road sign near Springfield, Illinois. The sign read "Lincoln's Tomb."

Cramped in the back seat as we actually entered Springfield, our children were quite ready to take me up when I casually suggested visiting a tomb. They raced over the lawn that surrounds the beautiful Lincoln Monument, but after they once entered the door, there was something about the place that made them walk softly.

We progressed slowly through the memorial and viewed each of the statuettes which give the visitor an index to the life of Lincoln. The inscriptions, which we sometimes read aloud, helped us feel something of the burden he had to bear.

Finally, as we joined hands and faced the beautiful stone sarcophagus with its simple inscription, "Abraham Lincoln, 1809-1865," I suddenly found it difficult to swallow. All I had read and thought and felt about Lincoln and the Lincoln Tomb seemed centered there. And the oppressions of the present world intruded, too.

Back in the car, the next several hours were punctuated by the children's questions: "Why was Lincoln's face so sad?" " 'Now he belongs to the ages'—what does that mean?" "If Lincoln was such a good man, why did somebody kill him?" "Did people really buy and sell slaves?" Thus our detour proved a lesson in history, civics, geography, and sociology all in one.

By Mrs. Louis A. Grimm
Wauneta, Nebraska

Traveling east across southern Indiana, northeast of Evansville, we happened to enter Nancy Hanks Lincoln Memorial Park on the morning of the Fourth of July.

It seemed especially fitting that on a national holiday we should come upon a shrine of one of our greatest national figures, the mother of Abraham Lincoln. It was a joy to wander leisurely along the natural pathways. Little black squirrels darted across our path and scampered into the trees, scolding at us and looking down with beady, black eyes from a safe distance. Birds twittered and sang in the soft morning stillness. We came upon the grave of Nancy Hanks Lincoln surrounded by an iron fence and covered with shining laurel. A great oak tree stands sentinel over the grave, and a rustic bench is conveniently placed for rest and reverie.

Along another path we came upon the foundation and hearthstones of the cabin in which Nancy Hanks Lincoln died. We could sense the loneliness and despair of young Abe as his mother was taken from him and could almost hear the ring of his ax in the forest.

Farther along, there is a memorial depicting in stone great events in Lincoln's life. Here, in a little chapel called "Abraham Lincoln's Hall," marriages, funerals, and patriotic services are held. You can stay and picnic in another portion of this lovely park: swimming and boating are available.

The only sure way to get the home you want

By Martha B. Darbyshire and James M. Liston

Despite the wide variety of materials and colors available today, there is a certain deadly similarity in the furnishings and decoration of many American homes.

A dark green living room in Chicago looks like a dark green living room in Los Angeles which looks like a dark green living room in Boston. That's not to say that dark green or Chinese Modern or Traditional are responsible for the present state of things, any more than it is fair to blame tan for the timid tan era of the Twenties.

There's bound to be a lot of duplication in an age of mass production, but the real reason why there is so much similarity in home decoration today is not because people choose what they choose, but why they choose it. Too many homeowners select what they do because it's the "correct" thing, or because they have seen the same thing well handled in someone else's home. Too often people's choice of furnishings is unduly influenced by what other people are doing and by an exaggerated notion of the importance of being "correct."

Better Homes & Gardens receives hundreds of requests every week for specific instructions on how to decorate a room, and how to arrange the furniture. What most people are asking for is a specific formula that applies to a particular room. What they really lack is a set of principles—fundamentals from which they can deduce almost instinctively what is best suited for their family and their way of living.

The difference between a formula and a principle is quite simple. For example, you give your child a direction—or a formula—for a specific action, such as: "Give Johnnie a piece of candy." The principle you're trying to get across is: Be generous. You tell a child, "Don't go near the street." The principle you hope he'll grasp is: Don't do anything that will endanger your life. As the child grows, he learns that that principle can be applied to hundreds of particular situations his parents never even thought of.

You don't create a charming corner like this with the spoils of an afternoon's shopping spree. It requires care and an eye for the total effect of the room

Get the home you want

Begins on preceding page

This whole business of furnishing and decorating a home isn't so complicated that it can't be reduced to basic principles, from which the solution of any particular problem can be worked out quite simply.

For example: If you operate on the theory that the purpose of a home is to provide a haven of comfort and beauty for your family and your friends, then everything you do should contribute toward that end.

You'll be tempted to take ideas from the Early American home you find illustrated here. We could hardly blame you for that, but our real purpose in showing the home of the Godfrey Bells of West Los Angeles is to prove that this business of operating on principle instead of formula is not without its reward.

This home looks the way it does because that's the way the people who live in it want it to look. This house has "personality" because it reflects the personal tastes and activities of the people who live in it. This home has interest and excitement and warmth, and it packs a terrific emotional appeal. You don't get that from a formula or a bagful of decorating tricks. You get it only by knowing where you're going and then [Turn to page 146

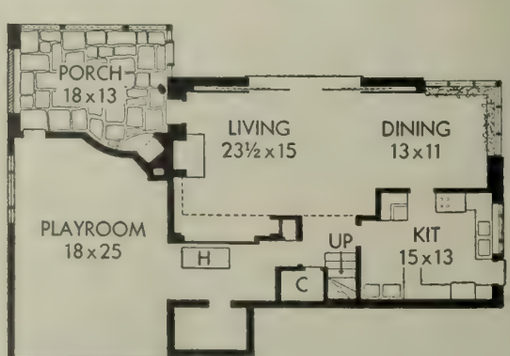
There's no better building site than a sloping lot. Whatever you want your house to do for you, it can usually do it better on an uneven lot, than on an absolutely level lot.

Architect Louis Gelders knew that, and converted knowledge into reality when he built his own home in Wilton, Connecticut.



Actually the house is butted into a bank, so that on the rear and sides the house is two stories high, but on the street side is a pleasantly low, one-story building. Here the Gelders have the advantages of a two-story house—bedrooms well above ground, complete separation of living and sleeping areas, but also retain the advantages of a one-story house—ground-level access for all rooms.

There's another advantage, too. The bank and steps are a physical barrier that keep children and animals from destroying the privacy of the garden.

ROSES-
what they can do for you

Growing roses pays handsomely. Have you had your bonuses?

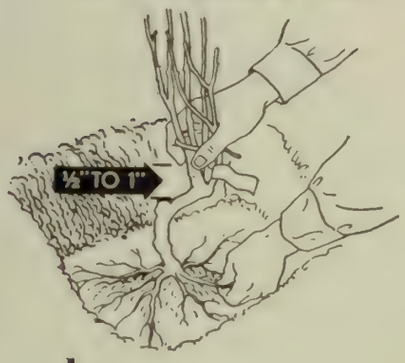
By Fleeta Brownell Woodroffe

You have some deeply satisfying thrills ahead whenever you decide to grow roses. It won't be just the blooms, lovely as they are, that will reward you.

From the moment you decide to order your plants, you'll have an inner elation. You'll be dealing in quality, peak quality—and the man next door and everybody else recognizes it.

No rose just pops out and is gone in a day. Each new shoot, be it topped by one perfect bud or a whole cluster, is almost as handsome as the flowers themselves. You have Acts I and II as it lengthens.

Then . . . the rose itself, helped along by the food and water you've provided, opens slowly to perfect form—tops among all the flowers in your garden.



And this goes on all summer!

Early spring—soon—is the time to get started. There are more than a dozen good and different ways you can grow roses around your home. You can have the color or colors you like best—literally.

If you like, you can grow roses to wear, roses to cut and show, and roses to dress up your place, all in a single bed.

A beginner with roses can have a wonderful time his first season—if he follows directions. Plant climbing roses for later glory, but plenty of hybrid teas for long stems, beautiful [Turn to page 211

Select spot where rose will get sun for at least half the day. Dig hole 12 to 15 inches deep and 18 across. Form cone of soil as rest for point where the roots spread. Then pull the graft knob up to level shown

Cover roots with topsoil and fill hole to near original level. Flood with water. As water sinks away, pull up on bush so knob of graft is no deeper than shown if you garden in North, above soil in South

Never tramp wet soil; let water pull it tightly about roots. Before leveling bed with dry soil, cut back to 8 inches stems not pruned by nurseryman. Make smooth cuts ¼ inch above out-facing buds

Fine details mean a fine house

By Mort Reed, Jr.

Often, all it takes to make a good house out of a mediocre one is a single unusual idea, well executed. Maybe a new wrinkle somewhere is all your old house needs.

Here is a group of miscellaneous eye-catchers that make people talk about the houses which have them. None is expensive; all combine beauty and practicality.

Here's storage space in profusion — and you can get at every inch of it. In the wall supporting the roof of the R. W. Oakes' carport, Abe Grossman designed flush-doored storage space, then trimmed it in white

"Looks like our family's completely deadlocked on where to take a vacation this year," my young neighbor said the other day. "I swore I was going to get in a little fishing this year—some place uncrowded and unspoiled. And I'd like to get a good long look at the ocean while I'm there.

"But my wife takes a vacation for the scenery. She wants mountains. The kids—they want to see Indians and go boating on some wilderness lake.

"See what I mean? How can an ordinary family like us take that many vacations?"

I couldn't help grinning. "You can do all that in one two-week vacation," I told him. "You'll find all the things you and your family are talking about, in the Pacific Northwest—and a few more besides.

"Fishing? You can't beat the thrill of landing a king salmon in Puget Sound. Or you can take your choice of fast mountain streams teeming with trout of several kinds. If you like salt water, there are busy seaports, long beaches, and the finest coastline drive in the world. Some of the worlds' most interesting ships, too.

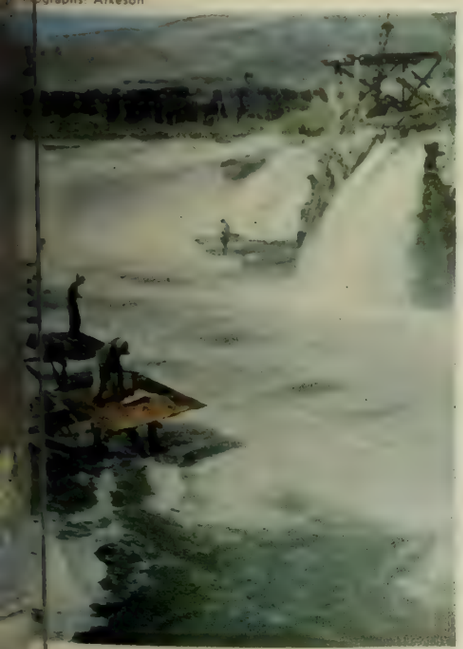
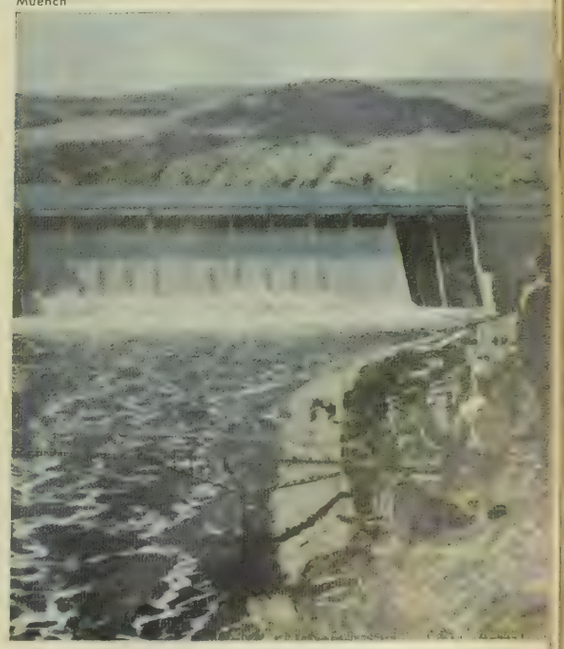
Fifth and sixth days: Escape by seascape. Anywhere along 400 miles of surfside highway, Oregon makes some of the world's finest coastline yours for the stopping at more than a dozen state parks. And you'll love it!



Ninth day: No other highway in the world gives you 11 big waterfalls in 11 miles and so close to the road. Horsetail Falls (above) is not as high as better-known Multnomah, but rivals it for beauty. Note sunshine on falling water

Second day: If any mountain has personality, it's glacier-loaded, 14,408-foot Mount Rainier. Its summit, fourth highest in United States, is one of most striking because it rises 11,000 feet from own base. This is the way you see it on road to Yakima Park in northeast corner of Mount Rainier National Park

Photographs: Atkeson



Sixth day: For Indians only! You can't join them on their slippery platforms over the raging Columbia at Celilo Falls. Uncle Sam gave copper-skinned, spray-drenched braves exclusive right to fish here, but just watching them net Chinook salmon is more exciting than a solid week of back-bay fishing. You'll not wait long for a catch!

Seventh and eighth days: Crater Lake's 2,000-foot bottom is America's deepest. You can drive clear around the lake on 35-mile tour guided by National Park Rangers: fish (without a license) for rainbow trout or silver salmon: or explore waters themselves—nation's bluest—on hourly boat trips to Wizard Island or daily motor launch around the lake. A veritable wonderland!

Muench

First day: Bigger than the pyramids, Grand Coulee Dam is greatest thing ever built by man. World's mightiest motors, still under construction, will someday pump water from 151-mile-long Lake Roosevelt, behind the dam, into reservoir that will irrigate half a million acres of desert. Here's a fine lesson in wasteland use!

What's a man's view of good decoration for your home? Robsjohn-Gibbings, well-known decorator and designer, explains an entirely new approach in

How to pull your home together

We are still decorating and furnishing and even building small homes as though they were large ones. We just cannot emancipate our thinking from the big-house psychology. A big house has many big rooms and because they are big, and because they are only used one at a time and not seen simultaneously too often, the rooms of a big house have a different scheme for each room.

In the small house where rooms are used constantly and where every room is seen at one time or other during the day, we still try to break these rooms up into separate decorative entities. It is nonsense, and a hangover from big-house thinking.

Use one color throughout

In a small house, the color used for the paint work, doors, window frames, and walls, should be one color throughout the house, from top to bottom. It should be a neutral color that does not tell the eye the precise limitations of the space enclosed. When you look from one room to the other, very often across a hallway, as one often does in a small house, the vista should be decoratively continuous.

Whatever flooring is used, be it hardwood or carpeting, an attempt should be made to use the same flooring throughout the house, including the kitchen. In the case of carpeting, the tiles in the kitchen should be the same color.

Where shades are used at the windows, they should be the same throughout the house. When draperies are used, one fabric should be chosen, preferably close to the color of the wall and with very little design, if any; and the fabric should be used throughout the house from top to bottom.

Now comes a moot point which is perhaps only a very strong opinion on my part. But be that as it may, I would like to see one good upholstery fabric also used throughout the house—sofas, easy chairs, dining-room chairs, bedspreads, bedroom chairs—all the same fabric.

As far as the furniture is concerned, the same principle goes marching on. Do not have different kinds of woods. Select one wood for all furniture of the house.

Accessories are important

And finally to accessories. If you like glass, use it all over the house—glass ash trays, glass cigarette boxes, glass vases, glass candlesticks, and so on. If you like silver, use silver the same way—or brass, or wood. Wood would be charming in cigarette boxes, metal-lined bowls for flowers, wooden candlesticks, et cetera. For lighting fixtures, again the same principle. Try to make the table lamps and the standing lamps synonymous throughout the house.

What about monotony?

The question, of course, is: What about monotony? There need be no monotony in such a small house as I have described. There can be odd pillows of bright colors, bowls of flowers, bowls of leaves, an occasional picture, and, above all, the color of the clothes of the inhabitants.

In such a house, women would find that their color sense would grow by leaps and bounds, for they would see the colors of flowers, pictures, and their dresses in all their true brilliance.

And now a final word on the small-house question: The small house is not an end in itself, and the cult of dinettes instead of dining rooms, sofa beds instead of bedrooms, kitchenettes instead of kitchens, and food counters instead of breakfast rooms can be a deadly one. For these things can become to unthinking people the hallmark of modernity instead of the makeshift which they truly are.

A kitchenette is a fine thing until you can afford a kitchen, and a sofa bed is all right until the day comes when you can afford a bed in a bedroom.

In an economy of plenty, which is the American economy, the cult of accepting less as a mark of modernity or smartness should be discouraged. Don't misunderstand me. A small house is a fine thing, but it's finer still as a steppingstone to a bigger house.

If you've developed a liking for the type of uncluttered room you find illustrated on these pages, it's because men like T. H. Robsjohn-Gibbings have the skill and the courage to interpret modern America's desire for beauty without ostentation. No mere theorist, Robsjohn-Gibbings carries out his ideas in the furniture he designs and the homes he decorates. You'll find evidence of his original thinking in the accompanying article. You'll find proof of his wit, too, in his best-selling books, Good-bye Mr. Chippendale, and Mona Lisa's Mustache.

Blue . . . throughout the house

In a small house, the color used for the paint work, doors, window frames and walls, should be one color throughout the house from top to bottom. It should be a neutral color that does not tell the eye the precise limitations of the space enclosed

One-color house in yellow

When you look from one room to the other, across a hallway, as one often does in a small house, the vista should be decoratively continuous. An attempt should be made to use the same flooring throughout the house. . . . Select one wood for all furniture of the house

Beige tones—and a vista

There need be no monotony. . . . There can be odd pillows of bright colors, bowls of flowers, an occasional picture, and, above all, the color of the clothes of the inhabitants. In such a house, color sense would grow by leaps and bounds

Better Homes & Gardens Five Star Home No. 2102 is

A house you can expand yourself

By John Normile, Architect
Building Editor

"We're going to build an expansible house—one we can add onto later."

This idea is a good one; the trouble is that "later" rarely comes. There's only one good way to build an expansible house: Have the space you're going to expand into enclosed from the beginning.

In that sense, Better Homes & Gardens Five Star Home No. 2102 is expansible. It's small, but has a fair-size living room, fine bedroom, compact kitchen, and a utility room. It also has a double garage.

And in that garage lies the secret of expansibility. Big enough for one car plus the miscellany that must be put somewhere in a small house, the garage has walls in place and insulated, roof on, concrete floor poured. Here's the place, then, to expand into. Yet until you need it for bedrooms, you have this space for storage.

How you divide this garage space is up to you. Plans show the house only in its original stage with a two-car garage. But you can add two bedrooms, and either expand the utility room or add a bath. Since this space is already enclosed, you can do the work yourself in spare time.

Other rooms require no change. The living room is both spacious and comfortably snug at the same time. You could enlarge the apartment-sized kitchen, but you'll find it admirably workable in spite of its size. The bedroom takes a double bed.

A house as small as Five Star Home No. 2102 has advantages. On mild days a fireplace fire will warm the whole house. The furnace that feeds the radiant coils is in the garage, where it can be enclosed when you expand. Water heater, washer, ironer, and dryer all fit in the utility room.

Furniture periods . . . and the part they play

ABCs

OF DECORATING
NO. 2 OF A SERIES

Modern

Modern furniture is specially designed today's homes. Tables are clean-lined a light in scale to make small rooms l larger. End tables fit flush with the arm tailored sofas to make every inch of space count. Light and dark finishes paired up for contrast, and rough-textu upholstery fabrics add interest and formality. Many of today's homema favor Modern because it offers a variety of pieces that do two or more

Traditional

Traditional Eighteenth-Century furniture was designed for the elegant homes of the very wealthy. Today's adaptations are usually simpler, because the carving and inlay that Hepplewhite and Sheraton used are very expensive. But such small changes only make Traditional easier to live with. These fine reproductions still have the glowing mahogany finish, the graceful lines, and all the dignity of the original designs

Provincial →

Early American furniture gives a home an informal charm many people like today. American Provincial was the product of early craftsmen who restricted decoration to such simple carving as you find on this reproduction of a Welsh dresser. They worked with solid maple and pine, so today's reproductions have the same advantage of growing more attractive with time and wear; hence they take kindly to growing families

Photographed at L. S. Ayres and Company, Indianapolis, by Hedrich-Blessing

By Mary L. Brandt

Your home is yours to furnish as you like. o let it express your own tastes and suit our way of life. First step is to find the rniture period you like best.

Recognizing the popular periods will give u a head start when you go shopping. ou'll be able to tell at a glance whether a rtain sofa or bed is what you want for your me. And you'll be better able to judge the fference between good reproductions (like ose on the opposite page) and bad copies.

Knowing which periods fit together will lp you add one or two new pieces to your me. You don't have to stick slavishly to y one period or one finish. As furniture hions changed during the years, the best the old always mixed with the new. You ould look for the finest designs of each riod, though, and let one period and one ish dominate in the room.

Periods aren't hard to recognize. The period names just describe general types of furniture made in certain countries during certain times. A period is a fashion in furniture in the same way that the long skirt of the 1940's was a fashion in dress. A furniture style, on the other hand, is one designer's interpretation of the period. (For example: Traditional is a period. Chippendale is a style of Traditional.)

These pictures show the three most popular furniture periods: Traditional Eighteenth Century, Provincial, and Modern.

Eighteenth Century furniture is generally referred to as Traditional. It was designed in England by such men as Chippendale, Sheraton, and Hepplewhite, and in America by Duncan Phyfe and others. Because it was designed for the wealthy, it has elegance and dignity. Though today's reproductions don't copy all the expensive carving and inlay, they do have the same grace and fine proportion that made Traditional furniture famous. Mahogany first became widely available in 1730, so most original pieces and nearly all the reproductions you find will be made of mahogany. Traditional styles mix with one another and with more elegant Modern.

Provincial furniture includes both French Provincial and Early American. Both were designed by local craftsmen for simple, small-town and farm homes. Though both periods were patterned after more elegant furniture, the craftsmen had neither the time nor the skill for fancy decoration. French Provincial kept some of the curving lines of court styles; Early American was even more rugged and [Turn to page 121

Put it on the first floor

If your house has no basement, shop space on the first floor is a possibility. Even a corner of the utility room will do. Panels like this conceal a bench when it is not in use. Disadvantages: Enough space is costly, it is hard to keep noise and dust from the rest of the house, and you'll probably have to keep the room cleaned up at all times.

Put it in the basement

Best place for your workshop may be your basement. Usually you can find a good-sized area idle. Summer coolness is an asset, once dampness is controlled. Wiring is easily installed. But low pipes and ducts may shrink basement headroom, and the supply of natural light is limited.

How to plan a home workshop

Where can you put a shop? Why is a shop good or bad? What do you need first? Here's where to start on a pleasant, profitable handyman career

By Bob Jones and Hi Sibley

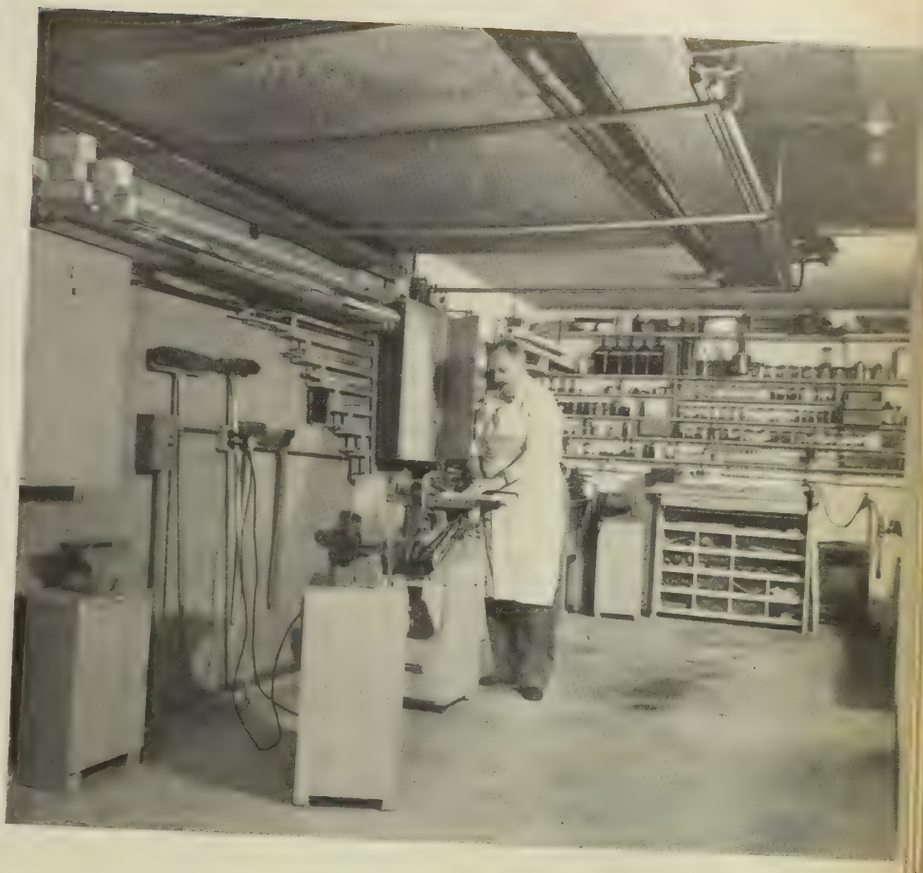
Do you have a really adequate space set aside for making home repairs and improvements? Or does some makeshift arrangement take all of the pleasure out of your handyman projects?

There is nothing more frustrating than trying to work in cramped quarters, without the right tools and equipment. You'll save a lot of valuable time and energy, and do better work, if you stop now to take stock of your home workshop, then make the improvements indicated.

Aside from a separate building designed for shop use, there probably is no perfect workshop space. That is an ideal few handymen achieve. But there are several areas in your home that can be adapted to serve you and your handyman projects very well.

A basement is probably the first choice, as it offers plenty of space and good control of noise and dust. Be sure you can control the humidity, however, and that you can get materials in and out. Other possibilities include your garage or a first-floor utility room. Occasionally workshops are built in attics. But poor accessibility, plus the difficulty of confining noise, makes attic space a last resort.

If you don't have a home workshop, evaluate the various possible locations in your home carefully. The shops pictured here, and the analysis of workshop needs that follows, will help you make your choice.



If you already have a home shop, the qualities of a top-notch shop as outlined here will help you spot means of improving it.

ut it in the garage

other place to consider is your garage: its isolation might be an as-. Bench can be installed along one side. Large door provided for car es ideal accessibility, plus plenty of ventilation in warm weather nch could also be placed at closed end of garage (right) or down the ter of a double garage. Portable equipment lets you make use of center ce. On the debit side, consider need for extra heat and probably insula-n. And you'll have to leave enough clear space for parking your car basic home workshop. First requirement of a home workshop is a solid, well-lighted workbench. This one came secondhand from a woodworking shop, complete with solid-maple top, drawers, and vises, for $35. Or you may want to build your own—see page 230. The hand tools pictured are the first you should acquire; later you can expand your collection

Basic hand tools

With these tools, you can handle most handyman projects. Even if you hope to have power tools someday, you need a good working knowledge of these:

Crosscut saw, 8 or 9 teeth to the inch: keyhole saw for internal cutouts; hack saw for metal; coping saw for curved cuts.

Chisels, 1″, ½″, ¼″; auger bits and drills, 1″ to ¼″; screwdrivers; jackknife.

Wood mallet for use with chisels, claw hammer, ratchet brace, smoothing plane.

Adjustable wrench, pliers, dividers for scribing irregular lines, 6-foot rule.

Carpenter's framing square, try square, 8-inch second-cut mill file, combination oilstone for sharpening, bench brush.

LUNCH —its importance to your family and YOU

ANNE MARSHALL
Director Home Economics
Campbell Soup Company

BY Anne Marshall

Yes, when you stop to think about it, lunch is important, isn't it? Vital, really! Nutrition experts say the lunch you serve can affect your family's very health and happiness. For at lunch you restore the morning's used-up energy; and provide energy for the afternoon's work or play—whether you are man, woman or child!

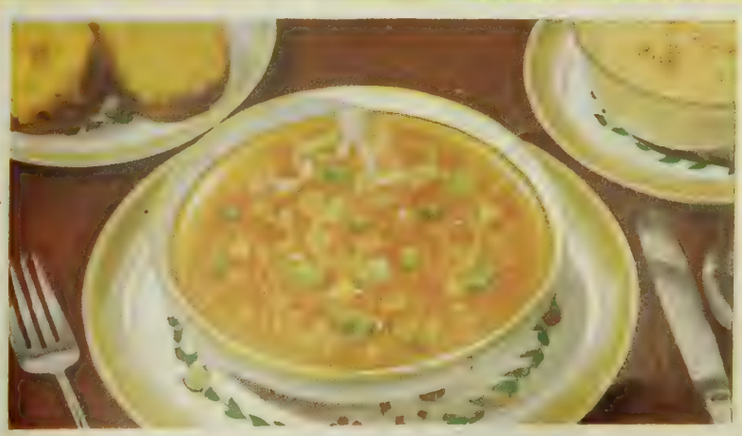
Take your husband. These same experts say every man needs an adequate and well-balanced lunch—for health and energy and to do good work. And your children, too, need one hot dish in every school-day lunch for health and growth—yes, and for good marks, too.

A substantial soup is an ideal main dish for lunch. Good hot soup is so appetizing . . . so easily digested . . . so nourishing and sustaining. Why not try the lunches suggested on this page, for a starter?

Soup, Sandwich and Dessert

A nation-wide survey, to determine types of dishes most frequently enjoyed for family lunches, shows "soup, sandwich and dessert" to be among the favorites. Many different kinds of soup were served—including this delicious whole bean and bacon-flavored soup.

Bean with Bacon Soup
Corned Beef Sandwiches (with chili sauce) Lime Gelatin Coffee or Milk



Soup and Salad

A popular combination of foods at noontime is "soup and salad". In the menu below we include one of the favored soups—cream of celery. You'll find it tasty and nourishing, without being too heavy.

Cream of Celery Soup
Peach and Cottage Cheese Salad
Bread, Butter and Jam Hot Chocolate

Soup and Dessert

(A meatless soup for a meatless meal)

Vote-winning, also, is a lunch consisting of "soup and dessert". For the many people who may prefer a meatless lunch, the menu below features vegetarian vegetable—a soup crammed with luscious garden vegetables.

Meat balls

thrifty and delicious

By Myrna Johnston

Meat balls with spaghetti . . . meat balls with noodles . . . meat balls with rice . . . meat balls in a meat pie . . . with vegetables . . . on picks for appetizers . . . on skewers for a snack-time barbecue. Juicy, brown, tender meat balls. They're a thrifty, easy, rib-sticking main dish you can have for a family dinner or company. They're the kind of hearty food you like to whiff from the kettle when you come into the kitchen on a cold winter night. And they're so downright good to eat.

Perfect cherry pie

Bury the hatchet. . . . That was just one cherry tree that got chopped down. There are cherries plenty—juicy, red, luscious—for a big cherry pie. Hold out your plate. That wedge is for you. Here's crisp, flaky crust deftly crimped; red cherries and juice peeking up through the lattice windows. Not too sweet, no. And not too tart. Cherry pie's so good served just a little warm. And just as is or with a slice of sharp cheese or a scoop of ice cream. And with a pot of coffee right at your elbow.

Over on page 107 you'll find all the answers to a perfect pie. We give you the recipe for an 8-inch pie, or for a 9-incher if that's the size pan you happen to have. You can take your choice of flour, cornstarch, or tapioca for the thickening. And for beautiful red color, simply add a few drops of red food coloring.

You'll find other extra-good cherry recipes in the meals below. A crusty cobbler, a cherry sauce for little ham loaves, a salad, and a cherry cake with swirly frosting.

Chicken Dinner

MAIN DISH	VEGETABLE	SALAD OR ACCOMPANIMENT	DESSERT	NICE TO SERVE
Chicken Fricassee With Rice	Buttered Asparagus	Tossed Green Salad Hot Garlic Loaf	Lattice Cherry Pie*	Cranberry Juice

Pie bakes in hot oven (400°) while you're browning the chicken in the skillet. When pie's done, lower temperature to 300° and let chicken cook slowly for about 1½ hours. Last minute, cook rice and fix asparagus with butter and lemon juice. Garlic Bread: Crush 1 garlic clove; blend with ½ cup butter. Gash loaf; spread with butter. Heat in paper bag 15 to 20 minutes.

Pork for Your Platter

Roast Pork	Scalloped Potatoes Glazed Carrot Sticks	Bing-cherry Salad* Whole-wheat Rolls	Cheese Tray Assorted Crackers	Chilled Pineapple Juice Hot Coffee

Roast bakes at 325° to 350°, takes 30 minutes per pound. Make [illegible] in white sauce for the scallop; pour sauce over sliced potatoes. Bake 1 hour. Cut carrots in sticks; add small amount of water, butter, and brown sugar; cook in oven last half hour. Unmold salads; pour the pineapple juice; call dinner. Dessert can be arranged earlier on tray, all ready to pass with coffee.

The Day You Have Fish

Baked Sole Thermidor	Browned Paprika Potatoes Frenched Green Beans With Onion Rings	Cole Slaw Sour-cream Dressing Rye Bread	Maraschino-cherry Cake*	Tomato-juice Cocktail Hot Coffee

Bake the cake in the morning, so you'll have time to spend on the frosting—make luscious-looking swirls. Add ice cubes to shredded cabbage to make it extra crisp. Drain it thoroughly and add the dressing last minute. You might serve glasses of tomato juice before you call dinner. This keeps people encouraged if they think things are a little slow in the kitchen.

Country Style

Pork Chops With Country Gravy	Buttered Frozen or Canned Peas Whipped Potatoes	Lettuce Wedges Russian Dressing Hot Rolls	Crusty Cherry Cobbler* Ice Cream	Spiced Peaches Hot Coffee

Brown pork chops top of range while you make the cobbler. Use packaged biscuit mix to cut the time. Sprinkle with sugar for sparkly top. Cobbler bakes in hot oven in 30 minutes. Serve it warm—plain or with a big scoop of ice cream if the appetites at your house are pretty husky. Whip potatoes light and fluffy and season with chives. Put a pat of butter on top.

Fill Up the Oven

Ham Cups With Cherry Sauce*	Broccoli With Parmesan Cheese Baked Yams	Crisp Relishes Toasted Rolls	Toasted Coconut Custard Sugar Cookies	Hot Tea

Mix ham loaf and fill muffin cups with the mixture. Bake meat cups, potatoes in slow oven (325°) 1 hour. Bake custard 30 to 40 minutes, or until knife comes out clean. Keep relishes crisp at the table by "sprouting" them from a bowl of crushed ice. Looks pretty, too. Split rolls, brush with butter, and toast in oven. Sprinkle broccoli with Parmesan cheese for easy flavor.

Salads are the sunshine in your meals

By Ida Ruth Miller

Even the staunchest meat 'n' potatoes man will admit that a salad does spark up a meal. Specially in the winter.

There's a glorious array of crisp, colorful, juicy refreshing salads you can make. These are just a sample. With them serve mayonnaise or salad dressing—your own or from your grocer's. The Tropical Banana, top left of next page, has the neat trick of hiding its dressing under a crisp coat of nuts. The Double-ring, below it, is a simple, quick arrangement; but see how pretty it is.

Choose freshest, juiciest fruits; crispest, brightest greens. Arrange them on your prettiest plates. Add dressings whose flavors complement. And you have a beautiful way to brighten up the table, the appetite—even the family spirits. Put plenty of salad sunshine in your meals.

Double-ring

Fruit Petal. The green is crisp, ruffly lettuce. Cut avocado in half lengthwise; remove the seed. Then strip off the skin. Slice fruit lengthwise, and cut each slice in half. Alternate avocado with perfect orange sections. Pass French dressing or mayonnaise; let each one help himself.

Ring-the-rosy. The green is sprigs of curly endive. Lay a slice of canned jellied cranberry sauce in the center. Ring the rosy sauce with overlapping peach slices. Top with a spoonful of snow-white cottage cheese. Pinch off a tiny sprig of endive to garnish the top. Pass a bowl of mayonnaise.

Tuna Luncheon. The green is peppy water cress. Nibble every bit of it. The salad is a gelatine salad molded for easy individual servings. It's tuna, celery, and whipped cream seasoned perfectly with expert amounts of lemon juice, prepared mustard, salt, and paprika. Pass salad dressing or mayonnaise.

Tropical Banana. Add a squirt of lemon juice to mayonnaise. Then roll the banana in the mayonnaise, and in chopped walnuts. Arrange big, perfect sections of juicy grapefruit on each side. The leaves can be any crisp salad green.

Double-ring. Cut through one slice of golden pineapple; slip the other pineapple ring through the cut so so it will look like the picture. Add a few perfect nut goodies and maraschino cherries on the stem. Honey Fruit Dressing would be delicious with this. Or Cream-cheese Whip: Soften cream cheese with a little milk and whip till fluffy. The green is crispest lettuce.

Garden Crisp. The salad is a gelatine mold—a crisp combination of cabbage, green pepper, carrots, celery, and a little onion. And made all the more refreshing with the added flavors of lemon juice, a little vinegar, and some sliced stuffed olives. The green is water cress.

Harvest Vegetables and Chicken are the moneymaking recipes in this month's contest. We'll send you $10 if you win first prize, $3 if you are one of the 20 runners-up. The eight recipes the judges consider best will be published in the September Cooks' Round Table.

Harvest Vegetables. What vegetable dish rates tops on your table in September?

It may be broiled tomato halves topped with bread crumbs and cheese, green beans with a hot mustard sauce, beets in a nippy orange sauce. Or cauliflower capped with melted cheese, green pepper or onions stuffed with Limas and corn.

How do you fix eggplant—fried, scalloped, stuffed, or baked? And squash? Perhaps you bake plump acorn squash with little pig sausages or give tender zucchinis a bread stuffing topped with Parmesan cheese.

Send us the fall vegetable recipe you consider best.

Chicken. Whether you're planning for company, Sunday dinner, or a Monday-night casserole, you know folks will go for chicken. Tell us how you fix it. You may start with a broiler, fryer, roaster, stewing chicken, or frozen chicken. Or the cut-up chicken—all thighs, all giblets, breasts, or drumsticks.

Do you have a different way of seasoning broiled or fried chicken, such as giving it a sprinkle of paprika or chili powder or spreading it with barbecue sauce? Or a special stuffing for roast chicken?

Perhaps you simmer stewing chicken in mushroom soup or a garlic-flavored tomato sauce, or top it with parsley or corn-meal dumplings. Or French-fry or barbecue frozen chicken wings or drumsticks.

What do you do with leftovers? Fix a seasoned chicken hash, bake a chicken-mushroom-rice casserole or chicken-noodle loaf, fry crusty croquettes?

Jot down your recipe today and be in line for a prize.

And remember, the winners of these 21 prizes will receive the Better Homes & Gardens Certificate of Endorsement, and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

1. Write your recipe clearly on one side of the paper. Send but one recipe at a time and mark it, "September Chicken" or "September Harvest Vegetables."

Challenge to Champions

If you have a way with a pie, you're one of the really gifted people. But the big thing about this Pillsbury Mix is that it makes even you bake an even better pie (much, much easier, too). No matter how wonderful you are, your two hands just can't blend shortening into flour as uniformly as Pillsbury does for you with its Deep-Chilled Process. (More about it below.)

Just look at this picture. And then imagine yourself coming in with a tender, flaky, homemade cherry pie like this. You were a champion before. Think what they'll call you now!

You and Ann Pillsbury can make a great team

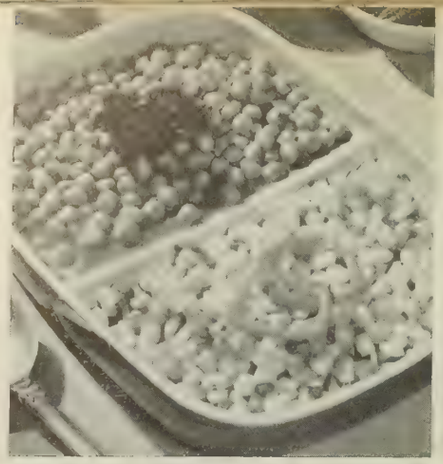
Pillsbury PIE CRUST MIX

MADE BY THE NEW DEEP-CHILLED PROCESS



Just add water—recipe on the package

NEW!

The pie crust mix that's made by the DEEP-CHILLED PROCESS

The Deep-Chilled Process is Pillsbury's exclusive way of blending fine shortening into the flour at low temperatures. This produces a flakiness, tenderness and uniformity of crust not possible in home practice.

At your grocer's now—your favorite brand of canned cherries.

Minted Peas

You get the good mint flavor with a little mint jelly—

1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) peas
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon butter or fortified margarine
⅓ cup mint jelly

Drain peas. Cook liquid until ¼ cup remains. Add peas, seasonings, butter, and jelly. Simmer to heat through and blend flavors. Serves 4 to 6.

—Miss Charlene Holton, Humansville, Missouri.

Corn O'Brien

O'Brien here means you make corn taste extra good with celery and pimiento—

¾ cup chopped celery
3 tablespoons butter
1 12-ounce can or 1 package frozen corn
3 tablespoons chopped pimiento
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Cook celery in butter 5 minutes. Add corn, pimiento, salt, and pepper. Cook 10 minutes longer, stirring lightly with fork. Serve at once. Serves 4 to 5.

—Mrs. L. S. Nichols, San Francisco, California.

Sweet-potato Casserole

Sizzling-hot country sausage is delicious with this—

1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) whole sweet potatoes
3 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup hot orange juice
1 9-ounce can (1 cup) crushed pineapple, drained
4 marshmallows, cut in half

Mash potatoes; add butter, salt, and orange juice; beat until light and fluffy. Add drained crushed pineapple. Pour into greased 1-quart casserole. Dot with butter. Bake in moderate oven (375°) about 15 minutes. Top with marshmallows and bake until marshmallows are melted and golden, about 15 minutes.

— Mrs. H. C. Halbert, Atlanta, Georgia.

Sweet-and-sour Green Beans

See how easy it is to give green beans some variety—

1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) green beans
3 slices bacon, diced
3 tablespoons sweet-pickle juice

Drain beans. Cook liquid until ⅓ cup remains. Fry bacon until crisp. Add beans, bacon, and pickle juice to hot liquid. Simmer to blend flavors, about 15 minutes. Serves 4 to 5.

— Mrs. Daniel Constant, El Paso, Texas.

Meats

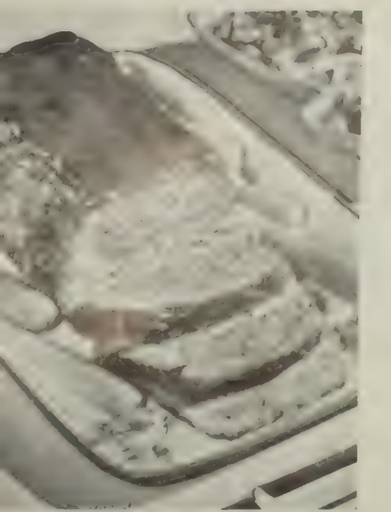
Ham-Loaf Ham

A beautiful baked whole "ham" shaped from a ham-loaf mixture—

1¼ pounds ground smoked ham
¾ pound ground pork
¾ cup cracker crumbs
2 slightly beaten eggs
½ cup milk
⅛ teaspoon pepper
8 maraschino cherries, cut in half
16 whole cloves

Combine ham, pork, crumbs, eggs, milk, and pepper; mix well. Shape like a ham and score with spoon handle. Bake in shallow roasting pan in moderate oven (350°) 1 hour. Garnish with maraschino-cherry halves pegged with whole cloves. Baste with Mustard Sauce: Combine ¾ cup brown sugar, 1½ teaspoons prepared mustard, ¼ cup water, and ¼ cup vinegar; heat to boiling and cook 10 minutes. Pour over ham loaf and return to oven to bake 30 minutes. Serves 6.

—Mrs. Harold Bodeen, North Henderson, Illinois.



Ruby-crown Meat Loaf

The rubies in the crown are cranberries—

1 pound ground smoked ham
¾ pound ground veal
½ cup fine, soft bread crumbs
2 slightly beaten eggs
3 tablespoons minced parsley
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 16-ounce can whole cranberry sauce

Combine meats, crumbs, eggs, parsley, onion, and seasonings. Drain cranberry sauce and add syrup to meat mixture; mix well. Pack meat in greased 8-inch cake pan; turn out on shallow baking pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 1 hour. Spread with drained cranberry sauce and bake 15 minutes. Serves 6.

—Mrs. Martha Murbach, Miami, Florida.

Frosted Beef Loaf

Frosting's catsup—

1½ pounds ground beef
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¾ cup milk
1 egg
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce

Combine ingredients and mix well. Pack in greased 8½x4½-inch loaf pan and bake in moderate oven (350°) 45 minutes. Turn onto baking sheet. Spread with mixture of ¼ cup catsup, 1½ teaspoons corn syrup, and ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Return to oven and bake 15 minutes. Serves 6.

—Mrs. W. J. Mitchell, New York.

Liver 'n' Bacon Loaf

They won't guess the liver—

1 pound ground beef
½ pound ground beef liver
1 cup cracker crumbs
2 beaten eggs
1 10½- or 11-ounce can condensed chicken-rice soup
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 strips bacon

Combine ingredients and mix well. Place mixture in 9½x5¼-inch loaf pan; top with bacon strips. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 1½ hours. Serves 8 to 10.

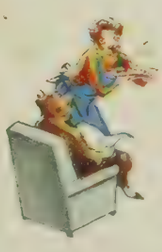
Who says you can't get lots of variety in meatless meals? asked ELSIE, the BORDEN COW

"I SAY SO," snorted Elmer, the bull. "An egg is an egg and a fish is a fish. You can't fool me!"

"Nobody's trying to fool you, pet," soothed Elsie. "The point is that there are lots of exciting ways to serve eggs and fish so folks don't get tired of them."



"But you can't make 'em taste like meat!" insisted Elmer.

"Who expects to?" smiled Elsie. "Most husbands won't miss meat so much if they have plenty of cheese-rich main dishes made with Borden's Chateau!"

"Borden's here we go!" shouted Elmer. "Can't you talk about anything else?"

"Not until I've said that Borden's Chateau is the best-behaved cheese food a girl ever cooked with," answered Elsie. "It is a fine mellow-mild process American Cheddar cheese."

"What if a man gets tired of cheese?" argued Elmer.

"Oh, that's not likely," laughed Elsie. "Borden's makes more than 40 delicious kinds. Not counting the wonderful fresh-tasting Borden's Cottage Cheese you can get from your milkman or at the store."

"Where does that come in?" sighed Elmer.

"It comes in mighty handy," replied Elsie, "when you want to make a salad extra-nourishing and hearty enough to please any man."

"Would you stop worrying about other men long enough to make a cup of coffee for me?" pouted Elmer.

"Why, that won't take any time at all," beamed Elsie. "Borden's Instant Coffee makes just the grandest coffee that ever made a ranting husband pull in his horns!"

"You've got something there," nodded Elmer, between sips. "This is what I call good coffee!"

"Of course it is!" agreed Elsie. "If it's Borden's, it's GOT to be good!"

TRICK FROM A TRICORN. George Washington, his cherry tree, his three-cornered hat and famous "Philadelphia" Cream Cheese provide the inspiration for this dandy dessert. Easy to fix, too!

Cut unbaked pastry into circles about six inches in diameter. Prick with a fork. Cut heavy aluminum foil into circles the same size. Place pastry circles on foil circles, and shape into triangular shells by pressing the foil into three-cornered molds. Bake in hot oven, 425°, until done. Cool and remove the foil molds. Heat cherries, sweeten to taste, thicken slightly with cornstarch. When cool, fill shells.

THE TOPPING TRICK: Add a little milk to rich, delicate Philadelphia Brand Cream Cheese and whip with a spoon until light and fluffy. Pack into a pastry tube; force a rosette of this refreshing, creamy-white topping onto each tricorn.

CORRECTION! Some folks have the mistaken idea that just any cream cheese is "Philadelphia." Our artist had this fancy idea for showing you how tender our peas are. If you've eaten 'em, you already know.

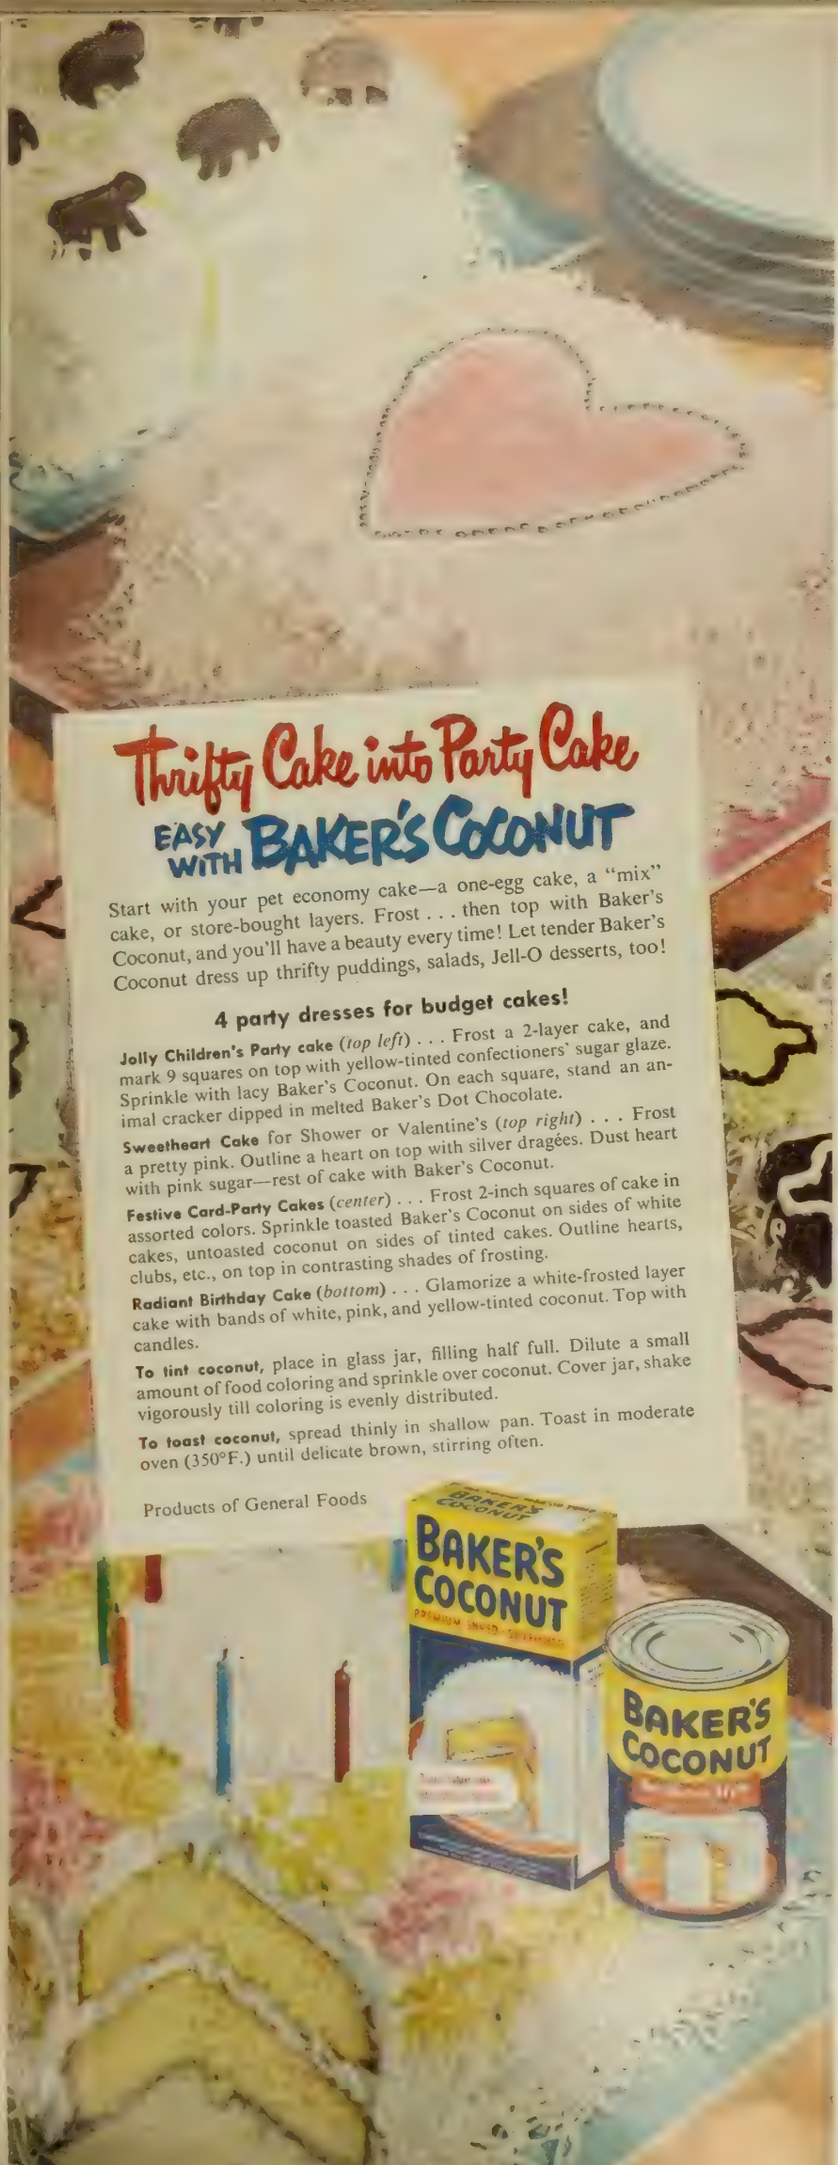
But what you probably don't know is how our peas get that way. One reason is this—our peas get to a good size when they're still babies in tenderness.

Now, peas are tricky. They come to their peak on a certain hour of a single growing day. Pick them at that moment and even an ordinary pea tastes pretty good. The thing about Green Giant Brand peas is that they are all picked at that "fleeting moment of perfect flavor."

Better peas to start with, watched over by us like a mother hen, we catch 'em at the one high moment of their sweet and tender lives. No better eating anywhere.



Harvested in the Moonlight. The call may come at midnight or at dawn. "The field's ready!" Whatever the time, the Green Giant's crew must do a fireman's act. Less than three hours after the peas reach their "fleeting moment," they're picked and packed, vine-fresh.

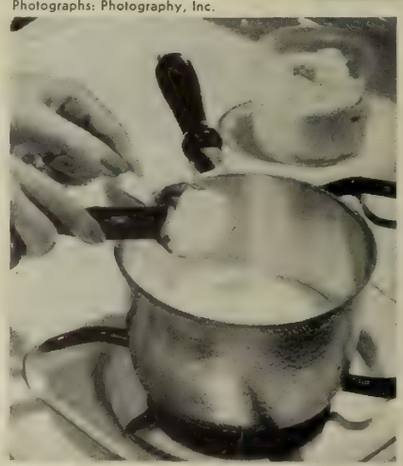
Quick way to make white sauce



French cooks have a never-fail recipe for making smooth white sauce in half the time. They make what they call "roux" by creaming together the butter and flour. Then they add this mixture all at once to the milk or other liquid. It's a slick way to prevent lumpy sauce.

You can make the roux in quantity and store it in the refrigerator ready for use whenever you need a white sauce for creamed vegetables, casseroles, or soups. Below we show you, step by step, how to make white sauce this timesaving, sure-fire, lumpless way.

Cream together butter or fortified margarine and flour. You can do this with a wooden spoon or save yourself time and effort by doing the blending with the electric mixer. Use equal portions of butter and flour. This way each particle of flour gets coated with butter.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

To make a thin sauc[e] y[ou] add 1½ tablespoon[s] [flour] and ¼ teaspoon sa[lt] to cup milk. Cook, [stir] constantly, until thi[ck]. For a medium sauce [use] tablespoons roux to [1] milk. To make a thic[k] [sau]use 4½ tablespoons [roux] 1.cup milk.

Perfect white sauce, creamy, hot, well seasoned, is ready for you to pour over a vegetable, to use in a casserole, or as a base for soup. And you are a good cook.

DISCOVERY! Lemon CHEESE CAKE PIE!

Quick, easy...less expensive than ordinary cheese cake, yet smoother, better tasting...delicious with the flavor of FRESH LEMONS!

This is a brand-new dessert. It changes the making of cheese cake from a slow, complicated job to a quick, easy one!

Some cheese cake tends to be dry and grainy; this has a melt-in-the-mouth creaminess. Many cheese cakes require four eggs; this takes only one. Mixing time is brief, baking time only 35 minutes.

Best of all, Lemon Cheese Cake Pie appeals to menfolks and everybody—because it's not too sweet, thanks to the tang of fresh Sunkist Lemons. Try it!

LEMON CHEESE CAKE PIE

3 3-oz. pkgs. cream cheese (or one 8-oz. pkg.) 2 tbsp. butter ½ c. sugar 1 whole egg 2 tbsp. flour ⅔ c. milk ¼ c. fresh Sunkist lemon juice 2 tbsp. grated lemon peel 1 graham cracker crust (8 in.)

Cream the cheese and butter; add sugar and whole egg. Mix well. Add flour, then milk. Stir in lemon juice and peel. Pour into unbaked graham cracker pie shell. Sprinkle with crumbs. Bake 35 min. in moderate oven at 350°F. Chill and serve. (Extra good topped with sour cream.) Serves 6-8.

Graham Cracker Crust. Crush graham crackers to make 1¼ c. fine crumbs. Add ⅓ c. sugar and ⅓ c. melted butter. Mix well. Reserve ¼ c. of mixture for topping. Press remainder on bottom and sides of 8-inch pie plate. Chill until set.

Jeweled Fruit Mold

1 envelope Knox gelatine
¼ cup lemon juice
1 cup hot water
⅓ cup granulated sugar
Few grains salt
⅔ cup syrup from canned fruit cocktail
1½ cups drained canned fruit cocktail
½ cup whipping cream

Soften gelatine in lemon juice and dissolve in hot water. Blend in sugar, salt and syrup from cocktail. Cool until mixture is slightly thicker than unbeaten egg white. Fold in well-drained fruit cocktail and turn half of mixture into 1-quart mold. Chill. Whip cream until barely stiff and fold into remaining gelatine. Turn into mold over clear layer. Chill until firm. Serves 6 to 8.

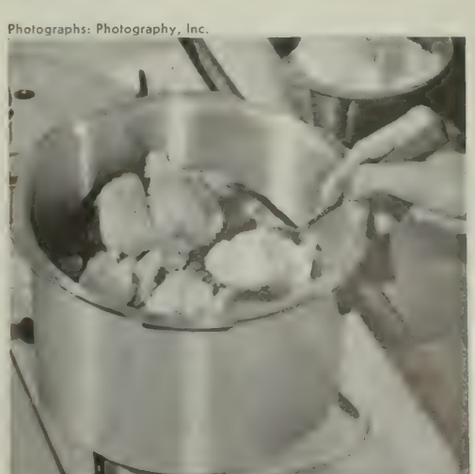
Chicken 'n' dumplings

quick and delicious

You can make chicken and dumplings with that wonderful, old-fashioned flavor in 45 minutes. The trick is to use your pressure saucepan. Here's how, step by step



1 Cut 4- to 6-pound chicken in pieces. Put in pressure saucepan. Add 2 teaspoons salt, 1 small onion, 2 or 3 celery ribs, a whole carrot, 2 or 3 whole cloves, a bay leaf, and a few sprigs of parsley

2 Add 2 cups water. Cover; exhaust air. Cook at 10 pounds pressure 30 minutes. Reduce pressure gradually. To cook without pressure, use ¾ cup water per pound and simmer 2½ to 3 hours

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

3 Mix Dumplings: Sift 1 cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoons baking powder into bowl. Stir in ½ cup milk, 2 tablespoons melted shortening. Drop from tablespoon on chicken. Dumplings slide off easily if you dip spoon in stock each time. Cook uncovered 5 minutes. Put on cover (without pressure indicator). Cook 5 minutes. Or you can use biscuit mix as directed on the package

4 Arrange chicken and dumplings on platter. For gravy, slowly stir in a paste of ½ cup w[illegible] and 4 tablespoons flour for each 2 cups stock. Cook, stirring constantly, till mixtur[illegible] bubbling all over. Now see if this doesn't taste as good as Grandma's chicken and dumpl[illegible]

Remember, men love Swans Down cakes

(and the girls who bake them!)

PINK HEAVEN CAKE

To Mix: Use recipe for Happy Day Cake or Swans Down White Cake on back of Swans Down Cake Flour package. Be sure to use Swans Down Cake Flour.

That way, you're sure to turn out a beauty that will bedazzle your man. A lighter, finer, softer cake—because Swans Down Cake Flour is far lighter, finer, softer than ordinary flour. In fact, there's just no other flour that can make this cake Swans Down-heavenly!

To Bake: Pour half of the batter into one prepared pan. Tint remaining batter desired shade of pink, using a few drops of red coloring; pour into other pan. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 25 minutes, or until done. Cool.

To Frost: Spread Pink Heaven Peppermint Frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake. Sprinkle top of frosted cake with multicolored candies.

Pink Heaven Peppermint Frosting: Combine 2 unbeaten egg whites, 1½ cups sugar, dash of salt, ⅓ cup water, and 2 teaspoons light corn syrup in top of double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater or electric beater 1 minute, or until thoroughly mixed. Cook over rapidly boiling water, beating constantly with rotary egg beater (or at high speed of electric beater) 7 minutes, or until frosting will stand in stiff peaks. Remove from boiling water. Add ¼ teaspoon peppermint extract and 1 teaspoon vanilla; beat 1 minute, or until thick enough to spread. Tint a delicate shade of pink with red coloring.

Now—serve a slice of "heaven" to your cake-loving man, and watch him beam with delight. That Swans Down deliciousness—that tempting, wonderful tenderness—gets 'em every time.

Which is why the world's best cakemakers say: For fine cake—it takes cake flour. For superfine cake—use the one and only Swans Down Cake Flour.

Lattice Cherry Pie (8-inch)
(using cornstarch or flour)

½ cup cherry juice
¾ cup sugar
4 tablespoons flour or 2½ tablespoons cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
Few drops red food coloring
2 cups pitted sour cherries (1 No. 2. can)
1 recipe Plain Pastry

Combine juice, ½ cup sugar, flour or cornstarch, and salt; cook until thick; add butter, remaining sugar, and a few drops red food coloring if you like redder color. Pour over cherries in 8-inch pastry-lined pan. Make lattice top crust; flute edge. Bake in hot oven (400°) 45 minutes to 1 hour. Use ¾ cup sugar if cherries are unsweetened. Note: Or you may use 2 cups frozen pitted cherries.

Lattice Cherry Pie (9-inch)
(using cornstarch or flour)

¾ cup cherry juice
1 cup sugar
6 tablespoons flour or 3½ tablespoons cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter
Few drops red food coloring
3 cups pitted sour cherries
1 recipe Plain Pastry

Make same as 8-inch Lattice Cherry Pie. See directions above.

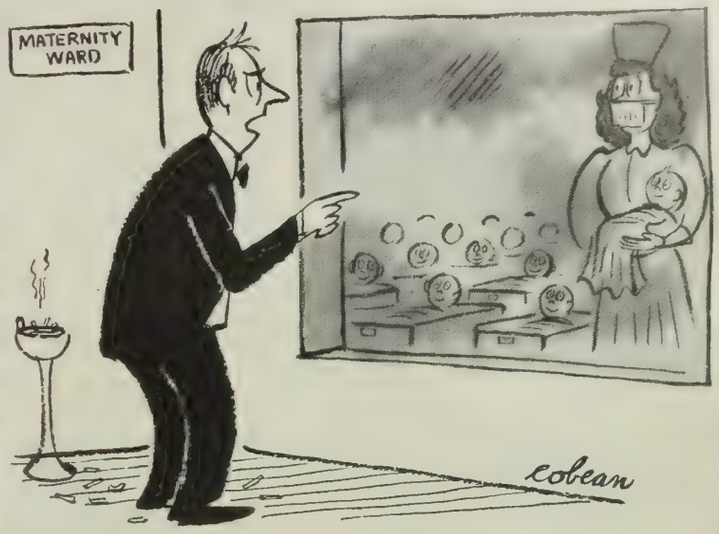
Lattice Cherry Pie
(using tapioca)

1 cup cherry juice
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 cups pitted sour cherries
1 tablespoon butter
1 recipe Plain Pastry

Combine juice, sugar, tapioca, salt, and cherries, and let stand about 15 minutes. Line 9-inch pie-pan with pastry. Fill with cherry mixture. Dot with butter. Make lattice top; flute edge. Bake in hot oven (400°) 45 minutes to 1 hour. Note: For 8-inch pie, use only ½ cup cherry juice. Other ingredients the same.

Plain Pastry

1½ cups enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
4 to 5 tablespoons cold water



Sift flour and salt; add shortening. Cut in with pastry-blender or blending fork until the pieces are the size of small peas. Add cold water by teaspoonfuls, tossing with a fork until all the flour-coated bits of fat are barely dampened. Turn mixture onto a square of waxed paper. Gather up corners, pressing from outside to form compact ball. Divide for lower and upper crust. Chill for easier handling.

Bing-cherry Salad

Unusual and superdelicious—

1 No. 2½ can (3½ cups) pitted Bing cherries
⅓ cup lemon juice
1 package orange-flavored gelatine
¾ cup chopped pecans
1 3-ounce bottle stuffed olives, sliced

Drain cherries; add water to cherry syrup and lemon juice to make 1¾ cups liquid. Heat; pour

"Why don't you clean that glass with Windex Spray? I've been gurgling and gooing at the wrong baby for an hour!"

Seems like everybody's changing to Windex® Spray! And no wonder! It's the quickest, easiest way to make windows and mirrors simply sparkle! Whish! Spray it on! Swish! Wipe it off lightly! Windex Spray leaves no messy dust to clean afterwards, like some cleaners. Saves time! Saves work! Costs far less than a penny per window. Even more economical in the big 20-oz. size. Available in Canada.

"Don't like to interrupt the party, but I just remembered I didn't put Drāno in the drains this week!"

Dangerous sewer germs lurk in every drain. No liquid disinfectant can budge the muck they breed in. It takes Drāno to unclog drains and keep them running free and clear. Use Drāno once a week—every week. Won't harm septic tanks. Makes them work better. Get Drāno today at your grocery or hardware store. Also available in Canada.

The Best Cooks Use Stokely's Finest Foods

Mrs. Chris F. Arnoult, 1053 Maury Ave., Memphis, chosen Best Cook by Christian Brothers College Mothers' Club.

It takes the finest to make the finest eating . . . and with Mrs. Arnoult that means Stokely's Finest Foods. Tomato Juice so red-ripe, so full-flavored could only be Stokely's prize-tomato quality. Whole-Kernel Corn so plump and tender, so corn-patch fresh could only be blue-ribbon corn, the Stokely kind. Like Mrs. Arnoult, you get the finest when you reach for Stokely's . . . for homey dinner-dishes like:

SKILLET CORN DINNER—Drain a 303 can Stokely's Finest Golden Bantam Whole Kernel Corn. Slowly brown 1 lb. link sausage in skillet; remove and keep hot. Drain off all but 2 tablespoons fat. Add corn; heat with ⅛ teaspoon salt and few grains pepper. Top with sausages. Makes 4 servings.

over gelatine and stir until dissolved. Chill until partially set. Add cherries, nuts, olives. Pour into individual molds or shallow pan; chill until firm. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise. Serves 6 to 8.

Maraschino-cherry Cake

Beautiful for a birthday cake, too—

- 2¼ cups sifted cake flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1⅓ cups sugar
- ½ cup shortening
- ¼ cup maraschino-cherry juice (from 5-ounce bottle)
- 16 maraschino cherries (cut in eighths)
- ½ cup milk
- 4 unbeaten egg whites (½ to ⅔ cup)
- ½ cup chopped California walnuts

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar. Add shortening, cherry juice, cherries, and milk. Beat vigorously 2 minutes. Add egg whites. Beat 2 minutes. Fold in nuts. Pour into 2 round waxed-paper-lined 8-inch layer cake pans. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 30 to 35 minutes. Frost with 7-minute Frosting; decorate with maraschino-cherry halves.

Ham Cups With Cherry Sauce

You bake them in muffin pans—

- 1 pound ground smoked ham
- ½ pound ground pork
- 1½ cups soft, fine bread crumbs
- 1 well-beaten egg
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard

Combine ham, pork, bread crumbs, egg, and ½ teaspoon dry mustard; mix well. Fill medium-size muffin pans. Round tops meat-loaf fashion. Combine brown sugar and 1 teaspoon prepared mustard. Spread over tops of cups. Bake in moderate oven (325°) 1 hour. Serve with hot Cherry Sauce. Serves 6. Cherry Sauce: Combine 2 tablespoons cornstarch and ½ cup sugar; add 1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) pitted red cherries. Cook over low heat until thick and clear, stirring constantly.

Crusty Cherry Cobbler

It's so easy to make with packaged biscuit mix—

- 2 cups sweetened cherries, canned or cooked
- ½ to ¾ cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon quick-cooking tapioca
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 2 cups biscuit mix
- ¾ cup light cream

Place cherries in greased baking dish; sprinkle with mixture of sugar and tapioca; dot with butter. Prepare biscuit mix as directed, using ¾ cup cream. Drop dough in 6 mounds over cherries. Bake in hot oven (425°) 30 minutes. Serves 6.

Meat Balls Supreme

Expertly seasoned, and combined with vegetables to make a full meal in one kettle—

3 slices bread	2 cups strained tomatoes
1 cup hot milk	1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet
1 beaten egg	1 cup hot water
¾ pound ground beef	8 to 10 medium carrots
¼ pound ground pork	8 to 10 tiny whole onions
Salt and pepper	½ cup chopped celery
3 tablespoons grated onion	1 cup canned or frozen peas
3 tablespoons chopped parsley

Soften bread in milk; add egg. Mix meats; add seasonings, onion, and parsley. Combine mixtures; form in balls; roll in flour and brown in hot fat. Add tomatoes and kitchen bouquet; simmer 10 minutes; add water, carrots, onions, and celery. Cover; simmer 30 minutes. Add peas and continue cooking until peas heat through or are tender. Serves 6.

in skillet. Add tomatoes and salt; cook until thickened and pour over meat and vegetables in casserole. Place biscuit doughnuts on hot mixture and center each with a meat ball. Bake in hot oven (450°) 20 minutes or until biscuits are golden. Biscuits: Sift together 2 cups enriched flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, and ½ teaspoon salt; cut in 3 to 4 tablespoons shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add ⅔ cup milk all at once and mix until dough follows fork around bowl. Turn onto lightly floured surface; knead gently ½ minute. Roll ¼ to ½ inch thick; cut with doughnut cutter.

Meat Balls With Spaghetti

Favorite of all meat-ball recipes, these are worthy of the finest chef—

- 1 onion, chopped
- 3 tablespoons fat
- 1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) tomatoes
- 2 6-ounce cans tomato paste
- 2 cups water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 bay leaf
- ¾ pound ground beef
- ¼ pound ground pork
- 1 cup fine, dry bread crumbs
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 sprig parsley, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- ½ cup milk
- 2 well-beaten eggs
- Salt and pepper
- 1 8-ounce package long spaghetti, cooked

Brown onion in hot fat; add tomatoes, tomato paste, water, and seasonings. Cook slowly 1 hour. Combine remaining ingredients, except spaghetti; mix thoroughly. Form in small balls; brown in hot fat. Add to sauce; cook 15 minutes. Serve over spaghetti. Serves 6.

Swedish Meat Balls

Serve Swedish Brown Beans with them—

- ½ cup fine, dry bread crumbs
- ½ cup warm cream
- ½ pound beef
- ¼ pound veal
- ¼ pound pork
- ½ cup milk
- 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 3 teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ⅛ teaspoon allspice

Soak crumbs in cream. Grind meats three times, using fine blade of food chopper. Combine crumbs and meat; mix thoroughly; add milk. Add egg yolks, onion, and seasonings. Form in medium or very tiny balls and brown on all sides in hot fat. Keep warm over hot water. Serves 8. Brown Beans: Combine 2 tablespoons vinegar and ½ cup brown sugar. Add 2 No. 2 cans drained red beans and heat thoroughly. Serves 8.

Ham Balls on Skewers

Each ball's a bite. Fun for snacks—

- 1 pound ground ham
- 1 cup bread crumbs
- 1 well-beaten egg
- ½ cup milk
- ½ cup brown sugar
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- ¼ cup vinegar
- ¼ cup water

Combine meat, crumbs, egg, and milk; mix. Form in tiny balls; brush with combined remaining ingredients. Thread on skewers with pineapple chunks and maraschino cherries. Cook until tender.

Fresh charm from simple changes

By Betty Childs

When you see remodeled rooms like these from the Hugh Parrish home, you may ask yourself, "How does this help me solve my own decorating problems?" Look at these before-and-after pictures again and see if you don't have many of the same problems.

In remodeling, Mrs. Parrish, who is a decorator, was dealing with defects that are common to many old houses: windows that were too small and narrow, rough wall surfaces, worn floors, and lack of storage space. Study the "before" photographs for the bad features Mrs. Parrish faced; then see how she made assets of them in the "after" pictures. Perhaps there's an idea here that you can use.

↑ AFTER

The drab dining room was given fresh charm with a few simple changes. Picture molding was removed and used as chair rail at top of painted dado. Peasant-design wallpaper picked up the dado color. The windows lost their narrow look, and cornice line was softened, with frothy net curtains. The painted floor was given the additional beauty of a hand-loomed rug. Graceful dining-room furniture of wrought iron adds a light and spacious feeling to the room

Built-in shelf and cabinet unit was given an antique white finish. It adds storage space and is a decorative asset to the small den. Uneven walls were concealed by brick-patterned wallpaper. Muslin curtains were hung at bottom sash for privacy. Wide valance hung at the ceiling line gives the illusion of height to these short windows

Family happiness

Sticking to school-night bedtimes earned reading in bed on Fridays

"Here we are," we said in effect. "Two people who love each other and our children. We brought children into this world to love and care for them. Why then do we spend so much time scolding, threatening, and punishing? Why are we in conflict with them and with one another over so many family matters? Why are we so unhappy?"

For the first time, instead of discussing what we could do to make the children obey, we asked ourselves this simple question: What can we do to make them happier? And there, in the question, in the word "happier," we found our answer.

We had always wanted our family to be a happy one, but we thought that happiness was the end, rather than the means. We thought it would be found at the end of the road, and had never looked for it at the beginning. We wanted our family to be happy, so we tried to make our children obedient, generous, courteous, and friendly—if we had to pound those qualities into them. We thought once we achieved these results, we would have a happy family. We know now that the way to start is with happiness, and that all the other desired behaviors follow.

Thinking in terms of happiness first and manners second, we realized that we had to recognize the right of a child to be a child. We granted our children the right to consider reading more important than sleep, play more important than meals, impulse more important than reason. We recognized the inalienable right of the child to feel angry when disappointed, to want to strike out blindly when angry, and to do all the thoughtless, careless acts that belong to immaturity.

Granting the children their right to immaturity didn't mean giving in to it, but rather working with them on their level instead of expecting them to reach ours. In our unsuccessful attempts at training, we had been trying to m our youngsters understand grown-up point of view. Now, decided, we would stop asking children to understand the fun and we would try to underst the past. It meant seeing our si tion with the eyes of a child, going on from there.

Parents, by their very nat are frustrating agents to child The routines and behaviors w mand "for their own good" pain in the neck, disrupti child's world. We always see stand in the way of fun with a of caution or advice. But mus We decided to start with hap and see what followed.

The first thing we decided never to descend to the level frustrated child. Whenever ug havior cropped up, it was ou to replace it with something ant, then hunt for the source ugliness.

We know now that the b punches his little sister beca can't go fishing is like the who drives recklessly to w cause he had a quarrel w wife. Spanking the boy won his problem any more than ing the father will solve hi ing at symptoms rather tha is like stepping on the t snake, and merely makes situation worse. And I ha found that a boy who cou punished, scolded, threat bribed into good behavio ways be loved or underst to a smile. Remembering childhood, I understood most defiant behavior is disguised plea for help.

Secondly, we made an e our children know that we w side, not that we were try them on ours. We stopp about what they could good, and started talki what we could do that fun.

Family happiness

and reappear in new roles as guides in the pursuit of happiness.

Now, if we wanted our children to be happy, yet wanted them to perform certain necessary duties and learn necessary disciplines, we had to find some way to make these duties and disciplines so much fun they were done willingly.

We realized so many duties were already established as unpleasant experiences that we had a major overhauling job. So, starting from the idea that happiness was to be the first objective, we figured out ways to turn the unpleasant into the pleasant; and one of the answers was reward.

We had always been opposed to rewarding children for "things they had to do anyway," but looking at it from the child's standpoint, reward made sense. Although we knew the duties he performed were for his benefit, as far as he was concerned he was doing them for us. Reward—increased incentive, if you will—could change that.

We took the daily "musts" like getting up and dressing, washing, eating meals, being nice to the baby, and going to sleep on time, and put them in the same category as Father's job and Mother's work.

We fathers have to support our families; mothers have to do housework. But we like praise, increased rewards for good performance of our "must" tasks, and pleasant working conditions. Are children any different?

So we made a list of 10 necessary jobs for our boy. Each job done earned a penny. All done in a day earned a dime. He was also given a dime bank, in which he could put every dime he felt like saving for the purchase of a bicycle, rather than spending it on minor items.

We were afraid at first we were trying merely another kind of bribe that wouldn't work, but we had added a new element that made all the difference in the world. We had made the reward open to him in a way that made him more of a person. He was earning his money.

The morning after this plan went into effect, he was up, washed, dressed, and ready for school without one word of prompting. And that night, when he had earned his dime, there was quite a cerem of putting it in the bank. minutes later he was asleep!

That was only the first day, we realized the novelty of the ticular reward would wear off, that didn't matter. What matte was that once we tried to do thi in ways that were important pleasant for him, cooperat cheerfulness, and willingness automatic. He went to bed hap and slept soon because, of his accord, he had ceased fight sleep. He had peace of mind, p of accomplishment, and social ognition. No wonder he slept Bedtime, as we expected, gav trouble. The same principle of s ing pleasant experiences appli but in this case, reading in was worth more than the penny ward. But although the ind ment failed, we still believed in system, and hunted for a new ducement. We found it.

We figured together; then the next step. "If you turn off light on time every night there is school the next day can stay up as late as you w Friday night. If you have a record for the week, I'll bring book home from the library day, and you can stay up a if you want."

It was a deal, deliberately on Thursday night. He went out went the light, and the n his reward was forthcoming cheer. And although it sometimes takes a patient search, the little bug is always there.

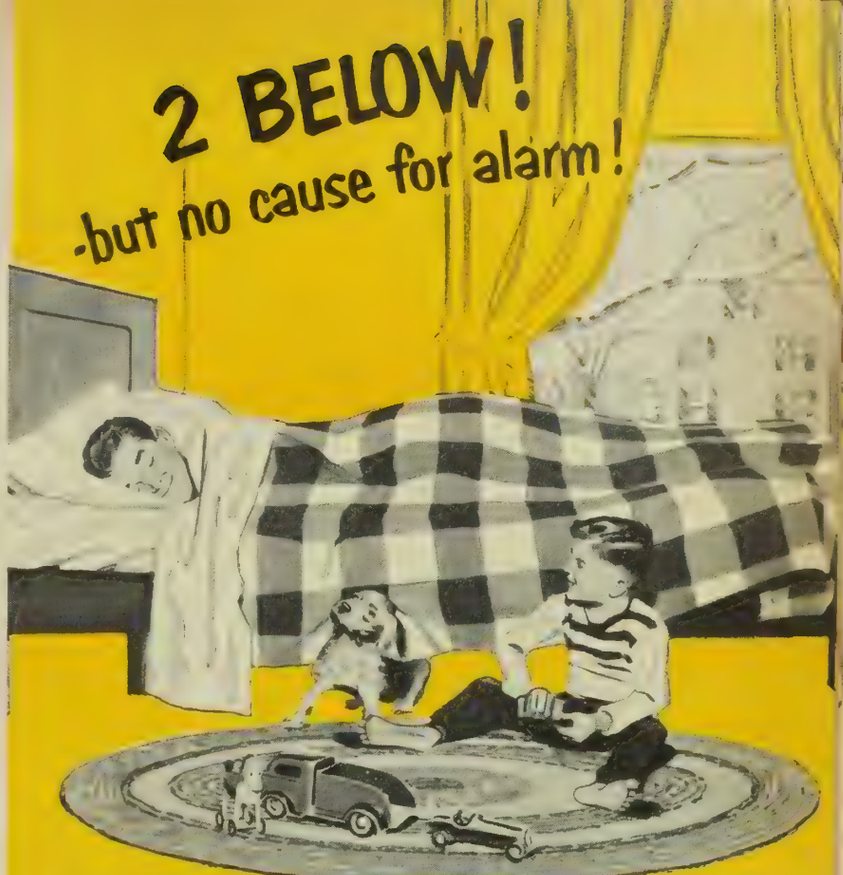
With two children, one much younger than the other, it is inevitable that the younger will do things to upset and anger the older one, and when a scuffle results, it seems natural to blame the older child for not having more self-control. This is the best way I know of to create and maintain enmity between the children. I know, because I've done enough of it.

But now when I rush in to settle a squabble, I don't try to fix blame and deal out a punishment. The first emergency act is to divert the ugly behavior into happy, constructive channels. Later is time enough to find out what caused the anger or frustration and see what can be done to better the situation.

Not too long ago, our boy was taking out some bad feelings on his little sister. The immediate spark was her pulling at the book he was trying to read. When I went into the living room, she was crying, and he was looking guilty. I repressed my old habit of shaming him over hitting a baby, or punishing him.

"The baby seems sad," I said. "Let's cheer her up." I dropped to my hands and knees. "Get on my back; we'll put on a rodeo for her."

He couldn't believe that my reaction to his hitting the baby was to play his favorite game. In a moment he was on my back, and the baby was laughing. Then he said, "Dad, I'd like to give the baby a ride." He got on his knees. I supported the baby, and the rodeo went on. The baby leaned over and kissed him, and without my saying a word, he said he was sorry he had been mean to her. What had been a hostile atmosphere charged with resentment and defiance had been changed into one filled with love and laughter.



Letting the children know we are "on their side" has changed reluctant obedience into active cooperation. Perhaps because they know that our primary concern is their happiness, they seem more secure, independent, and self-reliant.

I have never known a time when our home atmosphere has been as free from tension. We feel as though we have suddenly been set free, just by giving in to the instinct of love and understanding. It took a long time, but at last I have learned how to be a father, rather than an unpopular commanding officer.

This happens to be our personal story, and although I don't claim to have found a universal panacea for all family difficulties, I don't see why it shouldn't work for others.

And actually, it is hard to tell who benefits most from our new approach. About two weeks after we started our current system, I went in to say good night to my son. I asked him if he noticed any difference in the way our family was getting along. He put his arms around my neck and squeezed hard. "Daddy," he said vehemently, "It's been such a happy time."

Talking about rewards, what more could you ask?

plain. Though French pieces were upholstered in the sturdy fabrics plentiful in France, few American pieces had any upholstery besides an occasional rush seat. Like the originals, French furniture reproductions are usually made of oak, walnut, and fruit woods; Early American of maple and pine. Provincial mixes best with simple Traditional and Modern.

Modern furniture is really the furniture of today. Most of it has been designed since 1930. Functionalism comes first, so you'll find dozens of Modern pieces that are double-purpose, sectional, work-saving. Simplicity is the hallmark of Modern; you can identify Modern by its severely plain surface and its smooth-flowing lines. And the Modern designers have taken advantage of new manufacturing techniques by using metal, plastic, and shaped plywood in their furniture. You'll find Modern in many different woods and finishes (including lacquer colors). Because it is simple, Modern fits in easily with Provincial. More elegant Modern blends well with Traditional.

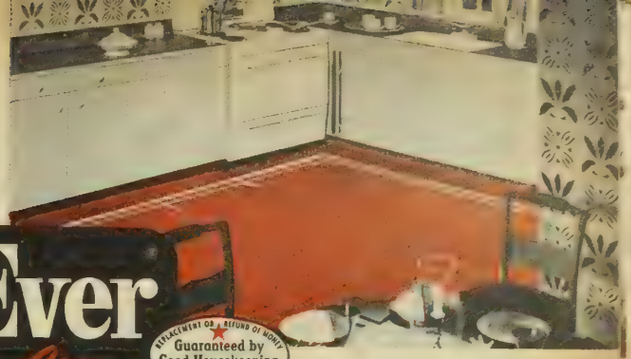
won't fry crisp. Shake off excess flour by giving French-frying basket a sharp slap with your hand. Hold basket over pan of flour to avoid waste or extra cleanup. Set basket into hot fat (400°). Basket should not be more than a fourth full, or onions won't brown quickly. Stir lightly with two-tined fork to separate rings. Drain crisp golden-brown onions onto paper toweling. Sprinkle with salt. Keep rings sizzling hot until serving time.

Sugar Doughnuts

2 tablespoons shortening
¾ cup sugar
2 well-beaten eggs
¾ cup milk
3½ cups enriched flour
1 teaspoon salt
5 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg



Cream shortening and sugar; add eggs and beat well. Add milk, then flour sifted with salt, baking powder, and spices. Roll on lightly floured surface ⅜ inch thick. Cut with floured doughnut cutter; let stand 15 minutes; fry in deep, hot fat (375°) until brown, turning once. Drain on absorbent paper. Dip in granulated sugar. Makes 3 dozen doughnuts.

French-fried Chicken

Endearingly soft

There's more to Kleenex* quality than meets your eye! For Kleenex has a special kind of softness, smoothness, that endears this fine white tissue to delicate skin. Extra soft (thanks to a special process)—Kleenex coddles your complexion; soothes tender noses during colds.

Enduringly strong

See how the quality of Kleenex holds firm ...doesn't flinch, as it meets the mightiest sneeze, or blow—or stubborn make-up base. This tissue blends softness with "brawn" so perfectly, you'll find Kleenex sturdy enough to take over even the toughest household chore.

Saves as it serves

No other tissue has the handy Serv-a-Tissue Box that serves one at a time. You end waste—save money—because you pull just one, not a handful. And the next pops up, ready to use. So, don't take just "tissues." Insist on wonderfully soft, strong Kleenex—America's favorite tissue.

9. Ripsaw, 26-inch blade, 5½ point.
10. Crosscut saw, 26-inch blade, 8 point.

Here's a quick look at types of woodcutting handsaws, plus some tips on how to use them

Whether you're replacing a shaky railing on your basement stairs or turning out a set of built-in bookshelves for your living room, good handsaws will help you do a better job, faster, with a lot less work.

Properly used, a sharp crosscut saw will cut through a 2x4 in 20 seconds or less. A good ripsaw can cut a 2-foot shelf from end to end in 60 seconds. With proper care, both should last a lifetime; many a carpenter's saw has been handed down from father to son through three generations.

If your budget calls for buying saws one at a time, get the crosscut type first. More handyman jobs call for crosscutting than ripping. Too, you can do ripping with a crosscut saw, though it's much slower.

You'll notice that the back of the blade on some saws is straight, on others, curved. The choice is a matter of personal preference, for one will cut as well as the other.

A blade type that does make for easier sawing, however, is the "taper ground." This blade is actually [Turn to page 135

Crosscutting. With a crosscut saw, keep angle between blade and wood at about 45 degrees. If lines of end grain curve downward, you reduce danger of splitting near end of cut. Start cut with handle end of blade, using short backward strokes, with your left thumb as a guide. When the cut is under way, use full length of blade; it will cut on both forward and backward strokes

Marking. If your cut is to be at right angles across the board, mark cutting line carefully with try square or combination square. If wood is fairly light, use a soft pencil, kept sharp. Tilt it away from square for maximum accuracy. On dark or dirty lumber, a scratch made with an awl will be easier to see and follow. Scoring with a knife blade is the most accurate technique of all

Serene and Lovely

Traditional elegance is enhanced by the gleaming Western Pine paneling of this gracious drawing room.

For stately paneled rooms or cheery kitchen woodwork, choose the versatile, beautiful woods of the Western Pines*! Fine-grained and soft-textured, they are famous for their easy workability and remarkable receptivity to a variety of finishes. Painted, enameled, stained—or left natural, waxed and rubbed to a satiny sheen—these friendly woods are long-lasting and sturdy, too.

Ask your retail lumber dealer about them. Then build in charm—attic to basement—with the Western Pines*.

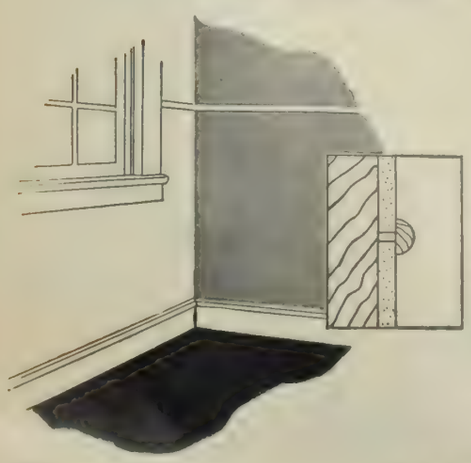
The things half round can do for you!

Shelf edges gain a smooth, finished look when covered with a half round

Use it to hide sandwich effect of plywood edges on tables

It's called half-round molding. You can buy it in any lumberyard. Because it comes in a neat geometric shape, clean, smooth, and ready to go, it can simplify all kinds of handyman jobs for you.

Its shape in cross section is half a circle, so that a strip of it looks like a broom handle split in two. It comes in assorted lengths. You can always find it in pine, often in redwood, sometimes in oak and other woods.



Here are a few of the many things you can do with it:

Shelf edging. This is about the simplest use for half round. Just glue and brad it to shelf edges to give them a uniform, finished look. Drive brads below the surface with a nail set and fill holes with wood putty.

By using molding wider than shelf stock, you can let trim give the illusion that shelves are made of heavier, sturdier lumber. Or, for a different effect, try screen molding; it looks like flattened half round.

Plywood edges. Plywood is easy to use, but when edges show they're striped like a fugitive from Alcatraz. Half-round or screen molding takes care of the problem nicely. If you want molding to serve as trim in contrasting color, paint or stain it before you glue it in place.

Battens. Wherever two pieces of material meet and leave a crack, there's a likely spot for half round. If you are covering a wall with wallboard, you can avoid nearly all vertical joints by putting panels on horizontally. Batten the horizontal joint inconspicuously with half round.

Joints left when you cover a wall with wallboard can be covered with inconspicuous half-round molding, as shown he things half round can do for you!

Begins on page 140

Wide, built-up molding of half round makes a frame for fireplace opening apply molding for decorative tr tment of chests and cabinets

Simple raised design on slab door is another effective use of half round

Decorative treatments. Now we come to something a little more elaborate, but done in the same simple way.

Suppose you have a surface that calls for a wide decorative molding. It is to be eight inches wide, let's say, and go all around a fireplace opening. Or it is to cover a plain section of a radio or other cabinet. Or perhaps it is to run below the bottom shelf of a long bookcase or a section of a storage wall.

You go to a mill and ask for a price on having millwork cut to your design. You get the price—and shudder.

Instead, you buy, at a fraction of the cost, a supply of half round in whatever width suits your fancy. You glue these little strips to your surface, side by side, until you have built up the appearance of wide molding, a piece of custom millwork.

Special effects. Or, instead of placing the moldings side by side, you might prefer to use them to create a decorative design. Attach to a slab door as sketched above, they give you a handsome, three-dimensional pattern.

Maybe you'd prefer still another effect, and an attractive one it is, too. Set two ordinary boards at an angle with each other, to form a "V." Mount the half round on them. You can get the idea from .the cross section sketched above. Or, instead of two boards to form a "V," why not use three to form a box, a sort of squared-off "U"?

If the situation calls for it, your base for half round might be quarter-inch plywood bent in a shallow curve. One nice thing about these versatile moldings is that they can be applied to almost any shape.

MIRRO
THE FINEST ALUMINUM

Standard Size Pans

● Home economists, professional bakers, and experienced homemakers all agree that shiny, bright-surfaced aluminum baking ware is best for perfect cake baking. Best because it s-p-r-e-a-d-s the heat so evenly. Best because it browns just so. Best because it has no "hot spots" that burn while the rest of the pan bakes. Equally important is MIRRO's special heat absorbing Alumilite finish for baking breads and pies . . . things that need crisp or flaky crusts.

THINGS YOU'LL WANT TO KNOW...

MIRRO Standard Size Baking Ware, like all MIRRO aluminum, is sturdily made from strong, thick sheets of the finest aluminum. Easy to clean, it will last a housekeeping lifetime with only soap-and-water care. Each piece has the ideal finish, shiny or Alumilite, so necessary for perfect, even baking. And, it is the proper size, the standard size, for regular home recipes or prepared ready-mixes. Look for the standard size, stamped on the bottom of every piece of Standard Size MIRRO Baking Ware.

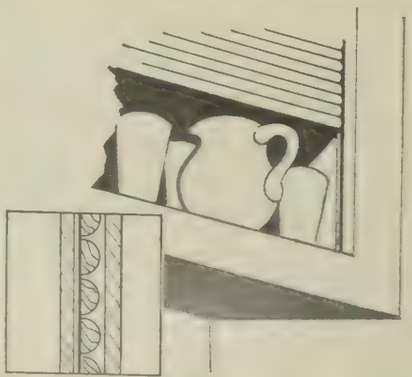
Group of pictures is framed with half round and corner bead on the edges

Picture framing. If you have a lot of small pictures, glue them on a sheet of plywood or composition board. "Frame" each with strips of half round with mitered corners. To trim edge, frame sheet with another stock molding called corner bead. It is an "L" in cross section.



This corner bead is handy for many jobs where a simple frame is wanted. It usually comes with each leg 1⅜ inches wide, the corners already rounded off.

Screen of canvas and half rounds is useful in masking an entryway, bed, desk, or any area for privacy

Flexible screen. With half round and canvas, you can make a sturdy room screen. To a piece of lightweight duck, glue a half round along one edge. Glue another parallel to the first, with one-eighth inch between. Cover fabric; then do the same to the other side, keeping half rounds opposite each other. Paint, stain, or lacquer screen.

It can stand alone, be fastened to a wall, or be hung to roll up and down like a shade.

There's no way you can bump your head on this cabinet door: it slides up and out of your way like roll-top desk

Tambour door. By gluing half round to just one side of fabric, you have the makings of a tambour door. Like the moving part of a roll-top desk, it will slide around a corner. Provide slots for it to roll in, and a simple knob or handle to take hold of. Use it wherever you need a door that will not be in the way when open.

making every step count in that direction. That's the sure way

You may have very definite ideas about what you're trying to accomplish in your home, but it pays to check up on yourself from time to time. There are a few points you'll want to keep in mind:

1 Be scrupulously honest about achieving your main objective. If you keep in mind that in decorating your home your aim is to create a haven of comfort and beauty for the whole family and a pleasant setting in which to entertain friends, then anything that conflicts with that aim is a violation of principle. You may, for example, love the beauty of a certain piece of antique furniture. That's justifiable on the score of beauty, but if your antique can't support the weight of an average man, then you are sacrificing comfort, one of the basic principles you have set up as a means of achieving your objective: a comfortable, beautiful home.

2 Keep your home a harmonious whole. Don't buy a "flashy" piece of furniture, for example, that calls attention to itself. The total effect of the room is the important thing. Each piece in itself can—and should—have distinction, but never let any one piece be so brilliant that it robs the room of its own true character. A symphony would be ruined if a violinist went berserk.

3 Don't ever select a lamp or a table or a chair because it looks beautiful in someone else's home. Buy it because you think it will do something for your house. That's the only way you can insure lasting satisfaction. It's hard to understand why a woman—who would rather be dead than be caught wearing the same hat or dress worn by another woman in the room—will often run down and buy the same sofa, the same table, or the same lamp she's seen in a friend's home. Every home is different. Another person's lamp or table may be a total flop [Turn to page 148 when it's combined with your furnishings.

4. Don't do what you do just to be "correct." If the new type furniture or that new color is just what you've been dreaming about all your life, go ahead and buy it. You'll probably enjoy it for many years to come. But it won't be because it's new. Buy a new chest or chair because it has good design, but never buy it just because it's new or novel; you want your house to be a home, not a showroom. There's no rule in any of the decorating books that says you must have matched end tables and matched lamps at the ends of a sofa, yet all over America you'll find twin tables and twin lamps flanking a sofa—like twin fenders and headlamps. If you like twin lamps and tables, that's a different matter. But if yo feel you must have them to be "correct, you're working against yourself. There's n reason at all why you can't have un matched tables and lamps; in fact, you ma find an informal arrangement more in teresting than repetition.

5. Be genuinely enthuiastic about anything yo select. Don't add anything to your roon just to fill up space or because "that's wha everybody's doing." Rather, make you selection on the basis of personal prefer ence. If there's a color or a type of furni ture that gives you a lift every time yo enter the room—that's the color, that's th furniture for you. It will give you that sat isfaction for many years to come.

Much of the livable quality of t Bells' home stems from the den-dini room. In a former home, the Be found that guests would rather cro into the den than be entertained in more formal living room. That m the Bells decide on a large den-din room for their new home. They're c vinced now that it was a wise deci

The entrance door is a projection of the charm you find within—it impresses you as simple, unstudied elegance, yet there's careful attention to detail even to the flowers in the door-side garden. The Bells credit that to Landscape Designer Charles Parachete of the Evans and Reeves Nursery. The entrance door and shutters are painted a deep black-green

Nancy's floors were her despair
'Til she learned the proper care!

I'm getting ashamed to have people in," Nancy told her best friend. "My floors are a sight, getting shabbier every day. How do you keep your floors looking so nice?"

"My floors were worse than yours," her friend replied. "So bad we had to spend $200 refinishing them. Never again. Now I protect my floors with Johnson's Wax. Try it!"

Nancy took her friend's advice and waxed her floors regularly with genuine Johnson's Wax. Now they gleam bright as new again and will never need costly refinishing.

What a break for Nancy! She, lucky lady, learned before it was too late that when floors are finished with genuine Johnson's Wax the finish can't wear off!

It's 10 times faster with a Johnson's Wax Beautiflor Electric Polisher! You can rent one almost anywhere—available in 50,000 stores. Or you can buy one for $44.50.

Flatter your floors with the real protection only genuine wax can give! *

Decide to start waxing today. It never pays to neglect your floors. And it costs so little to protect them from wear with genuine Johnson's Polishing Wax!

Don't worry if applying genuine Johnson's Polishing Wax takes a little more time than self polishes take. It gives longer-lasting protection so waxings are many months apart.

And waxed floors are really easy to keep clean—much easier than carpeted floors. A dry mop whisks dust away.

Genuine Johnson's Wax comes in two forms—Paste and Liquid. Many people like Paste, because it's highly concentrated. Liquid is especially easy to use, and dry cleans floors as it waxes. Both give your floors real wax beauty and protection. Use either (or both) for the loveliest floors your home ever had. Begin today!

For lasting beauty and protection insist on genuine

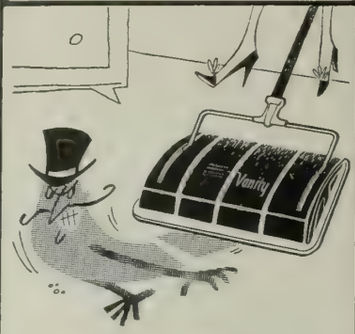
What's wrong with this family?

See problem, page 14

What's right. It's right and normal for Bobby to want to dress like the other kids. What are passing fads to you are genuine fashions to 10-year-olds. At his age, Bobby is just beginning to feel that he is part of the gang, rather than his parents' little boy. He's right in putting up a good, hard fight to be like the other kids, regardless of how his mother and dad feel. He's right, too, about wanting to have a say in choosing his clothes. He's no longer a baby. It's time he learned to take responsibility for some choices.

What's wrong. Bobby's father and mother mean well, but they are both dead wrong. Although it's hard for anyone to remember how he felt at 10, Mr. Keen should be able to recall that when he was that age some of the things which seemed silly to grownups were absolutely essential to his being a "regular guy." Mother may be right that the family budget can't stand two hats, but she should have done two things: (1) Made that point clear to Bobby who is old enough to have a share in planning items of the family budget that pertain to him; and (2) given Bobby the ultimate choice as to which it would be—a cowboy hat or a dressy one.

Mr. and Mrs. Keen seem to regard a hat as a serious matter. If they could look at it a little more casually, they would see that it is pretty unimportant. It's more important for Bobby to feel that his pals approve his style of dress than it is for him to dress so neighbors and friends of his folks will approve. As a 10-year-old, he's seeking to find himself as an individual in a world largely of his own peers, and it is important for him to feel that he "belongs" in this world.



There is some danger that if the Keens make an issue of it and demand obedience in relatively unimportant matters, they are jeopardizing their chances of getting Bobby to take their advice on really important issues. If he gets to feeling he never has the right to make a decision, even in choosing a hat, he will build up anger that will eventually flare into rebellion against everything his parents want. It's their job to differentiate between big and little issues.

If the Keens will let Bobby have a voice in matters which are important to him but are not really crucial, he will be more likely to listen to them when they do have to decide things that are important. Children learn best through their own experiences—and their own mistakes.

The overwhelming trend -show more oak

By Elizabeth Whitney

Home owners and decorators alike know why the trend—"show more oak"—is gaining popularity throughout the country. Simply, it is this: oak is the only flooring that provides home owners with all of the basic flooring needs.

First, oak is the most durable floor. It will withstand the weight of furniture and foot traffic better than any other floor.

Next, oak is the most economical floor. With oak the home owner never has to replace worn out sections. It is the lifetime floor.

Then, oak is the "healthiest" floor. With its natural insulating qualities it helps keep rooms warm in winter and cool in summer.

We decorators feel especially strong about the next two features of oak, because we know from experience how important they are: adaptability and beauty. Oak is the only flooring that is correct for every type of house, for every style of decorating and with every period of furnishings. In strip, plank or parquetry, oak adds to the beauty of every room in the home.

You can't go wrong with oak. It has everything everyone wants. That's why 85% of all prospective home owners prefer oak flooring.

let registers are best located directly under windows. T stream of warm air coming up from these registers pre- v s the constant "waterfall" of cold air which flows down fr h every window to create floor drafts.

ut a word of caution: A perimeter system can't work pr erly unless slab and ducts are kept free of moisture from th ground. With proper installation, however, you'll have a ting system that will keep you warm at all times.

Perimeter ducts are set on sheet-metal brackets attached to the foundation wall, then wired in place to keep them from floating when slab is poured. Note that tops of ducts at register locations are covered to keep out dust and rubbish till house is done and registers installed

Before the slab is poured, spaces at sides of and under ducts (remember, ducts are supported on brackets) are filled with a wet mix of about two inches of concrete. Then reinforcing mesh is laid over the waterproof membrane, and you're ready to pour concrete to the tops of the registers set in the floor

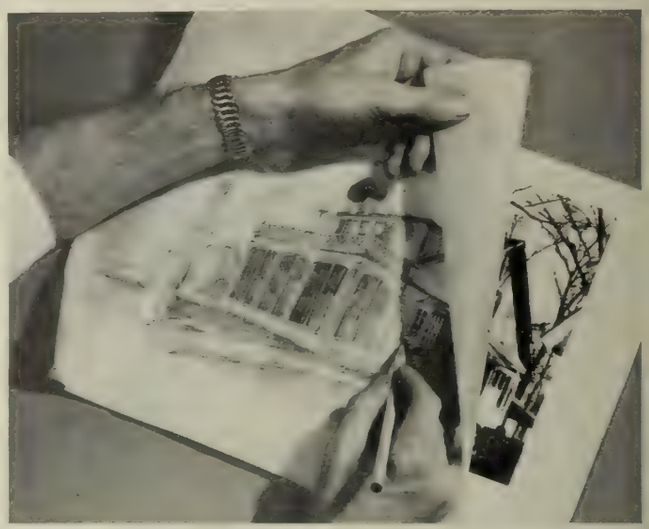
How to remodel

By W. Lockwood Martling, Jr., Architect



The homeowner doesn't live who at some time hasn't been overheard saying: "I'd sure like to remodel this place, but I don't know how to do it."

Hardly a house more than 10 years old exists that couldn't stand some remodeling, and the older the house, the more remodeling it needs. You don't want to go ahead with the fuss and expense of making over your home unless you're sure it can be done, and unless you're just as sure the result will satisfy you.

On this page you see the method I use in my work. By following this way of planning, you can work out the answers to your remodeling problems yourself. It will cost you at most a couple of dollars to learn if your home can be remodeled and how advisable it is financially. And you can have the fun of doing the preliminary planning yourself. If you then go to an architect, he will have a clear idea of your wants, and can straighten out any "bugs" in your sketch. If you go straight to a contractor, he can make a fairly accurate cost estimate from your drawing.

Step 1. Take a snapshot of the house to be remodeled. As long as picture is sharp and clear, size of camera isn't important. Then have the snapshot enlarged into an 11x14-inch, contrasty print

Step 2. Lay a piece of tracing paper over the enlarged print, and start your remodeling-on-paper. First use light lines you can easily erase, then darken them if they look right. You may use a whole roll of paper before you hit a solution that looks good to you

Step 3. Executing remodeling from plans is an exciting step. Will it look as you've drawn it? Houses look better in sketches than pictures because you can eliminate what you don't want to see. Note how closely finished house and my sketch compare

Mechanics, proud of their skill, usually scoff a idea that a novice can do a tradesman's job. B men who lay linoleum say anyone can do it.

As an amateur, you'll be slower and more lik spoil material. But given the right tools and p of time and temper, you can get the job done.

Here, in the photographs, are the basic thin should know to handle ordinary installations.

Required tools, some of which you may be a rent, include a 6-foot straightedge, a scriber, a bar, an adhesive spreader, and a sharp linoleum If at all possible, you should borrow or rent linoleum roller or a smooth lawn roller.

Smooth wood floor. Before laying linoleum over wood, re nail loose boards and replace those defective. Use plane t smooth edges of cupped boards, unevenness at joints. Chec with a flashlight behind straightedge. Fill cracks and hol wider than ⅛ inch with nonshrinking wood putty or glued-i wood strips. If possible, smooth the floor with a rented sande then seal with thin shellac to prevent warping from moistu

Clean wood floor. Painted, varnished, waxed, must be cleaned if not sanded. Strong solutio phosphate with stiff brush will remove paint. O mover; remove any wax residue with white gas or turpentine. Then scrub with soap and wate suds, avoiding excessive water that would ca swell. Let the floor dry completely before layin

By Ken Murray

Te colors and patterns of inlaid linoleum go rough the material and do not wear off. One type has ish-fiber, rag-felt backing that may be cemented ctly to the floor. Linoleum with burlap or plain cking should always be installed over lining felt.
Less-expensive, resilient floor coverings include nted-printed materials, usually made with a felt cking so no lining felt is required.
Before you lay linoleum, don't let notches of the ad-sive spreader become clogged. Don't let the adhesive mixer or roller stand on the finished job. Keep the om at 70 degrees at least for four days after laying, and ait a week before cleaning the linoleum.

Underlayment. Single-thickness wood floor is too springy for linoleum. Cover it with underlayment—4x4 or smaller sheets of plywood at least ¼ inch thick, or 4x4 sheets of 3/16-inch hardboard, smooth side down. With hardboard, leave 1/16-inch expansion joint between sheets. Dustproof with sheet of building paper between floor and underlayment. Secure with coated nails spaced 6 inches apart over the entire surface

Photographs: Murray

Concrete. Don't lay linoleum over concrete in contact ground; moisture deteriorates it. Concrete base should be dry, smooth, clean, and dry. To check for moisture, put 6-inch pieces of linoleum on concrete and check for moisture each after 24 hours. Or putty-seal powdered white anhy-drous cupric sulfate under glass (left). Should powder turn blue in 6 hours, floor is too damp. Seal cracks with crack filler

DON'T WASTE WASTE PAPER

Today it is an important armament material

• Old newspapers, magazines and used paper of every type—normally thrown away—are now materials vitally needed for building our defense program. They go into the making of the cartons and shipping cases in which most of our war materials are stored and shipped. They are used in the making of the insulating and building boards necessary for housing military personnel and civilian war workers. They are badly needed in a great many other industries.

Don't throw away or burn up a single piece of waste paper unnecessarily! Every piece you salvage is a real contribution to national defense.

An opportunity to earn extra money

The demand for waste paper is now terrific — and the prices are at a record high. Here is a wonderful opportunity for your organization —Scouts, Church or School Group, Club, Volunteer Firemen, Service Men's Club, etc. — to earn real money for new equipment or supplies. Organize paper collections—immediately—to be made at regular intervals. To dispose of your collections, call your nearest waste paper dealer (listed in the telephone book) or any paper mill.

Above all — don't destroy any kind of waste paper. Save it carefully. It will be used. This is an important and easy way in which you can help your country right now!

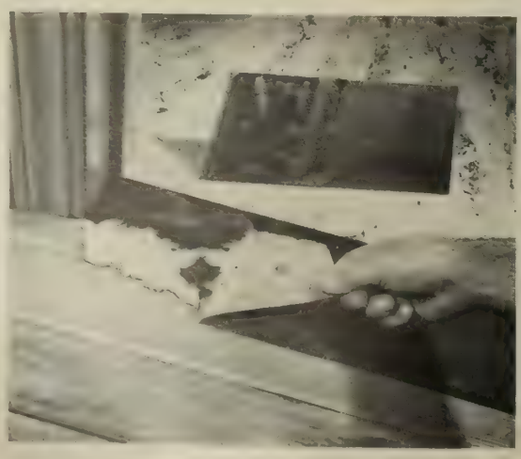
Remove trim. Lining felt is used between wood floor and burlap-back linoleum (as well as resilient tile) for leveling. It also cushions covering from the constant movement of wood floor. Many professionals use felt even under felt-back linoleum. Use pinch bar to remove quarter-round trim



Fit lining felt. Unroll felt and trim it to fit, with a minimu seams, along walls and around fixtures. Lay felt at right angl floor boards, avoiding seams that would fall under linoleum jo Felt joints must be butted, not lapped. Stagger end seams. Wit in place, hold one end temporarily with thumbtacks so it can't Turn opposite end halfway back, as pictured, and sweep the Room should be clear of movable furniture, no cooler than 70 d

Spread adhesive. Place linoleum paste on floor where felt is folded and spread it evenly with a notched trowel or spreader. Do not miss spots; they would cause blisters. On a plasterer's trowel, file notches 1/16 inch deep, 1/16 inch wide, ⅛ inch apart, on two adjoining edges. Most adhesive can be spread about 36 square feet ahead; watch to see that a skin does not form on the surface. Keep the adhesive container covered when you are not actually applying adhesive to keep it from hardening

Paste felt down. Cover pasted area with felt as possible, holding end and walking forward a With a rented 100- or 150-pound linoleum even a kitchen rolling pin if sufficient pres plied), roll the felt down firmly. Roll the from the center out to the edges to remove Continue in same manner with remaining

Changing levels. Sometimes one floor is that in an adjoining room. If difference is no 1/16 inch, you can build up linoleum at th Cut a 6-inch strip of felt to go across doorwa edge against edge of higher floor. Paste 4- to lower floor. How to use enamel

By Robert M. Ross

You'll get a satisfying finish on walls, woodwork, or furniture if you—

- ✓ Prepare the old surface properly
- ✓ Do a good undercoating job
- ✓ Apply the enamel carefully

If you do any handyman painting around your home, you probably have tried enamel. Were you satisfied with the results?

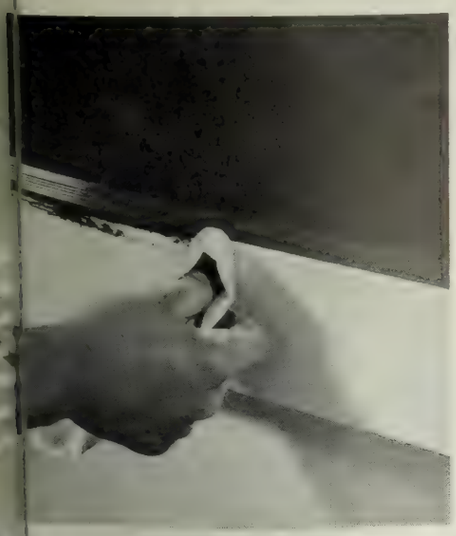
More than most other finishing methods, enameling calls for patience, know-how, and careful attention to details.

Enamel often has a varnish base, for example, to give it a durable, washable surface that makes it ideal for kitchen and bathroom use. But that very hardness makes it somewhat brittle, so it may chip or flake off if you have done a haphazard job of preparation or application.

Properly used, enamel flows to a glass-like smoothness. But if you are careless about runs, sags, and overlaps, or if you brush the enamel out too much, you may get a ragged, bumpy surface instead.

With enamel, you can get high-style color in high-gloss, semigloss, or satin finish. But the more gloss and protective hardness you get, the less covering power your finish will have. That means you should use a heavily pigmented undercoating, without gloss or durability but high in its ability to hide the old surface. A good undercoating does the job much better than applying an extra coat of enamel.

Here, in pictures, are some things you should know to give a professional touch to your next job of enameling.



How to enamel a paneled door

Molded edge first. To enamel a paneled door that has been washed, sanded, and undercoated, start on the top panel. Enamel molded edge first; then complete the center of the panel. Avoid using a quick-drying enamel for surfaces as large as a door; it might set too fast to give you a smooth job

Then center. Flow enamel on the center of the panel horizontally, starting at the top. Finish with light up-and-down strokes, using fairly dry brush. Let enamel flow together; if you brush it out too much, it may get tacky and fail to level. Complete any work on the frame before starting door

Remove overlapping. As you complete each panel, wipe away the overlapped edge of wet enamel with a cloth. Painting over this edge would give a double thickness that would leave a ropy effect on the finished door. Check work for runs and sags, and level with a light brushing before they dry

Rails next. After the panels, enamel the horizontal rails. Avoid overlapping onto panel edges, and try to cut a straight line with brush where a rail meets a vertical stile. The more pains you take, the better your finished job will be. After rails, paint edges of door, again wiping away ragged overlap

Vertical stiles last. Complete the door by enameling side stiles carefully. If enamel has started to set, overlapping areas will show. Removing the door hardware actually saves you time, allows a clean job. Keep parts together in a convenient box

Tinting. For a true final color, it is wise to tint your enamel undercoater to approach color of the finish coat. That is especially true of deep colors. To tint, mix the color-in-oil from a tube with a little turpentine. Then add it drop by drop to the undercoater, stirring thoroughly, until you reach desired shade. You can color the enamel, too, if you can't find the shade you want, but be sure to mix enough for entire job at once

"Automatic-Furnace" heating that fits in your floor!

Imagine a complete automatic furnace that fits in the floor! That's the wonder of Coleman's "Shalloflow" Floor Furnace. So shallow it needs no basement or excavation. Yet it has full heating power—circulates heat far and fast for big heating performance, heats 3 to 5 rooms.

The "Shalloflow" tends itself—no solid-fuel grime, no ashes to dirty your home. It really cuts fuel costs because it burns less fuel, burns it clean. For cleanliness, economy and comfort—what a performer!

The Coleman DUAL WALL Floor Furnace is for those hard-to-heat separated rooms where walls prevent easy flow of warm air. Warm air is thrown into rooms on both sides of the wall by scientifically designed double wall registers.

HOW TO KEEP WARMER—with a blanket of AIR!

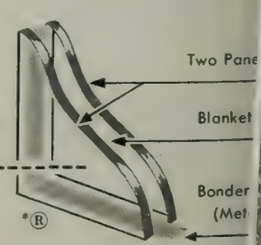
Yes, air. It's hermetically sealed between two panes of glass in the modern windowpane—*Thermopane insulating glass. What a difference it makes!

With Thermopane you don't have to move away from your windows in cold weather to avoid drafts. It's like adding a couple of feet to your rooms.

Thermopane cuts in half the heat you lose through single-paned windows. That saves fuel—plenty. Cuts down frost and steam on windows, too.



And what a boon to the man of the house . . . this self-insulating window stays in all year. No storm sash to put up or take down. Or wash or paint. Thermopane is installed when your house is built—and your window insulating job is done once-and-for-all.

You can use Thermopane in every window in the house—picture, double-hung, casement, sliding, awning—any type of window. Your L·O·F Glass distributor or dealer, or your building supply dealer, can tell you all about it. Or write for Thermopane booklet. DEVOE POINTERS for home painters

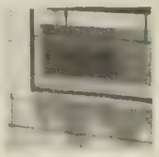
What to do with paint leftovers—If full of lumps, strain through old nylon or silk stocking before using again.

How to apply varnish or enamel quickly—Use a roller coater and finish by smoothing lightly with tip of brush.

Easy way to wipe up paint spatter—Slip a pair of old socks over your shoes and "skate-up" paint drops on floor.

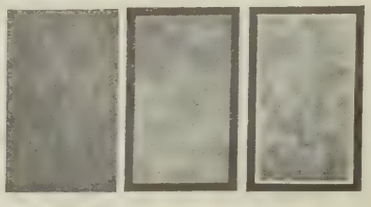
Tip for painting chairs and tables—Drive a nail part way into each leg-end. Helps prevent smearing the floor.



How to keep can clean while painting—Drive nail holes into lip so paint flows back when brush is wiped on edge.

For painting masonry surfaces—Use a nylon brush for longer wear. Better ask for a "Superkleen" Nylon brush.

If paint runs down brush handle when painting ceiling, you are dipping brush too deep. Don't "press"—use bristle tips.



How to keep window screens from staining house—One coat of Devoe Zinc Dust Paint on your screens prevents staining for years.

YOU can get all the painting accessories that you need—and many more helpful tips—at the sign of the Devoe Diamond. Why not stop in and see your Devoe dealer very soon? You'll find his name listed in the Classified Section of your Phone Book.

Sure, you can lay linoleum

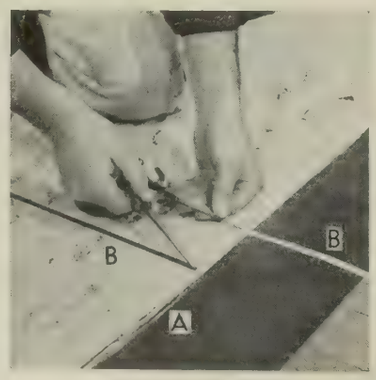
Room patterns. These are the three most common ways of laying linoleum—wall to wall, simple border, and combined border and feature strip. Personalized insets in contrasting colors are also possibilities for consideration



Scribing side. To lay wall to wall, cut a length 2 or 3 inches longer than needed to reach wall to wall. Lay at right angle to floor boards. Push side edge to about 1 inch from wall, on a straight line, with ends riding baseboard.

Use heavy dividers as scriber, holding at right angle to wall. Draw scriber full length of the piece. Then, with a sharp linoleum knife, trim about ⅛ inch inside scribed line to assure an easy fit. Gap will be covered with the quarter round of baseboard

Scribing ends. To fit ends of linoleum, first place cut edge (above) against wall, with ends riding baseboard.

Chalk line (A) on lining felt or wood underfloor. Use uncut side of linoleum as a guide. Next, chalk key mark (B) on the linoleum and floor

Set scriber. Next, shift the linoleum sheet so one end butts against the baseboard. Keep the front edge true with the guideline (A). Set your scriber to the distance the key mark (B) has been separated by the shifting

Scribe and cut end. Check to be sure edge of linoleum remains on guideline. With the scriber set, scribe contour of wall on end of sheet. Trim on scribed line. Repeat same operation at other end, and first sheet has been cut to fit three walls. You can now paste it and roll it, using the same method previously described for laying lining felt

Doorways. Depending on type of doorway, linoleum may extend halfway through or only to doorstop. In either case, use scriber to transfer exact contour, with straightedge or strip of metal edging across doorway as a depth guide. Steel square will aid in scribing some of the lines accurately. At doorways, cut on the lines instead of making allowance for expansion

Fitting sheets. For exact fit where one sheet meets another, use overlapping. Lap second sheet ¾ inch over fixed one; then scribe and cut ends. Put straightedge on overlap, ⅜ inch from edge of top sheet. Trim the top sheet with enough pressure to mark bottom one. Then trim fixed sheet on mark, holding knife at right angle with floor. With figured linoleum, it pays to match the pattern carefully hing seam. Paste down sheet as you did the Do not fit the seams htly, especially in new ings where contraction cause tight seams to e tented. Clean off any s of adhesive with a cloth, then rub all seams with the face of mer to smooth them. the same procedures you have finished the floor-covering project

Around pipes. To fit linoleum under radiators and around similar obstructions, use the scriber to cut holes for legs and pipes. With pressure, leg of scriber will cut almost through linoleum; then disc will snap out when bent. Sometimes you can lift radiator legs to slip linoleum beneath. To fit around pipes, make a safety cut from edge to hole. To place sheet, roll sides of cut back to pass pipe

Builders prefer

for their own homes

When so many leading builders install Janitrol gas heating for the complete assurance of their own home comfort . . . there can be no doubt that this equipment must offer more in efficiency and dependable performance.

So, if you are planning to build or remodel an old home for greater comfort, investigate this great preference for Janitrol gas heating. Your local Janitrol dealer will show you the many advanced design features that make Janitrol, in the builders' opinion, and many, many thousands of home owners . . . the best heating buy.

Remember, it's the combination of more than 30 years' gas heating experience, the modern design of all units, quality workmanship, plus the economics of mass production that make Janitrol equipment so outstanding by comparison.

SURFACE COMBUSTION CORPORATION • TOLEDO, OHIO

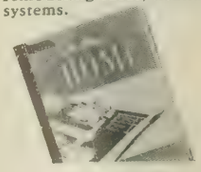
WINTER AIR CONDITIONERS

Because of extreme compactness, Janitrol Winter Air Conditioners meet a wide variety of heating needs. No basement is required and units can be conveniently tucked away in utility room, closet or adjoining garage.

WARM AIR RADIANT HEAT

Radiant panel heating with a Janitrol unit brings many advantages to certain types of construction. Warm air circulated in either floor, ceilings or both, does away with room registers or radiators.

HOT WATER CONVECTOR HEAT



Janitrol Gas-Fired Boilers are used extensively in many sections of the country for both small and large homes. Using recessed wall convectors, radiation is inconspicuous yet highly efficient for economical heating.

HOT WATER RADIANT HEAT

Janitrol is one of the leaders in this newer type of heating. The system is especially well adapted to one-floor rambling floor plans that have become so popular in many sections. Floors or ceilings or both are used as the radiant panels.

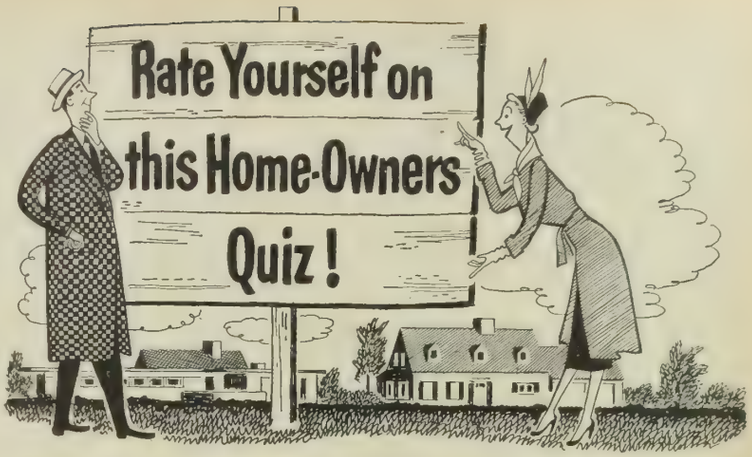
him to get good marks at school. Did you ever stop to realize, though, that you may be seeking satisfaction for yourself, not for your youngsters? It's Pop who gets the big thrill when Junior learns how to catch a ball before he's 3½. It's Mom who has the most fun when 6-year-old Janie plays a difficult piece on the piano.

Or take the case of 10-year-old Margie. What her folks wanted most was for their girl to be charming and popular. Even before her tenth birthday, Margie's mother began to urge her to take an interest in boys. She encouraged her to wear lipstick, to develop a coy manner, to wear clothes suitable for a high-school freshman. She and her husband were sure it would make Margie happy to be so much ahead of the other girls in her class.



Margie seemed willing enough, and her folks were proud of her. Then one day, out of the blue, Margie started stuttering. She had never had any trouble with her speech, so her folks were pretty upset. They were even more upset when Margie began to wet her bed. She did it every night for a month. She was scolded; she was punished; she was reminded that a big girl of 10 had no business behaving like a 2-year-old. Margie kept it up till her folks caught on to the idea that she was going back into childish behavior because they were demanding she be too grown-up. Margie took off her lipstick and high-school clothes and began to enjoy being 10 again.

Whether you're trying to get your youngster to tie his shoes, or construct a model airplane, or go to dances, you can make it lots easier for him if you don't expect him to take a new step until he's ready for it.

Between steps, he wants—and needs—your encouragement. Don't be so anxious to hurry him on to more grown-up behavior that you forget to appreciate the effort he does make, or the skill he does show. When a youngster senses that nothing he does is going to be good enough, you shouldn't be surprised if he stops making any effort to please you. And don't give in to the temptation to push him all the harder, because then he'll just just sit back and do nothing at all.

Admittedly, it's not always easy for you to tell when your boy or girl is ready to master a new skill or take on a new responsibility. You may feel sure he's ready, when he really isn't. Even when a youngster seems to have developed the skill to do a certain thing, he isn't necessarily ready to do it. He must also develop an emotional readiness—in other words, he has to get to the stage when he wants to use his skill.

Three-year-old Jimmie is old enough to know what his mother

Q. What advantage does a reflective insulation have?

☐ Radiant heat loss barrier ☐ Convected heat loss barrier ☐ Vaporseal

A. In the case of a reflective product like KIMSUL* insulation, all three answers are correct. KIMSUL combines a thick, many-layer fiber blanket to resist convected heat—and an aluminum foil cover to turn back radiant heat. This double protection is the most effective method of stopping heat loss ever devised. The aluminum foil cover also acts as a vaporseal to prevent harmful condensation within the structure of the house.

Q. Can I afford to insulate my house?

☐ Yes ☐ If income is over $5,000 ☐ Depends on climate

A. Yes, anyone can afford to insulate his house. Most insulations can cut yearly fuel bills almost in half—so the money you pay initially is paid back through fuel savings within 2 to 4 years. To insulate the average 6-room house with KIMSUL (either Regular or Reflective) costs about $150—or less than the cost of a good easy chair.

Q. What existing homes can be insulated?

☐ Homes under 20 years old ☐ Only ranch houses ☐ Any type home

A. Any home, regardless of style or age, can be insulated. KIMSUL insulation provides lifetime protection in any climate. It is resistant to fire, vermin and mold, will not sag or settle. You can install it yourself or your dealer can arrange for professional installation.

Q. How thick should insulation be?

☐ 10 inches ☐ 2 inches ☐ 5 inches

A. Beyond 2 inches, building insulation cannot stop much additional heat loss. It is far more suitable to use a 2-inch thick blanket insulation that does not completely fill up the space. The air spaces thus created on both sides of the blanket form added barriers to heat loss—and also help prevent paint failure or rotting of wood due to condensation.

means when she tells him to put away his toys. But he's not ready yet to see why he should bother. In a few months, he'll be old enough to know how to put on most of his clothes and button his sweater. But it will take a while longer for him to realize why he should.

Ruth, at 12, knows how to bathe and feed her two baby brothers and put them to bed, but that doesn't mean her mother should expect her to do it every night.

Sure, you may coax—or force—your youngster to take responsibilities he's not prepared for. And maybe he'll cooperate placidly enough, and never let on how uneasy or annoyed he feels. On the other hand, he may respond by purposely making mistakes, or by flatly refusing to do anything that's expected of him.

Some children become dawdlers. Seven-year-old Willie was one of those. Willie dawdled when he was getting dressed; he lagged over his cereal; he was late getting to school and late coming home for lunch. When his mother would tell him, "Now be sure to be home by 4," Willie would say, "Sure, Mom," and then saunter in casually at 5 or 5:30. Willie's parents wouldn't have been so exasperated if Willie hadn't been able to tell time since he was 5. They didn't realize though, that until Willie was 8 or so, punctuality wouldn't mean a thing in his young life.

It's the same story with neatness and cleanliness. Of course, a child of 5 or 6 is capable of washing his hands and keeping his shoes tied, but he's not ready yet to want to stay neat and clean.

Remember, too, that all youngsters don't develop at the same rate. Perhaps you've been worried that there might be something seriously wrong with your youngster because he hasn't learned to read or do multiplication tables as fast as the girl next door. Or perhaps you're concerned because one child in your family doesn't seem to be catching on to a new skill as speedily as his older brother or sister did. If you don't realize that each boy or girl develops at his own individual rate—this goes even for identical twins—you may find yourself pushing your youngsters until he shows signs of "measuring up" to others. Or you may act so disappointed that he can't help but get the idea that he's not as good as his brother, or the boy next door.

Your youngster will be better off, too, if you'll remember another important fact: All boys and girls grow in three different ways—physically, mentally, and emotionally—at three different rates. Every youngster is bound to sprint ahead in one area, or lag behind in another, or be just about average in a third. Sometimes, youngsters realize this better than you do.

Bobby's folks encourage him to play with boys of 15 and 16, because Bobby's so much huskier than most 13-year-olds. They don't sense, as Bobby does, that he is way behind his playmates mentally and emotionally. Naturally he won't admit this to his parents. What he has done is to become an aggressive bully who rides roughshod over everyone younger and weaker than he is. He throws a fit whenever anyone doesn't do as he says. His parents can't understand how any boy could be so unmanageable. They have no idea that it's all their fault.

Then there's Ruthann, who is 14, and at the head of her class. She's a quiet, obedient girl, and her folks haven't had much trouble convincing her that if she studies a lot, she'll stay on top. She doesn't complain when they insist that she busy herself with "worthwhile" activity, or when they tell her that play is a waste of time for a girl who wants to get ahead. They don't realize that Ruthann is small and physically underdeveloped for her age, and that she lacks the self-possession of many girls of 14, but they don't think those things matter. That's their biggest mistake. Their second mistake has been to assume that any girl or boy can thrive under as strict a routine as they have tried to impose on Ruthann. They can't expect anyone to be happy or to live up to his fullest capacity unless he's given free rein to develop spontaneously, in the direction that's best for him.

Again, you may be trying to transplant your ambitions or your hopes onto your youngsters. This tendency to treat your children always designed to satisfy you, is an extremely powerful one. Parents often do it without realizing it. You're especially likely to do it if you're consciously trying to get your son or girl to do things which you were never able to do yourself—or because you didn't have the chance or the talent.

Sometimes this sort of thing works out fine, when your youngster is naturally inclined in the direction you want him to go, and when he's able to live up to your expectations without too much difficulty. But there may be trouble ahead if you're anxious to have your son or daughter become something which he or she cannot possibly become.

Needless to say, it's even harder on a youngster when each parent tries to push him in a different direction. A 14-year-old boy I know, who was already graduated from high school, has his parents into a tizzy because he announced that he had no intention of going on to college. He thought he'd rather go somewhere, in a store perhaps, maybe he'd just do nothing for a while. His folks were alarmed, but neither of them had the courage to notion that they'd brought up. Ever since he was little, Bobby and dad had been driving him to make something of himself. Mother each had been trying to drive him up a different alley. Hi[s] father given his all to make him a concert violinist. His mother has been trying just as hard to get him become a scientist. For [Turn to page]

FOR OUTSTANDING VALUE CHOOSE A

Concrete House

BUILDING a house usually is a once-in-a-lifetime experience. Naturally you want your past savings and future earnings to buy the utmost in house value.

Just as some fabrics make better clothing buys, so do some construction materials make better building values. Whatever size or style house you're planning, you'll get outstanding value if you build with concrete because a concrete house delivers:

OUTSTANDING COMFORT An insulated concrete house has year-around comfort even in rigorous climates—warm in winter, cool in summer, clean and dry at all times.

OUTSTANDING BEAUTY Concrete masonry can be laid in many charming patterns and finished with an attractive portland cement paint or a distinctively textured stucco.

OUTSTANDING PROTECTION A house with concrete foundations, walls, subfloors and a firesafe roof assures you lifelong security. Concrete provides maximum firesafety because concrete can't burn! It also is resistant to storms, decay, quakes and termites.

OUTSTANDING ECONOMY A concrete house is moderate in first cost, requires less maintenance and fewer repairs and lasts a lifetime. Result: low annual cost. A concrete house costs you less per year to own.

Yes, when you invest your savings in a concrete house you reap lifelong dividends in comfortable living, lasting beauty, maximum protection and low-annual-cost shelter. For more information send for free book "Why People Like Concrete Homes." Distributed only in U. S. and Canada.

HOW TO GET YOUR CONCRETE HOUSE

. . . and what will it cost?

Phone a local concrete masonry manufacturer for names of architects and builders experienced in concrete house design and construction. They know local conditions existing in your community and can tell you about plans and costs.

Take any plans or sketches you have to an architect. Have him show you how your home—of any size, style or floor plan—can be built economically with concrete foundations, concrete walls and subfloors and a firesafe roof.

Wondering about baby's first winter?

1. How warm should the nursery be?

Healthy babies are happiest in a daytime temperature of 68-70°F. Overwarm dry air can make baby's skin feel miserably prickly. That's why daily lubrication with Johnson's Baby Oil is especially important in winter. Smooth on after baths, after diaper changes.

2. Should baby wear "woolies"?

Most authorities feel that all-wool next to baby's skin isn't desirable. A mixture of wool and cotton is kinder to its delicacy. Frequent sprinklings with Johnson's Baby Powder are soothing, too. Babies love its gentle touch. Mothers love its baby-sweet fragrance.

3. How about baths on wintry days?

Baby needs his bath every day, winter or summer. Just see that the room's warm, (about 75°F.) at bath time, and free from drafts. Pat dry, don't rub. Finish with a smoothover of Johnson's Baby Oil or Johnson's Baby Powder. Wise mothers keep both on the nursery tray.

Joey had finished a painting of a deer and brought it with modest pride to show his mother and father. "What kind of creature is that?" his mother asked. "Red body, blue antlers. Nobody ever saw a deer like that."

Joey summoned all his dignity. "Perhaps no adult ever saw one," he said—and walked away.

It's an old story in art circles but a good one, for it illustrates the kind of basic difference in point of view that leads all too many parents—with the best intentions in the world—to stifle any creative artistic talent [Turn to next page

Family interest builds enthusiasm, but don't gush with praise. Let the artist do the explaining: ask questions when pictures baffle you. He may just dabble around at first, trying out effects. If he never gets past this stage, you can suggest that he paint something that is of special interest to him, but don't do it for him that their youngsters might have.

At New York's Museum of Modern Art, a new course was offered experimentally last spring for both mothers and children. Victor D'Amico, director of the museum's department of education, organized it for two reasons—to stress for parents the importance of youngsters' creative activity and to look into ways adults can encourage its growth.

What did the parents learn? Plenty. And most of it was the sort of knowledge you can put to use right now with your own children in your own home.

Youngsters need two things, these mothers discovered, if their interest and skill in art is to flourish—the proper equipment and surroundings and a reasonable, understanding attitude on the part of the adults around them.

The materials required are simple, but they should be of good quality. The packaged paint sets most youngsters are given too frequently aren't. Assemble a set for your child from poster paints or show-card colors—red, blue, yellow, black, and white; large, flat-bristled students' brushes, with firmly fastened bristles, in quarter-inch, half-inch, three-quarter, and one-inch widths; a cellulose kitchen sponge.

White drawing paper, 18x24 inches, or plain newsprint, sold in pads, will serve as their "canvas."

Such materials should be easy to get in any art-supply or department store. If you can't find them in your town, you'd do better to order them than to settle for something less.

You can set up a "studio" for your young artist in almost any reasonably quiet corner in your home. One mother of two propped her 5-year-old's easel on a broad window ledge where he could paint undisturbed by his crawling brother.

When your child gets down to business with his paints brushes, you needn't feel calle to rave over the results.

In fact, according to D'An you shouldn't. Instead, be i ested and encouraging in a ca way. If the day's output has prolific, ask how one picture re to another, look at the colors the brushwork, be curious a how they were achieved.

That red and blue deer—if young artist was like every o D'Amico has ever known—v those colors for a purpose. might simply ask, "Why did paint him that way?" When yo baffled, admit it. Your child wi happy to explain. He'll al have an answer.

WHY You Can Operate Zenith TV from Your Easy Chair

THIS MIRACLE TURRET TUNER IS THE SECRET... and only Zenith has it!

You sit anywhere in the room... blissfully relaxed... with Zenith's wonderful "Lazy Bones" Remote Control in your palm. You press lightly with your thumb, and change programs one after another! No jumping up, not one knob to touch or re-tune! This operation of the tuner by remote control is possible because Zenith's Turret Tuner is truly a miracle of automatic precision and stability!

Yes, all the necessary adjustments are made for you automatically, all at one time... and this tuner is so heavy—so sturdy—that even years of constant use will not cause its contacts to lose their precision and let the picture drift and fade!

And that's not all... this tuner is so much more sensitive that even in far outlying locations, it takes signals too weak for other sets to handle, and turns them into beautifully clear, steady pictures!

What's more, there is no other tuner in television so easily, quickly, inexpensively adapted in your home to receive the proposed new ultra-high frequencies on present standards, without an external converter!

Please remember—ONLY ZENITH HAS THIS TURRET TUNER. So regardless of what you read or hear, before you invest in television be sure to see for yourself that Zenith is different from all others... indeed, the Royalty of Television. Your Zenith dealer invites you to prove this in your own home, before you buy.

Build on the bias . . . .

You can gain privacy and sunlight by building your home at an angle—even on a small lot

By Pauline Graves

Your home doesn't have to stand shoulder to shoulder in a military formation with other houses in your block.

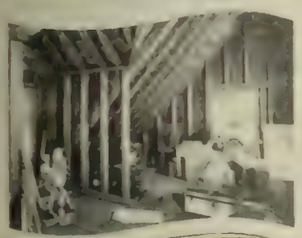
Even on a small lot, it's possible to turn your house so it's not parallel to the street; and you'll find three advantages to putting your home at an angle.

First, you gain privacy. Your windows won't look into your neighbors' and your neighbors won't be able to see into yours. Your grounds will be hidden from passers-by.

Second, you make fullest use of your land. You won't have narrow, useless, strips of lawn along the sides of your house. You can use your house and garage to divide your land into separate areas, each with a distinct purpose.

Third, whether your lot runs east-west or north-south, [Turn to page 191

1 This is the living terrace. A high hedge (right) shields it from street, and a trellis can separate this terrace from the bedroom terrace (picture, right). Since terrace is on the east, it is in shade from midafternoon on, remains free of reflected heat, is cool and comfortable in the evening



2 This is the play terrace. It's on the southeast where it gets sun from midmorning to late afternoon. Extensions of the house walls and a roof overhang keep direct sun off the large glass area. All bedrooms open here, making secluded terrace ideal for sunbathing or a place to chat

here's the ATTIC that made me feel blue...

and helpful Mr. HAWKINS who knew what to do...

You can enjoy a room like this, and have it pay for itself! Thousands of families are discovering the Nu-Wood and Balsam-Wool System for better and more comfortable homes. Read this short story, and you'll want to get started now.

No wonder I felt blue! There I was, practically a grown-up teen-ager, sharing a room with Susan, a mere tot of nine. And a perfectly good attic space going to waste!

Dad took a dim view, at first, about remodeling. But he changed his mind after talking to Mr. Hawkins, our lumber dealer. "We'll start with Balsam-Wool insulation to protect against winter cold and summer heat," Mr. Hawkins said. "Then apply Nu-Wood for the walls and ceiling to make a beautiful room that actually will pay for itself."

"It's really not magic," Mr. Hawkins explained. "The Nu-Wood and Balsam-Wool System means simply that you can add comfort to your entire house with Balsam-Wool in the attic—and Nu-Wood quickly creates additional living space. Your Balsam-Wool will save enough in fuel bills to pay for itself and the Nu-Wood, too."

You'll like the low cost of Nu-Wood. It goes up quickly, and there's no painting muss because Nu-Wood is factory-decorated. Balsam-Wool is easily applied. It can't sag or settle to leave uninsulated spaces . . . and it comes with a money-back guarantee.

Why not put the Nu-Wood and Balsam-Wool System to work in your house—now?

Send for this beautiful decorator book. It's full of ideas showing how you can make old rooms new again with Nu-Wood. Mail 10 cents for your copy.

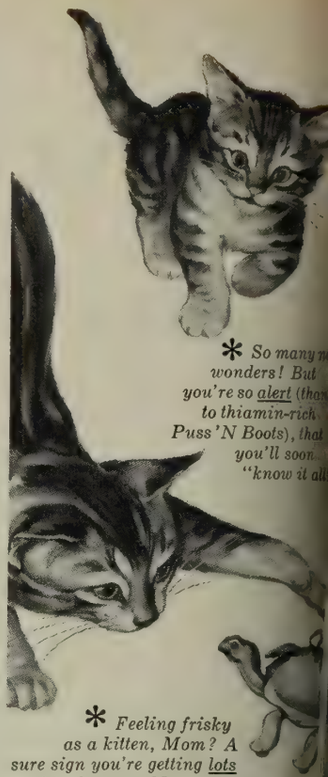
this point, however, he may need some help. Try to find out what he's interested in, what he sees. A city parent might look out the window with her youngster and draw him out about what the view means to him. Does he see first the tall buildings or the people; electric signs or lights in people's windows? Is the mood dark and dismal or bright and gay? Throw the responsibility to him.



A chance to look at good paintings may stimulate his interest. You can buy inexpensive prints of good art. Pin up first one, then another, in his "art" corner and let him decide what he likes.

That sort of thing is all some children need to start them painting like mad. Other youngsters, maybe just to get attention, keep asking for technical assistance. Don't try to solve their problems by doing the job yourself. You needn't refuse to help—just explain that you can't do things their way. Learn your role as audience and critic and keep it well defined. Get your child to tell you how he worked out the part he's already done and very likely, once his prestige is restored, he'll find his own way out of his problem.

Other youngsters like to work by themselves but keep trying to lean on an adult's opinion. "Is this good?" they'll ask. You can counter that one with "If you'll tell me what you're trying to do, I'll tell you if you've accomplished it."

Making collages (odds and ends of all kinds of things, pasted on paper) often helps youngsters "loosen up" and opens their eyes to differences in textures, color, and design. Copying is impossible in this art, which is based on inventiveness rather than special technique. A typical collage—if there were such a thing—might consist of a pussywillow catkin, some bits of raveled rope, sequins, cellophane straws, feathers, and a snip of bright silk, all pasted in the child's

Do cats get rabies?—R. K. B., Maryland.

Indeed cats are attacked by rabies, though not as frequently as dogs. Perhaps they're protected a little by living a more sheltered, confined life. A bulletin issued by the Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, says: "As a rule, rabies in cats implies danger for human beings. . . . The rabid cat becomes very bellicose. . . . It will suddenly attack animals or persons, especially children, jumping up to the face and inflicting severe wounds with its teeth and claws." Our fine German Shepherd is 11 years old and has never been sick. But lately he rubs the sides of his mouth on the floor and seems to be in distress. What could be the cause?—Mrs. M. V. B., California.

Pawing at the mouth or rubbing jaws along the floor is usually a sign of tooth trouble. Abscesses and the like are not easily seen. It may be a good idea to have a veterinarian take an X-ray of the dog's mouth.

I am told that if I mate my 3-year-old female, her chance of a long life is cut in half. Is this true?—Mrs. T. R., West Virginia.

Your letter adds one more quaint dog theory to my collection. As a matter of fact, mating the female rounds out her life, brings out the bloom, and helps to avert a number of internal disorders.

How much will it cost to feed a Chihuahua?—G. Mc., Indiana.

Cost of feeding a full-grown Chihuahua would probably be less than $1 per week.

I have had my dog 2 years. His former owner had him 2 years, too. Now I have to give him away. Will he be able to adapt himself to a third owner?—S. G., New Jersey.

Yes. It may take a while, but dogs realize on which side their bread is buttered and go along with such a change.

Our male Scotty used to love children, but he has recently taken a thorough dislike to them since they throw rocks at him. We want to know how to overcome this dislike, as we expect to have children of our own sometime.—Mrs. S. K., Maine.

Nothing will isolate a dog from children more quickly and more permanently than abuse or teasing at their hands. There is no "cure" for the present situation. Dogs are stubborn about their convictions. But they're also smart. When you do have children of your own, your pet will be quick to recognize and love those of his own family. You will have no trouble there.

own way on a sheet of colored art paper. Collecting material for collages is a continuing game that parents and children can play together. In one family, they make it a point to gather odd bits and bright pieces wherever they go, storing them all in a treasure box. In another you may join in a 15-minute scavenger hunt about the house in search of material. You can make another type of collage by using clay as a base, and imbedding bright beads and buttons and branches—anything at all—in its soft surface. This is a good way to introduce youngsters to the pleasant feel of clay and its special plastic properties.

A simple wooden tongue depressor cut diagonally across makes a good knife to use in clay modeling.

"Making rubbings" especially helps youngsters become aware of texture. A piece of reasonably strong paper and a soft crayon is all you'll need for this. Try it yourself. Put the paper on a wicker chair or a corrugated glass window or a piece of textured fabric. Rub the crayon over the paper—there's your design.

These are some of the down-to-earth things you can do with your youngster to help liberate his experimental, exploratory spirit. The increased sensitivity and general awareness they create will be reflected in his paintings. There's something more, though, you can do for yourself—pick up a paintbrush and find out firsthand how much fun art can be.

As one of the mothers at the museum class explained, "I know now what it means to be so engrossed in 'play' that I don't always hear when I'm spoken to. Painting alongside my little girl, I've learned to respect her ability in a new way; we've developed a feeling of working together and yet apart, and I understand completely how she feels when she begs, as I call her, 'Oh, just let me finish this one painting, please!' "

A house to live by

A house "just" made of lumber,
And a house "just" made of brick,
Soon becomes outmoded
And falls down mighty quick.
The house we live in differs
'Cause the things which make it stand
Are the qualities of friendship
And our ever-helping hand.
Yes, the storms that tear at other doors
Descend upon our own,
But the qualities that keep our house
Are those that make a HOME.

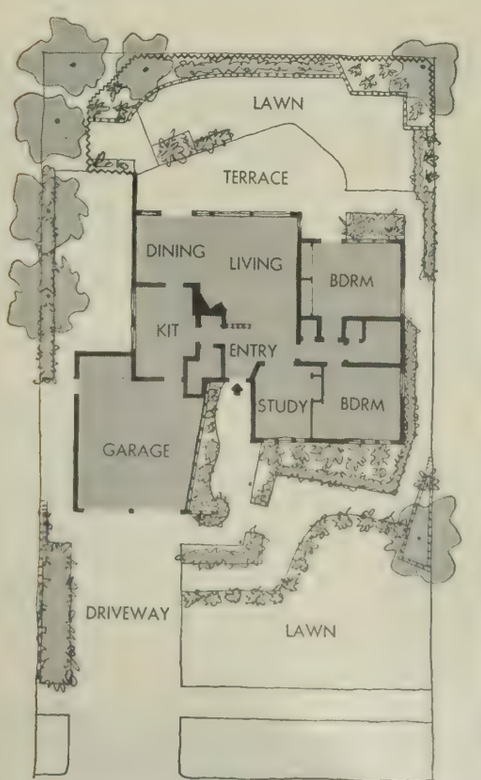
More living in less space

By using sound landscaping ideas, the Barrett family found an abundance of easy-to-care-for living space on their small lot

Lounging has lots of appeal on the protected, easily accessible concrete terrace around which most of the Barrett family activities center. The roof extends over the terrace—which h a southeast exposure—for protection fr weather. Roof lets the light in, keeps glare



Too taken up with business to any longer maintain their first, and larger, homesite the way they wanted it, Mr. and Mrs. Nestor Barrett agreed to build a new home on a smaller lot.

They felt that on a better-organized small lot—65x119 feet—they could get as much living satisfaction as from their bigger place.

Now they "wouldn't change a thing" about the new home. They point out that their new garden is as much or more a part of their furnishings as their sofas and tables.

When glimpsed through the large windows from the house, the terrac links the inside with the out-of-doors. You can step out on the terrace fr the Barrett living-dining area or from the back bedroom. Fence gives

Architects Higgins and Root, Landscape Architect Geraldine Scott designed the plan

Photographs: Weymouth

Front elevation is planned for easy upkeep. Brick borders, here and at back of the lot, make plant care simpler. By placing walks near the lot lines to conform with legal requirements, all areas on the lot are easily accessible

Tree wounds and cavities

Q Recently, I removed a limb from one of our trees. Is it true that wounds left on trees after branches are cut off should be painted? S. R. B., Ohio

Photograph: Stanley

Yes, all wounds more than one inch in diameter should be treated to prevent rot fungi from entering. Because it takes a long time for large, unpainted wounds to heal over, rot gets established. Paint the wounds with a nontoxic material such as orange shellac or one of the available tree paints as soon as limbs are cut off. Apply several coats. Don't use regular house paints.

Q A good-sized cavity has developed in the trunk of our large shade tree. Can such a tree be saved? If so, how do we go about it? R. J., Connecticut

Fletcher

Chances are good that your tree can be saved. Above is a filling, done by a qualified tree surgeon, that is healing over. He has the tools and equipment to make the right-shaped wound for most rapid healing over, removing every trace of rot from the cavity, and filling the hole with layers of concrete. If you don't know a qualified tree surgeon, the National Arborist Association, P. O. Box 426, Wooster, Ohio, can give you the names of those closest to you.

Stanley

The same honeysuckle screen, shoulder-high by mid-June. The root system supports less top after cutting back; rejuvenation is rapid. Trim new shoots with clippers to thicken the growth

By Dr. L. C. Grove

If shrubs around your home have grown out of control, don't hesitate to do something about it. There is no danger in pruning normally healthy shrubs if you prune or shear them properly. Start with late-flowering kinds now; do early-flowering varieties after they've bloomed. Here's the difference between pruning and shearing:

Pruning means cutting individual branches back to side branches or outside buds to improve appearance, bloom, or health. It may involve cutting out dead or diseased canes or rejuvenating hedges by cutting them back to the ground.

Shearing is a form of pruning in which all young shoots that extend beyond definite limits on a hedge or shrub are cut back so that a predetermined size or shape is retained.

Cutting back has forced out four strong shoots on honeysuckle cane at left. New shoots cut back now will branch similarly. Make cut ¼ inch above second or third bud, at an angle, with high point of the cut on the outside

How to keep big shrubs in bounds

Before. Honeysuckle plants above are spaced too far apart for a tight hedge, but make a good screen for privacy. Thick, brushy undergrowth about 3 feet from ground shows where cutting was done previously. Cut all new canes back to the second or third buds

After. By mid-June, growth on the pruned shrubs is luxurious; privacy for picnics and summer outdoor living is assured. Regular shearing is necessary to keep a hedge or screen a definite height or width—and more satisfactory than cutting back every spring or so

Stanley; Fletcher

Yellow and red dogwood, and other shrubs that bring beauty to your home with colorful canes and twigs, should be cut back to within 8 inches of the ground each spring. Pictured at right is a yellowtwig dogwood being cut back to buds and side limbs. Do this every spring, and new shoots will give you vivid winter color

Before. Foundation shrubs often grow out of all proportion to their space and purpose. If they are not replaced by dwarf kinds, you should prune them every spring—the foliage and late-flowering plants early, and early-flowering kinds after they have bloomed. Nipping back of privet, above, caused bushy top growth, bare stems below

After. The same privet looks soft and natural a few months after the spring pruning. Shear for a more formal effect

Now is the time to prune all shrub-type roses. Cut off the large, old-looking canes, as well as dead ones, at ground level as shown at left. Save smaller, younger canes to give you good bloom. Bush-type roses, such as the hybrid teas, should not be cut this way unless a cane is dead. Instead, head canes on bush-type roses back to 6- or 8-inch stubs

The diary of a plain dirt gardener

By Harry R. O'Brien

The stone wall I built years ago around the drain water outlet had stopped it up—along with mud. Had to wade through water to get to the furnace

Feb. 1 Our morning newspaper is delivered on our suburban road by a truck driver who throws a wrapped copy into our drive. If you had seen me in the gray dawning as I came out and picked it up this a.m., you might have been a bit puzzled.

Instead of hurrying back into the house as is my wont, I went here and there, and with the end of the paper, stirred and scraped certain boxes about the place, suspended from boughs or against trees. You see, it snowed some during the night—enough to cover up all the feed that I had put out for the birds last evening. Already, they were beginning to dart about and plaintively tell me that their breakfast was all coated over and they couldn't get at it.

Bird feeding should begin in the fall. Get the birds accustomed to eating here, and they will stay all winter. But crumbs on the ground isn't all that is required. Crumbs are O.K. But just thrown on the ground, the sparrows will likely benefit most.

It takes several feeders, some on ground, some hanging from trees, some against trees. We have two at windows and a big one on a post on the rear lawn. Suet is needed for birds which live mainly on insects. Grain, as corn and wheat, is good for larger, seed-eating birds as cardinals and jays. Smaller seeds come handy for the littler birds. Most all like sunflower seeds. Peanut hearts or crushed peanuts are good. We feed peanut butter in swinging racks. One can buy prepared suet-seed cakes.

Maybe most important of all is feeding the birds consistently, every day, all winter long. After the birds have settled down to spend the winter with me, I feel it is an obligation to keep up feeding. I am worried no end if for some reason feed wasn't put out, and I go to bed with hungry birds on my mind. The time they need feed most is on the coldest days, when there is snow or ice outdoors—and one would much rather relax with the evening paper instead of getting out.

News tonight is that David found a ground hog—dead it was—right down in our east basement-window areaway. I suppose the poor critter got mixed up in its dates, popped out of its hole over in the country-club woods a day too soon, and Scratch, our dog, caught up with him.

The birds were darting about and plaintively telling me the snow had covered their breakfast in the night

Feb. 2 This morning was devoted to work in my study at home. There I was, hammering away at the old typewriter when the back doorbell rang. Maggie was in the living room, with the radio going and didn't hear the bell, which rings in the kitchen. So I went to the back door. It was two men from a local tile company, who had already heard the news of what we're thinking and wanted to make a bid on the job.

I welcomed them in and turned them loose to measure up bathr and lavatory. It was surpri the number of questions that up, which still have to be set Do we want a marble windo instead of present wood one? shall we do with towel racks— back old or buy new? Should room ceiling be replastered? so on.

As to ground hogs, nary a saw its shadow in this commu today, for it was cloudy and and dripping all day long head. Soggy and soft under What a winter day—what a w we're having!

Feb. 3 We were still at bre when the phone rang. It wa tile-company man wantin know when we could come place to pick out kind and c tile we want. So matters w arranged for the day. In late noon David brought Maggie office, and off we went.

At the tile-company offi were shown a wide var samples. We looked and we and finally made a selec greenish tones for the bath which I like. In brownish t the lavatory—which I do cially care for. Oh well, s domestic life is made up of mises.

Feb. 5 As I sat in my st late Sunday afternoon, pondering over some rou ters I had brought home office, there were visitors to the door. Then Mag for me to come.

Bless my soul, if it was bor Russell and the mi hadn't stopped in for knows how long. He's a g note and member of rose club. In fact, a stopping was to show n the publications of th Rose Society of Gre These were most intere hadn't seen any of th years. This Society iss nual somewhat similar the American Rose So spring, but I always do like to get in some of the new ones. Sorta have to keep up my standing in the community and keep ahead of the Joneses—well, at least try to keep even with them.

Mebbe a sermon should be preached at this point about making up and getting off orders early for vegetable and flower seeds and plants. As far as I can gather, there is an adequate supply of most everything. But it's the early bird who gets the worm—if he has his or her order in ahead of the others.

(Note: Included in roses I'm ordering are some new hybrid teas that I've already seen in test gardens, some out just this year and others introduced a year or so back. Among the red to deep pinks are Bravo, Caprice, Fandango, and Opera. Lighter pinks include Juno and First Love. In yellowish tones are Sutter's Gold and Golden Scepter. New floribundas I set out last fall are Red Pinocchio, Alain, and Frensham.

Feb. 8 Home just before dark, in a downpour of rain—and the water is running into our basement again, up from those drains, and getting deeper by the minute. Desperate action was needed. I yelled to David to put on old clothes. I did the same.

Out we went into the downpour and twilight and yanked loose all the downspouts at the four corners of the house, so water from the roof would run onto the ground, instead of down the drain. With spades we crawled under bushes and dug little channels in the water-soaked soil, so the water would run away from the house.

Feb. 9 Maggie tried to get the plumber to come and see what is wrong with those drains, but he was away. Also outside this a.m., temperature is up to late March. Grass is green. Iris is growing. Downtown I hear that roses are leafing out. There's an old saying that a green winter makes a full graveyard. Goodness—I hope I don't get pneumonia or something from being out there in the rain last night!

Feb. 10 Water still in the basement. Had to wade through it to get to the furnace—and Maggie, madder 'n a wet hen, called the plumber again. While I was away earning the family living, a specialist on stopped-up drains, sent by the plumber, called. Lo and behold, it wasn't the drain at all. It was the outlet to the drain where the water, from the eaves and the basement laundry, empties into a suburban ditch.

The stone wall that years ago I had built up around that outlet, along with mud, had stopped up the outlet tile. That fellow dug around a bit with a shovel and out gushed the water. By the time I was home, the cellar was all drained and drying out. (Later note: The bill was $21.) The family reproached me because of that dry wall I laid up myself just after we built the house. Why hadn't I had a stonemason do it right?

"We didn't have any money left to hire that wall built right," says I. "I lugged those stones there myself. I nearly killed myself getting them into that wall. But it didn't cost a cent—back in those days when I didn't have any extra cents—with the house just finished and the gloss not yet worn off the mortgage. Here that wall has lasted more than 30 years. So hush up, all of you."

Well, mebbe I didn't say all of that, but it's what I meant. I've always been right proud of that wall, considering the backaches and probably some skin worn off fingers and whatnot.

Feb. 11 Omitting considerable about how another firm also made us a bid on that tilework, I called up the first firm here and told it to go ahead. As a matter of fact, it was the one which made the higher bid. I liked the way the men talked about their work. I'd much rather have a sound job, well done, that I'll be proud of than shave off a small percentage in the initial cost and then not have it last.

Was a bright, warm, sunshiny day. In spite of sloppy, soggy sod, I slithered out to view our rear landscape. What a sad sight, with so many things heaved out of the ground, what with the rains and the freezes and thaws. New iris bed is in sad shape. Mums look terrible. Why can't we have a reasonable winter that will keep things frozen and asleep until the right time to begin growing?

Feb. 13 Forgot to mention the other day that I stopped in at the seed store downtown, just to howdy with the folks there, but had to apologize to Miss Ruth because I didn't have my usual order made up yet. But did buy some more sunflower seeds for the birds.

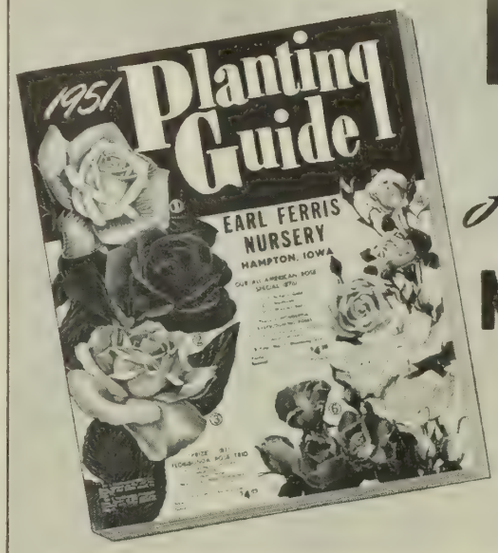
Feb. 17 Where, oh where, has our big dog gone? That pooch, Scratch by name, lit out last evening and hasn't been back since. Donald has been out scouring the neighborhood but hasn't found hide nor hair of him.

Feb. 18 As I worked at my study desk, I thought I heard Scratch bark. But, alas, it was just Maggie barking at the cats which had darted in the back door uninvited. For goodness sake, don't tell her of my mistake.

Feb. 19 Maggie is worried about the lawn this dark and dismal day. The surface of the ground is all heaved up, so rough and uneven she vows she'll break her neck walking across it or hanging up something on the clothesline. A good job of rolling must be done, she moans.

O.K., says I, we'll roll the lawn—when the right time comes. But that's a long way off yet. She is worrying, too, about some bare spots on the rear lawn. That, alas, is where crabgrass flourished last summer. That chemical I bought to kill it still stands in the unopened container, on the window in the stairway landing. Guess I'll just have to spade up those spots and reseed, come spring.



Feb. 20 Before David went down to his classes, he phoned a dog-lost want ad to the downtown daily paper. At 9:30 a neighbor over on High Street phoned that she had just seen Scratch outside. Donald was still here, so he and his mother got in the car and hurried over. By that time Scratch had disappeared. They came home—and there he was, the one and only original, frisking on the lawn.

He was promptly seized and imprisoned indoors. Evidently, there are other lost dogs. Tonight, after the paper came out, seven different people phoned to say they had found our dog. Only other news is that the cedar waxwings were back, eating the berries on the highbush cranberry.

Feb. 22 Oh dear—a day at home and nothing in the world to prevent me from getting at garden work—prune the bushes, do dormant spraying with miscible oil to kill off scale insects and such, pick up trash from the lawn. Nothing to prevent—except outdoors it is warm, wet, soggy, soppy, and drizzling. It was a shame, too. I was awakened by the cheerful "whatcheer—whatcheer" of the cardinals. Buds on the President Grevy lilac outside the window are swelling. All I could do was sit inside and smoke my pipe.

Toward night to the basement to put on my overalls. Somebody—maybe the fairies—had washed them. Contemplated my bulbs in the fruit room—and horrors!

The dahlias, stored in vermiculite, aren't doing so good. Tubers are soft and limp. I don't know what is wrong. But the glads, both those in vermiculite and those just left uncovered in flats, are O.K. But dear me—little white shoots are appearing on those glads. I can't go out and plant 'em in February mud. I found that I had never finished winter work with some of the glads. So I went over these, twisted off the old corms from the bottom of the new, threw away such as didn't look healthy.

(Note: Some new flower seeds have been arriving by mail. These include the two 1951 All America annual winners. One is Torch, the new, broader and more bushy tithonia. I've seen this growing in a trial garden, and I predict it will be about the biggest garden news of the year. It is magnificent. The other is Glitters, a new marigold. I've seen this, too, and take my word, it is mighty good. I have some new petunias and some new colors in Cuthbertson sweetpeas.)

Feb. 23 Now Maggie has thought up something new. Our local specialist in furniture maintenance is downstairs right this minute, measuring the davenport and her special sittin' chair and my favorite readin' chair. She's going to have them recovered right away.

Feb. 25 On this zero morning, arrived in Chicago by train on some necessary business and this afternoon hied me to the annual meeting of the Chicago Regional Rose Society. I wish I had time to tell about the fine program. It's worth special mention, for maybe it is a good idea to have winter meetings of rose and other plant societies. Folks can attend without having a guilty feeling that they should have stayed home and worked.

Feb. 27 After supper, with dishes still unwashed, Maggie and I hurried to an open meeting of our local iris society. Motion pictures and still color slides of varieties of iris, along with some peonies and daylilies was the program. There was no speaker, but just informal comments from various people as the pictures were shown. My part was to run the projector for the slides. About 85 people came, which was good for a winter gathering.

Feb. 28 Storm brewing and I gravely fear winter will be back tomorrow. And there is a great burden on my soul. It's that pesky income tax affair coming up. So to our household account books tonight, Maggie and I working together into the late hours.

As we worked, we grew sadder and sadder. It was simply appalling, not to say devastating, to see the accumulated story of how we spent our money last year. Now in a few days, we'll have to fork over a good bit of what is left to the old gentleman with the whiskers—and like it. We are still waiting to find out when—if ever—that tile company will come around and begin work. Such is life.

How to plant on a budget

By Carol Weiti

Start with small trees, shrubs, and an ide watch them grow to fit your planting pla

The cost of putting in the kind of plants you want arou your home can be much less than you thought possible. T is, if you start with small plants.

Make a plan first. Decide what you want and where want it. Small shrubs or trees won't give you the final ef you want for a few years, of course. But until they grow t the space, you can plant annuals and perennials betw Later, the small trees and shrubs will take on size, and original plan will take shape.

A small plant often has a better chance of establishin self in poor soil than a larger one. Plants develop the ki roots that give the best support in the soil in which grow. If your soil is wet and heavy—conditions that m shallow root system—or sandy and deep, small plant often the best starters. There is no loss in converting a root system brought from another soil.

Small-size shrubs or trees thrive best if not moved planting. So make a long-range plan before you set ther buds, and exquisitely formed flowers. Include some of the class called floribundas or large-flowered polyanthas for the sake of their clustered flowers, so very showy outside and so easy to cut and arrange indoors.

You will want other classes of roses later. But start with these.

You will be planting dormant, bare-root bushes, preferred all across the country for planting early in the season.

How to buy. Ask for No. 1 grade, field-grown, 2-year-old plants. No. 1 grade insures you of two to three good stems at the start and a well-balanced root system.

Don't look for bargains. Rose bushes, even in a leafless, dormant state, are living things. Reputable rose growers will deliver them in good condition. Bargain roses all too often have been exposed to drying out somewhere along the

Roses—what they can do for you

For cutting and close-up enjoyment, nothing excels the high-centered hybrid-tea blooms. But for beds of color bright as massed geraniums, plant the newer floribunda roses, such as the coral Fashion

In the mixed border, roses can make bright spots like this. For background to tulips and iris, use once-blooming shrub roses. For summer, plant hybrid teas, floribundas, and the cushiony polyanthas way from the growing field to you. And the best a dried-out rose can do is but a feeble imitation of what you should get.

How to plant. All dormant roses—climbers, trailers, flowering-hedge types, pillars, edgings, bedding, and border roses—should be planted as sketched on page 51.

The soil at the start is not so important as the general exposure. You can modify and improve the soil if necessary. But start, if at all possible, with a spot that gets sun for most of the day—a half day is minimum. A good sweep of air is necessary for the best growth, so avoid shut-in pockets close to tall buildings.

Providing there is no layer of hardpan or shale close underneath, good roses can be grown without digging the soil more than 12 inches deep. Pulverize clay soils and add peatmoss, old manure, or compost to very sandy soil to help it hold water.

A good watering once a week and an application of an all-purpose dust or spray to control the commoner diseases and pests should be the only chores connected with your rose-growing. The rest is enjoyment, pleasure in their bloom.

Recommended:

There are few varieties of hybrid teas that will not grow thriftily in all parts of the country. The following are consistent star performers: Peace—huge cream, flushed rosy, Crimson Glory—dark, velvety red the boy had let himself be pushed by whichever parent was around at the time. He was the only one of the three who had known all along that he didn't have any real talent in either field. But he had never dared to say so, and they'd never bothered to find out that what he really wanted to do was become a lawyer. Now there's every chance that he'll never get to college. There's an even better chance that he'll never be happy.

Don't get the idea, though, that you shouldn't try to direct your youngster, or help him set goals for himself. Your boy or girl wants—and needs—to know that he can count on you to help him plan for his future, and make the most of his natural capacities.

You can help him, too, by letting him know that you're genuinely interested in the things and people which interest him, and that you aren't trying to coax or force him to take up your interests.

Of course, what he needs most of all is to know that you accept him—and love him—the way he is. And that you aren't forever wishing he were someone he isn't, or someone he doesn't want to be.

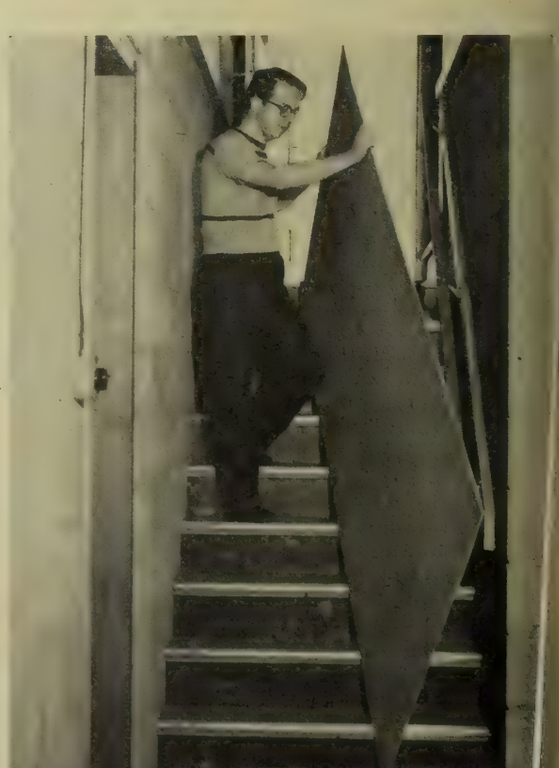
NOTHING like it

A wonderful, new Better Homes & Gardens book for your home. Watch for the announcement next month!



How to plan a hom

How will your shop measure up?

Here are nine key considerations

Adequate storage space? Orderly storage will spe[ed] work tremendously. You'll need a rack for raw [lum]shelves for paint and supplies, a tool board for [han]tools. Drawers are always very good, can be dehu[mid]

Easy to get into? This applies, not to you, but to the m[a]terials you'll bring in and the finished projects you'll ta[ke] out. Basement shop is best placed at foot of stairs leadi[ng] outside. Avoid narrow, twisting stairs or halls. A 3-f[oot] doorway is a fair shop minimum; 2½ feet may cramp y[our]

light? Good artificial light is essential, as you'll do a work at night. Here, general lighting comes from a be fluorescent fixture over bench. Incandescent light, frosted bulb, can be pulled down for close work. The natural light you can get without shadows, the better enough, high enough? For average home projects, anything in a 12-foot square will cramp you. It takes that space to turn a board end-to, or maneuver an 8-foot piece of plywood. With tools, a space 12x24 is none too large. Set 7½ feet as a minimum height. If you can touch the ceiling, it's too low for shop use

Too much humidity? These are the sad effects of uncontrolled dampness in a home workshop — warped lumber, rusted tools, separated plywood. So choose a dry spot if you can. If you can't, remember you can control dampness with good ventilation, dehumidifiers, even waterproofing walls if the problem is severe

No "DENTURE BREATH" for me*

*"I'm glad I found out about my Denture Breath. Now I use POLIDENT, and no one guesses I have false teeth. No Denture Breath."
Mr. C. S. O., Howard City, Mich.

You know what Mr. C. S. O. means, don't you! It's a wonderful feeling to know that you're not offending friends with Denture Breath. And it's great when your plates feel clean and cool and fresh—from their Polident bath.

Remember—those dental plates of yours need the special care of a special denture cleanser. Don't brush them. Soak your plates in Polident every day. It's so easy and quick. And Polident soaks into every corner and crevice—places brushing never seems to reach.

NO BRUSHING

Soak plate or bridge daily —fifteen minutes or more— in a fresh, cleansing solution of Polident and water.

How to plan a home workshop

Enough heat? You can't do good work if you are cold. If supplemental heat is needed, as in a garage, consider piping in a radiator, wiring in space heaters, or even adding a small wood stove. On basement floors, electric heater means comfort

Easy to clean? The more rough surfaces your workshop has, the harder it will be to keep dust and cobwebs under control. Smooth, painted floors and walls will shrink your cleanup time. Basement floors can be covered successfully with asphalt tile, unharmed by moisture. If rough joists or studs are exposed, consider covering them with some inexpensive paneling material

Noise blocked? Th of your hammer and of your saw won't ciated if they keep dren from sleeping. pick out a worksh check transmission through walls and with mallet and bl placing the shop under quiet area house. If problem you may have to

Is ventilation adequate? Hand in hand with the moisture problem goes the need for good ventilation. But even if your shop is dry, you'll want to clear away paint odors and fine dust. During summer months, when basement humidity is high, you may need forced ventilation. A simple arrangement like this will help: the fan stands on a shelf, blows air outside through a hole cut in a piece of plywood

Boots get wet on the inside, too

By Paul Corey

Winter or summer, snow or rain, children get their boots and overshoes wet on the inside as well as the outside. How to dry them quickly is a problem.

Here is a simple and efficient "inside boot dryer" made from scrap lumber and old electrical equipment. You can make it in an hour.

From your scrap-lumber pile, select or cut 4 pieces ¾"x1"x22" (A on photograph); 2 pieces ¾"x2"x10" (B); 1 piece ¾"x8"x12" (C); 1 piece ¾"x2"x13½" (D); 1 piece ¾"x2"x14" (E). You'll also need two 20d spikes.

Drill matching ¼" holes in the A pieces for the spikes, to make height adjustable. Nail A pieces to B pieces; then nail each section to piece C. Add piece D for reinforcement. Drill holes in piece E, and hold it in place with the spikes.

Electrical parts you'll need include a coil of extension cord, a switch, and two light sockets.

Cut two 12-inch lengths of extension cord, and attach each length to a light socket. Drill a cord hole 4 inches in from each end of piece E. Thread cords through holes and attach to switch. Here, an extra piece ¾"x2½"x5½" (F), slotted lengthwise with a hole in the center, gives space for attaching cords to switch. To each pole of the switch, attach one wire from each short length of cord, and one wire from cord leading to the outlet. Then attach switch to board.

To avoid burning rubber, you'll need to keep light bulbs from touching boots. Wire cages made for trouble lights will do the job. Here, each light socket has a shade bracket to which 2-inch lengths of wire are attached. Wires spread boot, keeping bulb from touching and permitting steam to escape. A circle of heavy screen fitted on the socket would also do the job.

Use only 25-watt bulbs. They give enough heat to dry boots in about an hour. Any bulb over 40 watts is likely to scorch the rubber.

Mount Rainier is the second highest peak in the country. You can see Oregon's Mount Hood a hundred miles away. In fact, there are hundreds of peaks where the snow never melts, yet the kids can toss snowballs in their shirtsleeves.

"Yes, they'll see real Indians, too; even ride the surf with Indians in dugout canoes—if you'll let them. The forests are full of easy-hiking trails. And you'll find hundreds of lakes, easily accessible, with plenty of boats and accommodations."

Yes, no matter what you want in a vacation, the Pacific Northwest has it for you.

Here's a basic 1,975-mile route which will show you all the high spots of the Pacific Northwest in 10 days. That's less than 200 miles a day driving. It includes three national parks, each different from any other. You'll see the world's mightiest dam, loop around the primitive wilderness of the nation's last frontier, ferry leisurely across salt water, go from desert to alpine snowfields to salt water in the space of one day.

Almost all this scenery is yours to view without charge. The outstanding scenic areas are publicly owned, and you pay little or no fee.

You can get top-notch motel accommodations for a family of four for $8 per night. Hotels may be slightly higher. If you eat the way we do on a trip—a good breakfast, a light snack (such as sandwiches or milk shakes) at noon, and a good dinner in the evening—it'll cost you about $10 a day for two grownups and two kids. Add to this $100 about $80 for accommodations, $40 for gas, oil, and ferries, and you still have about $30 left in a $250 trip budget. Of course, you have to add on what it costs to reach the Northwest from your home.

You don't necessarily have to drive. Four railroads operate streamliners to Seattle; the Great Northern, Milwaukee, and Northern Pacific by way of Spokane, the Union Pacific via Portland. You can also fly or come by bus. Rent-a-car service is available in all important cities, and scenic bus tours operate out of Seattle and Portland. Black Ball and Canadian Pacific ferry lines also have sightseeing tours on Puget Sound.

If you like fishing, you don't need a license to fish in any of the three national parks, Mount Rainier, Olympic, and Crater Lake. Lake trout predominate at all three, although fly fisherman can battle the mountain streams for rainbow, cutthroat, Dolly Varden, and brook trout. There are steelhead on the Olympic Peninsula and in Oregon's Rogue River. Ten-day nonresident fishing licenses are $1.50 in Washington, 7-day licenses $5 in Oregon. You don't need a license for salt-water salmon fishing and you can rent tackle, boat, and motor for about $10 a day at most Puget Sound and coast resorts.

June, July, and August find all resorts and tourist facilities open, but if you can manage your trip just before or after the summer season, you might enjoy it even more. May is delightful—rhododendron, dogwood, Scotch broom, and myriads of other flowers and shrubs in bloom, weather usually sunshiny and moderate. And, too, you'll escape the fogs and trade winds which hit the coast more frequently during the summer. Similarly, September and October are clear and windless, with the brilliant colors of autumn mingling against the deep background of the evergreens. Most motels and resorts reduce prices before and after the summer season.

East of the Cascades, summer days are hot; you'll want to dress light. Nights are cool on both sides of the mountains. West of them, the temperature is moderate all year. If a brisk wind happens to be coming in off the Pacific, you may even appreciate a light sweater on a summer day. You'll have endless chances to picnic out, so you may be glad to know there are no poisonous snakes west of the Cascades—nor will you be bothered much by flies!

Because you're so far north, midsummer days are long, giving you lots of daylight for sight-seeing. But it's a good idea to pick your night's lodging before too late in the day, then go out for dinner. If you like to rough it, you'll find free campgrounds in national parks and forests all along the route.

First day

The best jumping-off place for your tour is Spokane, center of a rich agricultural, mining, and logging area, "The Inland Empire." Near the eastern border of Washington, it's reached by U. S. Highway 10, coming up from Yellowstone Park, and U. S. 2 across northern Montana.

Leave Spokane early, heading west on U. S. 2 through endless acres of wheat. Turn north at Wilbur on State 4C. In about 25 you suddenly top a rise a your first breath-taking int tion to the immensities of t cific Northwest—Grand Dam.

at Vantage, on the north side of the highway, is Ginkgo Petrified Forest. A museum houses polished specimens of some of the ancient trees. Others may be seen in easy walks over the bare hills. After you have climbed back out of the Columbia Valley, the road levels out in a long, easy descent to Ellensburg, a good spot for your first overnight stop. You have driven 216 miles.

Note: A worthwhile alternate route is straight west from Quincy on State 10 to Wenatchee, famous apple-growing center. Beautiful Ohme Gardens (admission 50 cents) offer a panoramic view of the area from a high peak. Forty miles north on the Columbia is Lake Chelan, Washington's largest. A launch carries mail and passengers the length of this 60-mile lake, which begins in a forested mountain bowl and ends along the edge of the arid Columbia Basin. Double back to Wenatchee and take U. S. 97 to Ellensburg.)

Second day

You'll drive less than 200 miles today, but you'll start the day on the desert, climb up and over the mountains, and end at salt water! Your route takes you south on U. S. 97 down Yakima River Canyon, with the highway winding along a shelf cut from solid rock. At Yakima switch to U. S. 410 for the climb over the Cascades. There are three cross-Cascades routes in the state, all of them scenic and spectacular—but only this one includes Mount Rainier.

When you reach Snoqualmie National Forest, you'll see frequent recreational areas along the road. Trees and shrubs take on an alpine character as the highway twists through somber green forests and offers frequent views of the Cascades. You curve through the range at Chinook Pass, 5,440 feet above sea level—and there is your second big scenic surprise of the trip.

Looking beyond a wide turnout over miles of forested mountainside, you see for the first time that hoary giant, Mount Rainier. The great rounded volcanic cap, eternally sparkling with snow, looms up 14,408 feet—more than a mile higher than its neighbors. You'll notice something else now, too—after driving through the hot country east of the mountains, you feel suddenly as if you'd stepped into an air-conditioned room. We had an additional pleasure when our family first crossed Chinook Pass—our youngest son had been sneezing and weeping with hay fever all the way across the country. It utterly disappeared when we hit that ocean-cooled atmosphere!

A little less than 8 miles from Chinook Pass is the White River entrance to Mount Rainier National Park (automobile fee, $1). The park road's most spectacular lookout point is Sunrise Point, with a view of four great Cascade peaks dominating the horizon. The road ends at Sunrise Lodge, in an area known as Yakima Park. Three great glaciers come down near the alpine meadow in which the lodge is located; nearby Emmons Glacier is one of the largest in the area, Olympic, up the Elwha River, and Sol Duc, west of Lake Crescent, both with warm-water swimming pools. You'll meet frequent logging trucks, with one or two giant logs making a full load, as you wheel over the long, straight stretch west of the lake through busy timbering country.

If you make your stop tonight at Grays Harbor, you'll have time to choose from several interesting side trips.

The longest would start from the logging village of Sappho, about 17 miles west of Lake Crescent. An unimproved road, State 9A, leads north to the strait, coming into Clallam Bay and Sekiu, two villages renowned throughout the Northwest for their salmon fishing. The road follows the strait, ending at the Makah Indian village of Neah Bay. It's almost, but not quite, at the end of the country. Drive a few miles beyond Neah Bay over a winding wartime road, then hike through the woods a mile to the tip of Cape Flattery. Somehow, it gave me a big thrill to stand on that lonely cliff above the crashing surf, and know that I was on the very northwest square foot of the United States.

A shorter side trip is to Lapush, another of the six Indian villages along the Washington coast. It's only 13 miles from the main highway, on State 9B, and not often visited by tourists. The ocean beach here is spectacular, with great lonely stone columns marching out into the thundering surf. You'll look long for a more exciting trip than a surf ride with these Quillayute Indians in their native canoes, still hand-hewn like those of their forefathers.

After you've passed the little logging town of Forks, you're in the famed rain forests of the Pacific coast. Here they measure rain in feet instead of inches—it averages 12 feet a year (nearly all of it in wintertime; summers are dry). Rain clouds sweeping in from the Pacific dump their loads on these lush forests, resulting in a luxuriant growth reminiscent of tropical jungles. Turn off on the Hoh River road to the park ranger station for a better look. Great Douglas firs (next to the redwoods, the oldest living things on earth) stand here untouched by the logger's ax, as much as 17 feet in diameter and towering 250-300 feet, their limbs eerily draped with moss. I'd recommend a short walk into this forest along the trail leading from the ranger station.

The Olympic Highway, for the next few miles the state's only coastal highway, meets the ocean at Ruby Beach. If you haven't taken one of the side trips, it will be your first view of the Pacific. At Kalaloch is a state park, mostly to preserve a beach which is a favorite spot for clam diggers. I had my first introduction to this sport here, in the company of Superintendent Preston P. Macy of Olympic. First I was armed with a "gun," which turned out to be a death-dealing firearm, but a shovel. We sloshed out on the beach at low tide.

"Now you just thump along the sand until you see a little shaped like a volcano cone dig!" Macy shouted to me the roar of the surf. I thu shoveled furiously, and bu futilely into the sand af rapidly retreating clam, w concluded must be one of th est animals on earth. Clam are enthusiastic about their —but don't expect much chowder from your first try sport.

A good dinner spot is Lak nault Lodge, just off the hi 35 miles from Kalaloch. Indians will take you dow to the ocean in their cano overnight here or at one of cities of Aberdeen and Hoq Grays Harbor.

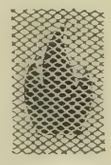
It's easy to get loaded down with souvenirs which you later heave on the junk pile, but myrtlewood articles are truly handsome, although not cheap. Accommodations thin out along here, but by the time you've topped the Coast Range at Camas Pass, meeting U. S. 99 at Dillard, you've done 182 miles in a day with lots of excitement, and it's a good time to start looking for that "Vacancy" sign.

Seventh day

Head south on U. S. 99, the main route between Portland and California. The first part of this 70-mile link to Grants Pass is twisting mountain highway busy with logging trucks; the latter part is a smooth, new, four-lane roadway. It follows a century-old route laid down before the California gold rush, and you may notice a marker denoting the site of Six Bit Ranch, so named for a rancher who interrupted the hanging of an Indian until he collected six bits that the unfortunate victim had borrowed.



Grants Pass, jubilantly named after Grant took Vicksburg, is a bustling little city, the headquarters for Siskiyou National Forest and a center for loggers, orchard owners, and gold miners. Continuing on 99 from Grants Pass, you follow the Rogue River, one of the finest fishing streams in existence. (Or you may wish to take the 51-mile side trip from Grants Pass to Oregon Caves National Monument—guide trips 50 cents, children 35 cents, plus tax. If you do, you should allow for the two-hour guided trip through the underground caverns.)

Turn north at Medford, center of the great southern Oregon orchard country, on State 62, once more following the Rogue Valley. As the highway climbs steadily into the Cascades, evergreens replace

DECORATIVE GLASS ADDS Luster TO Living

This lovely home capitalizes on the rhythmic pattern of Structural Corrugated Glass to create a dramatic, translucent separation of living and dining areas. Mississippi Glass offers many versatile and interesting patterns in obscure glass, the perfect material for dividing your home without dulling its brightness. Flood rooms with soft light that flatters furnishings and enhances table settings, yet protect complete privacy. Choose glass by Mississippi, practical and beautiful. Simple to install and maintain. Always "new." So easy to clean.

Specify Mississippi Glass to your architect or contractor when you build or remodel. Available in a wide variety of patterns wherever quality glass is sold.

you shouldn't miss the Columbia Gorge either. We compromised by turning off at Hood River for the loop road, instead of starting it at Portland. The views you get of Mount Hood are so spectacular that you won't regret it. You start through endless miles of orchards, sweep around curves for ever-nearer views of the solitary mountain, and drive through peaceful forests until you reach Government Camp, right at the foot of the 11,425-foot volcanic peak. Mount Hood is the easiest of the Cascade peaks to scale, even for inexperienced climbers, and its lonely tip commands a view of almost the entire state, as well as a good bit of Washington. World-famous Timberline Lodge is located here, and you can ride the new aerial tramway for $1.50 round trip—children under 5 free.

Tenth day

For more than a week, you've been traveling in the "Evergreen Country." Now you're east of the Cascades, and you can put on those light clothes again. The river boils over the rocks at Celilo Falls, just east of The Dalles, still fished by Indians who stand on precarious platforms over the foaming water and net salmon, by perpetual and exclusive treaty rights to this site. But after that the Columbia is wide and sluggish, winding through low, barren hills, brown and sere after summer sets in.

Pendleton is the home of the famous Pendleton Rou mid-September. After U. S. 30 climbs Emig (3,800 feet) in a series of zags and hairpins. PRIZE RECIPE

"PARTY" HAMBURGER

1 lb. chuck beef, ground — 2 tablesp. minced onion
1 teasp. salt — ¼ cup water
1 tablesp. LEA & PERRINS Worcestershire Sauce

Combine all ingredients. Ground beef is best handled lightly —otherwise cakes become too compact. Shape gently into 6 cakes. Sauté in a little hot fat in a skillet for about 3 min. on each side, or until of desired rareness. Makes 6 servings. Nancy Sasser says that the success of this prize recipe depends on LEA & PERRINS Sauce, the original Worcestershire.

Whenever recipes call for Worcestershire, you can be almost certain that the experts who write the recipes mean you to use LEA & PERRINS Sauce. Always ask for it by name.

Tuna Luncheon

1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
¾ cup hot water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 7-ounce cans tuna, flaked
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
Sliced stuffed olives

Soften gelatine in cold water; dissolve in hot water. Add lemon juice and seasonings. Chill until partially set; add tuna and celery; fold in whipped cream. Chill in oiled individual molds until firm. Unmold. Garnish with sliced stuffed olives. Serves 6.

Garden Crisp

1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1¼ cups boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup vinegar
1 small onion, grated
1 cup crisp, shredded cabbage
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
½ cup julienne-cut carrots
1 cup chopped celery
¼ cup sliced stuffed olives

Soften gelatine in ¼ cup cold water. Dissolve in 1¼ cups boiling water. Add salt, sugar, lemon juice, and vinegar. Stir to dissolve sugar. Chill until partially set. Add remaining ingredients. Chill in oiled individual molds or a shallow pan. Serves 6.

Honey Fruit Dressing

⅔ cup sugar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon celery seed
⅓ cup strained honey
5 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 cup salad oil

Mix dry ingredients; add honey, vinegar, lemon juice, and onion. Pour oil into mixture very slowly, beating constantly with rotary or electric beater. Makes 2 cups.

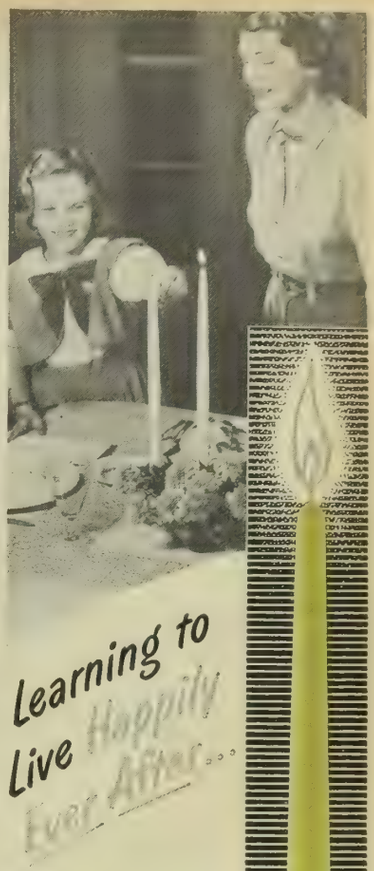
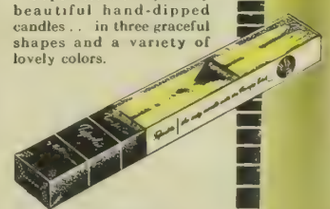
Jelly. Dip a large spoon into the jelly mixture. Tilt the spoon until syrup runs over the side. Jelly is done when it stops flowing from spoon in a stream and divides into two distinct drops (see picture) that run together and leave edge of spoon in one large flake or sheet



Candy. Drop a little syrup from spoon into cold, but not icy, water. For soft- and hard-ball stages, use fingers to shape drop. Hardness of ball formed indicates the temperature of the candy. Fudge in photograph has just reached the soft-ball stage. The various stages are:

Thread (230° to 234°)
Soft ball (234° to 238°)
Hard ball (248° to 254°)
Light crack (270° to 285°)



Puffy omelet. Touch top of omelet lightly with finger. If it's done, it springs back. Or knife inserted in center comes out clean. Omelet also pulls away slightly from sides of skillet and will be dry on top

Egg Croquettes

¾ cup thick white sauce
8 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon paprika
Dash of nutmeg
3 tablespoons chopped pimiento
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 cup bread or cracker crumbs
1 slightly beaten egg
1 tablespoon water or evaporated milk

Combine white sauce, eggs, seasonings, pimiento, parsley, onion. Chill thoroughly. Form croquettes. Roll in crumbs; dip into mixture of egg and water; roll in crumbs. Fry in deep, hot fat (375°) until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Makes 6 to 8 croquettes

Thick White Sauce

3 tablespoons butter or fat
4 tablespoons enriched flour
1 cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt

Melt butter; add flour and blend. Add milk and cook over low heat until thick, stirring constantly. Add salt.

French-fried Potatoes

Cut pared potatoes lengthwise in ⅜x⅜x2½-inch strips. Soak in cold water 1 hour. Drain thoroughly between towels. Fry small amount at a time in deep, hot fat (385°) until crisp and brown. Drain well; sprinkle with salt.

French-fried Shrimp

1 cup enriched flour
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 cup ice water
2 tablespoons melted fat or salad oil
2 pounds fresh shrimp

Combine ingredients, except shrimp; beat well. Peel shell from shrimp, leaving last section and tail intact. Cut slit through center back without severing either end; remove black line. Dry shrimp thoroughly; dip into batter; fry in deep, hot fat (375°) until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve immediately with soy sauce.

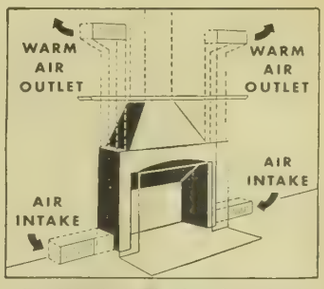
FIREPLACE CIRCULATES HEAT!

Warms all the room . . . and even the adjoining rooms!



● Build your fireplace around a Heatilator* Fireplace unit — enjoy the cheer of an open fire plus cozy warmth in every corner of the room. Heat usually wasted up the chimney is put to work. Your fireplace becomes 100% useful, gives you room-wide comfort while reducing cost of furnace operation during cool weather—Spring and Fall!

WILL NOT SMOKE

The Heatilator unit is a scientifically designed, heavy-gauge steel form, complete from floor to flue, around which any style fireplace can easily be built. It assures correct construction, eliminates smoking. Adds little to the cost of the completed fireplace. Best of all it provides all the vital parts of the fireplace—saves cost of a separate damper, firebrick and masonry. Reduces time and labor on most jobs.

CUTS FURNACE OPERATION

A Heatilator Fireplace makes furnace fires unnecessary on cool Spring and Fall days, cuts weeks from the furnace season, dollars from fuel bills. Use it to supplement furnace heat during severe weather, or in case of fuel shortages or emergencies. In mild climates, it supplies all the heat needed by many homes.

The Heatilator Fireplace draws in air at floor level . . . heats it and circulates warm air to all corners of the room.

IDEAL FOR SUMMER CAMPS

Architects and builders agree that a Heatilator Fireplace is one of the wisest investments for camps or summer cottages. It makes them usable weeks longer in spring and fall, even on cold winter weekends.

PROVED BY 24 YEARS USE

Get the fireplace unit that has been proved in thousands of homes for 24 years. Make sure the name "Heatilator" is on the dome and damper handle of the unit you buy. Accept no substitute. See it at leading building material dealers everywhere.

The MAN NEXT DOOR

My wife likes to chide me because I waited until our third meeting before asking her for a date. But then I hadn't seen her at her best—getting my breakfast over a kitchen range with an apron around her and her nose a little bit shiny.

I've noticed when my wife makes the rounds to kiss the children good night in their sleep, the one she had to scold is the one she bends over the longest.

Have you ever noticed how much cleaner a dirty child can look when you're the one who's going to have to wash him?

"This younger generation is going to the dogs," laments George Cuney. "A boy wants to marry my daughter, and says he is making $12,000 a year. That's twice what I get after 22 years of married life."

The people who wail that a man is putting too much into his house are the same ones who observe later on that he was smart to build when he did.

The phrase "patter of little feet" takes on new meaning after a family visit to the shoe store.

My children can't figure how their grandad has lived 80 years without ever taking anti-histamines or vitamin pills.

Every home should have two card tables, a good one for family use and an ordinary one for lending purposes.

Neighborhood research has revealed that the husbands who successfully taught their wives to drive did so before they were married.

The fellow in the big house on the corner marvels at the way life plays little tricks on people. He has 11 children. "And to think," he says, "that I married Jane so that I could have her all to myself!"

I hope our marriage never reaches the point where we will look forward to Sunday-afternoon visitors.

Grandpa drooped so badly we finally called a doctor, and they were closeted for an hour. "No medicine," the doc told me, on leaving. "All he needed was some friendly conversation. I guess you've been pretty busy of late, haven't you?"

"If you had it to do over again," our daughter asked my wife the other evening, "would you marry Daddy?" And I hope that was a twinkle in her mother's eye when she answered: "As he was then, or as he is now?"

Test of endurance—how long a man's family will let him go without getting a haircut.

Drawings: Doty

That snow man the kids built as a replica of me has wasted away. I wonder if there's an omen in this?

One of the first things I notice when meeting strange couples is the average inflection of their voices when they talk to one another. That tells more about the level of their relationship than term of endearment dragged in or purposely omitted.

My Aunt Nancy says that the first sign that a marriage is going to last is when the husband sits down to read the paper and hands his wife half of it. But Uncle Ben says it's the time when he begins to lift his feet the very moment she turns on the vacuum cleaner.

I overheard Grandpa Buckner, the pioneer, upbraiding his newly married grandson: "If you think you will be prosperous by allowing the government to take care of you, just remember the Indians."

Every time Dick Smith comes to work with a bad head cold, we know it's because his wife has too much work lined up for him if he stays home.

This is the part of winter I like. I can talk grandly of coming garden projects in the knowledge that nothing need be done about them for a while.

Your new electric dishwasher ceases to be new as soon as envious friends stop making cracks about the possibilities of washing the dog and baby in it.

With one of our youngsters on crutches for a few months, others in the family have become more understanding and considerate, while he has developed patience and self-reliance. The experience has helped all of us to grow in character.

Grandpa drooped so badly we finally called a doctor, and they were closeted for an hour. "No medicine," the doc told me, on leaving. "All he needed was some friendly conversation. I guess you've been pretty busy of late, haven't you?"

"If you had it to do over again," our daughter asked my wife the other evening, "would you marry Daddy?" And I hope that was a twinkle in her mother's eye when she answered: "As he was then, or as he is now?"

Test of endurance—how long a man's family will let him go without getting a haircut.

That snow man the kids built as a replica of me has wasted away. I wonder if there's an omen in this?

One of the first things I notice when meeting strange couples is the average inflection of their voices when they talk to one another. That tells more about the level of their relationship than terms of endearment dragged in or purposely omitted.

My Aunt Nancy says that the first sign that a marriage is going to last is when the husband sits down to read the paper and hands his wife half of it. But Uncle Ben says it's the time when he begins to lift his feet the very moment she turns on the vacuum cleaner.

I overheard Grandpa Buckner, the pioneer, upbraiding his newly married grandson: "If you think you will be prosperous by allowing the government to take care of you, just remember the Indians."

Every time Dick Smith comes to work with a bad head cold, we know it's because his wife has too much work lined up for him if he stays home.

This is the part of winter I like. I can talk grandly of coming garden projects in the knowledge that nothing need be done about them for a while.

Your new electric dishwasher ceases to be new as soon as envious friends stop making cracks about the possibilities of washing the dog and baby in it.

With one of our youngsters on crutches for a few months, others in the family have become more understanding and considerate, while he has developed patience and self-reliance. The experience has helped all of us to grow in character.

HEY, MOM! Where's the Listerine? We've got Sore Throats!

EVEN YOUNGSTERS know how often the ordinary sore throat due to colds yields to Listerine Antiseptic. They have learned it om their parents, from their doctor, and fr n actual experience. Listerine's absence fr n the bathroom shelf is viewed—and wi ly so—as a major oversight on some-bo y's part.

o often sore throat is but the symptom of an n-coming cold. The bacteria associated wi colds can multiply on throat surfaces, rr ate them temporarily, then pass upward nt the nose, or downward into the bron-hi tubes.

ten prompt and regular gargling with is rine Antiseptic will alleviate the sore r t and even help head off a cold. In th words, Listerine Antiseptic attacks e acteria on throat surfaces before they t k you.

Attacks Germs Quickly

es showed bacterial reductions on mouth d throat surfaces ranging up to 96.7% e minutes after a Listerine Antiseptic g —and up to 80% one hour after. r rmore, research has shown that those o argled with Listerine Antiseptic twice a caught fewer colds, and generally less e colds, than those who did not gargle h t.

o no matter what else you do, at the f mptom of a cold or sore throat, start g g with Listerine Antiseptic—a safe w ith no undesirable side-effects.

How good an amateur architect are you?

Drawing: Harrie Wood

By Ian Porter

Planning a house looks fairly simple, doesn't it? If you have enough money to pay for amateur planning mistakes, that is.

But when you're fighting against high costs to get a home that suits your family, you can't afford to make mistakes. That's why we recommend that you see an architect before building.

An up-and-coming young salesman we know wanted a two-bedroom house with a den, porch, basement for heating plant and shop, and kitchen-laundry with eat g space. On the rare occasions when en - taining formally, his family would eat n the living area. He didn't see an archit , but to avoid a fee, had his builder desig a house for him. The builder was a good r n —at building houses. But like m y builders, he wasn't qualified as a desig r, and made mistakes the proud owner di 't catch until too late.

Can you find the mistakes? There ar 6.

You'll find mistakes listed on pa 8

Here are the mistakes in the house on page 6

1. A living room containing 324 square feet is s ci but when that room is square, it is poorly plann . P portions should be closer to 14x21—a ratio of 1 tc ½ stead of 1 to 1.

2. Entrance hall is far too large. You didn't se an trance hall? Neither did the owner, but that's exac y wi his living room turned out to be.

3. Den has no closet. A den doesn't need a clc t wi used as a den, but without a closet you can't cor rt room to a guest room or third bedroom. That's hat owner discovered a year later when a second child s bo

4. Because of its depth, living room will be dar in s of the big picture window on the street. Better Hom & dens doesn't always approve picture windows on e s side, so if you marked that down as an additional or, have our blessing.

5. Big closet off living room is badly placed. If s an purpose closet for card tables and the like, it shou ope the bedroom hall. To use it for guests' coats, ru ers. galoshes means carrying them all the way across e roo The owner would have been wise to widen his g age feet, put a coat closet near the front door, and use e re the extra space for storage in the garage for bik and s den tools.

6. Fireplace should be either moved at lea four f away from the front wall so you can group furnit e arou it, or else it should be built into the front corne acing center of the room.

7. Garage is too short. Most low-priced cars ll fit, they'll fit with so little room at front

why? mommy

"Why, Mommy, is the snow white?" . . . "What holds the stars up?" His eager demands follow you from room to room. "What makes an airplane fly?" . . . "Why is fire hot, Mommy?" You love your child's questions. They show his intelligence and alertness. You try to answer them simply and well, for you realize his questions are the beginnings of all he will ever know.

Yet many times you may feel you cannot do justice to the many questions in that bright and busy mind—questions that become more complex and important with his growing years.

AND, WHAT ARE YOUR ANSWERS?

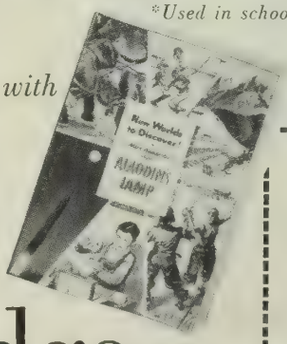
Your answers must satisfy his eager curiosity. They should send him off to play or school confident that he knows as much—or more than others of his age. The way you answer his puzzling questions can easily be the key to his future success and leadership.

Other devoted, intelligent parents have solved this problem. In the homes of over 4,000,000 boys and girls THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is the parents' friend—the lifetime companion of children.

PARENTS HAVE SEEN IT WORK

The child may first open THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE to look up a fact or while away an hour. Then he becomes intrigued, fascinated, drawn in. He reads on and on, page after page. Many a volume has met the morning tucked under a sleepyhead's pillow. For here is the important knowledge of the world—the animals, birds, fishes, flowers, trees—hundreds of full colored pictures; the history and customs of a hundred different countries, the worlds of the skies, the world at the bottom of the sea; science, invention, literature, poetry, manual arts and training. Here is his constant companion in school,* at play, on rainy days at home.

A GIFT FOR YOUR BOY OR GIRL



If you haven't seen THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE, we would like you to sample the wonders of this great work of 7,000 pages and 15,000 pictures. We will send you free, without obligation, "New Worlds To Discover! More Wonderful Than Aladdin's Lamp," a 36-page booklet of actual full size pages from THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE. Just clip the coupon below and this beautifully illustrated booklet will be sent without charge.

Reproduced in full colors, with fascinating facts and answers to curious questions; with color plates of birds, animals, paintings, this booklet will become one of your child's most cherished possessions—something he will refer to again and again. Simply mail the coupon for your free copy.

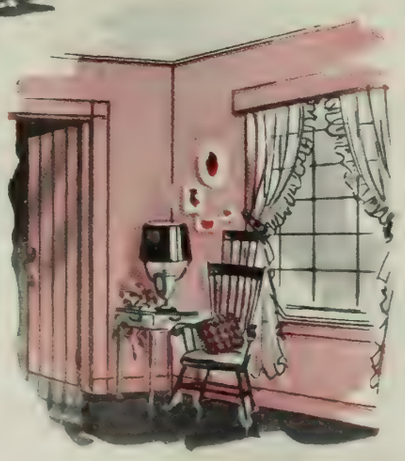
How does your room look to your friends? Do they see these faults so easy to correct? If they do, then let's fix it right now with wonderful Self-Smoothing Kyanize Paint. Here's how!

Too narrow? Then make it seem wider. Paint one narrow end wall with one of the lush Kyanize Clingcote Flat Deep Colors.



There's magic for you! Your room now looks wider. And when you paint it with Kyanize Clingcote Flat, you're sure of best results. For all Kyanize Paints are Self-Smoothing... flow on smoothly and dry without brush marks.

Ceiling too high? Let color lower it. Just lower your molding (or use new molding) to the desired ceiling height. Then paint your ceiling and the wall above the molding with Kyanize Clingcote Flat (comes in white and range of colors). And incidentally it will make your room look larger, too!

Too many doors... too many windows? Let's make them disappear . . . with Self-Smoothing Kyanize Paints. Do the walls in one of the lovely Kyanize Clingcote Flat Colors. Then paint all the woodwork with Self-Smoothing Kyanize Celoid Semi-Gloss in the same matching color (color comes already matched).

And presto! Those ugly doors and windows have disappeared.

INCOME TAX

By Henry Felsen

Looking for a "legal loophole" to hold your incom down as low as possible?

By all odds, your best bet is to make sure you'r one of the 15 million Americans who will pay Uncl more then he has coming.

About 50 percent of them make mistakes in rep income, 20 percent get fouled up on deductions, 1 cent are wrong about exemptions and dependents, percent—almost a million taxpayers—apparently add. And mistakes are costly in two ways. If you pay enough, there is a 6-percent interest charge delinquent amount. If you fail to claim legal ded and exemptions, your overpayment may never covered, and you're out of luck.

You don't have to be an expert to prepare a retu takes advantage of every legal benefit. Just follow steps that private and government experts follow ing out a return. You'll get the same results.

1. Study previous tax returns

Certain items, such as depreciation schedules, c ly must remain constant. If you trust to memory anc the rate, you may pay extra for the error. Check g vious returns will remind you of deductions anc tions that you might be overlooking now. Also, th be deductions you wish to claim that you didn't c fore. If you do make new or different claims, the ov ment will want to know why. You must be able pro such changes legitimate, and more than an at npt evade taxes. Checking previous returns is a good fres and makes it easier to start on your current ret n.

2. Report income correctly

You can lose money in two ways by not repo g v gross income correctly. If you fail to include t able come, you lay yourself open to the 6-percer int charge on the delinquent amount owed, a pen negligence penalty, and perhaps a 50-percent fra pen ty. On the other hand, if you include and pa taxes income that's exempt, you're giving money awa

For tax purposes, income is defined as ga derv from capital, from labor, or both, or gains resu ng fr the sale or other disposition of property. Tha eems cover everything, but there are over 300 kinds incom that you do not have to report or pay taxes on ome ex amples are municipal bond interest, gifts, life in ance p ceeds paid by reason of death, certain payments to vet ns, hos and accident benefits, and so on.

5 million Americans will pay rle Sam more than he has coming.

lee are 10 tips, straight from hmen who wield the fine-tooth

omb, to save you money

I important, then, to take a good look at all your in- , to see if any of it can be omitted from your reportable ome. For instance, a friend of mine cashed in $6,000 on of savings bonds, and paid a tax on the total in- re earned. He didn't know that the interest on his ons up to $5,000 bought before March 1, 1941 was tax empt. He paid an extra tax of over $100.

B not reporting income under the impression that it is empt is a tricky business, and you'd be smart to check l doubtful items with the tax office.

Fld V....., for example, was called in by his boss d told that the firm was so pleased with his work they re giving him a gift of a hundred dollars. Since the boss id "gift" and not "bonus," Fred didn't report the hun- ed as income. Two years later the government asked r taxes on the hundred, plus interest.

Th government held that, no matter what the boss said, e money was paid for services rendered, that it had been rn, and was a taxable bonus, not a tax-free gift. Last ar on the other hand, Fred was married, and when the ic force took up a collection for a wedding present, the m chipped in. This was a gift, and the money did not ve to be reported.

Th re's really a thin line between taxable and nontax- le come. Two women, a Mrs. Craft and a Mrs. Dugan, ar an apartment. Mrs. Craft, a retired teacher, lived a pension she received from the Carnegie Institute for Advancement of Teaching. Mrs. Dugan, whose hus- nd had been a city fireman, lived on his pension. Hav- g n other income, neither woman filed a return. The ve ment demanded that Mrs. Dugan pay income tax.

he uling is that a city fireman receives his pension as t ayment in recognition of services rendered, again as r ult of labor, and it is taxable. The teacher on the he hand, had never performed any services for the rn ie Institute, and the money was considered a ri ble contribution in the interest of teaching.

If ou receive a gift, you do not have to include the e of it in your return, but any income earned by the i axable. A father gave his son a small apartment s worth $30,000. The 30 thousand was not taxable n for the son, but the rents he received for the apart- t were taxable.

as mentioned before, there is an important line c ides a gift from an earned bonus. A recent popular ic picture show the troubles of a man who won a t and had a wild time trying to raise the money a taxes on his winnings. Although he won his re- rd on a "giveaway" program, he had to answer a tai question correctly to win, and no matter how ht is effort, the government

Is your child's future worth a Wurlitzer Piano?

Ability to play the piano is ability to make friends

You don't expect your little girl to be a child prodigy. But your dreams for her future include popularity, poise, every advantage you can provide. And when she's old enough to pick out the scale, she's old enough for a Wurlitzer Piano.

"Catching on" to lilting tunes and inspiring melodies at the Wurlitzer Piano, children learn to use minds as well as fingers. They gain concentration and coordination—self-assurance, ease of expression, personality—as well as the lasting treasure of music.

Like a good education, a Wurlitzer for your child can be an investment that pays rich dividends for life.

A Wurlitzer can give your child a better chance in life

Wurlitzer Piano Model 2150. Available in walnut, mahogany and many other finishes.

Wurlitzer is famous not only for fine pianos, but for the finest in electronic organs, too. Among these is a remarkable new electronic organ for the home. Easy to install. Easy to play.

And Wurlitzer Pianos are moderately priced

Wurlitzer Pianos are famous for fine construction, splendid tone, and stamina. Famous for values, too. And today, these values are greater than ever. This is made possible by a very simple fact: More people buy Wurlitzer Pianos than those of any other name.

he atest rule is to examine y ollar received from sources r an those included in the nit of income. You may be ingsome that is wholly or ial exempt.

Avoid nonallowable uctions am mes the difference be- n nonallowable and an al- ble deduction is determined w d or two.

yo g doctor went to work for he physician at a starting y $125 a week. At the end of ea the young doctor deduct- all his professional expenses hi gross income. The deduc- w e not allowed.

:co ing to the doctor's con- : h was getting the $125 a as alary, and that was his full per tion. That made him an loy , and the law holds that mp yee cannot deduct busi- e penses unless he is out of o night for business rea- o reimbursed for in-town se w o doctors tore up their old contract and wrote another, under which the young doctor received a salary of $100 a week and was reimbursed for expenses. This brought his average weekly check back to $125, but he could now deduct those actual, reimbursed expenses from his gross income.

When the government allows you to deduct ordinary and necessary business expenses, it means those expenses which are ordinary and necessary to the business, not to the taxpayer. If the people in your business hold a convention every year, you may deduct essential expenses for attending. But if you have to hire a maid so you can go to work or run a business, you cannot deduct the cost of the maid's wages. That is a personal expense.

About the best place to look for a tax savings is in connection with expenses incurred in the production of income from sources other than your job or profession. This includes part-time jobs, money made from hobbies, incidental renting, and so on. At the same time, it is an easy place to make a claim that will be disallowed. Generally, the government will allow you to deduct expenses from this extra income if you can prove that the activity was primarily for the purpose of producing income.

Tom F. . . . . fixed up a workshop in his basement where he could do woodworking as a hobby. People liked what he made, and before long he was selling everything he produced. Tom liked the work, looked on it as a hobby, and in the course of a year he earned $500, about a sixth of his regular income. Tom deducted as a business expense the depreciation on his machinery, cost of materials, and prorated the cost of maintaining his home. His deductions were allowed.

Allen P. . . . . also liked to do woodworking in his spare time. And, like Tom, he bought some expensive equipment. Allen worked when the mood was on him, and offered his products for sale. In a year's time, he sold $50 worth of Sunday's mashed potatoes taste twice as nice on Monday when you fry 'em crisp and light in Crisco! Yes, and they're sure to be digestible, too! Foods fried in Crisco are as digestible as they are light and tender!

(4 servings)

All Measurements Level

2 cups mashed potatoes*	1 tbsp. grated onion
1 tbsp. butter	½ cup fine bread crumbs
½ tsp. salt	1 egg + 2 tbsps. water
⅛ tsp. pepper	4 veal chops
1 egg yolk	Crisco for frying

Mix cooled potatoes with 1 egg yolk and grated onion. Shape into rolls about 2½" long and thick as a finger. Coat with flour, then roll in diluted egg and then in fine bread crumbs. Melt 4 to 5 tablespoons of Crisco in a heavy 8" or 9" frying pan. Slowly fry potato logs turning to brown all over. Serve piping hot with pan-fried veal chops: quickly brown veal chops in a little hot Crisco. Cover and cook until tender.

Leftover mashed potatoes may be used.*

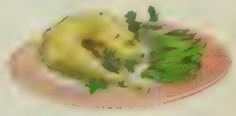
They're crisp! They're light! They're fried in Crisco!

Mmm . . . how potatoes do perk up when you fry 'em crusty-crisp and fluffy-light this Crisco way! And everyone, from Junior to Grandpa, can have second helpings. Crisp, light, Crisco-fried potatoes are digestible! Yes, just as digestible as though baked or boiled!



Why shouldn't they be? Crisco itself is digestible! It's pure—it's all-vegetable. 9 out of 10 doctors say foods fried in Crisco are easy to digest. And that's good news. For fried foods, as you know, can be heavy and hard to digest.

So don't take chances! Always fry foods light and right in pure, snowy Crisco. Then they're sure to be digestible. That's another wonderful reason why more women cook with Crisco than with any other brand of shortening!

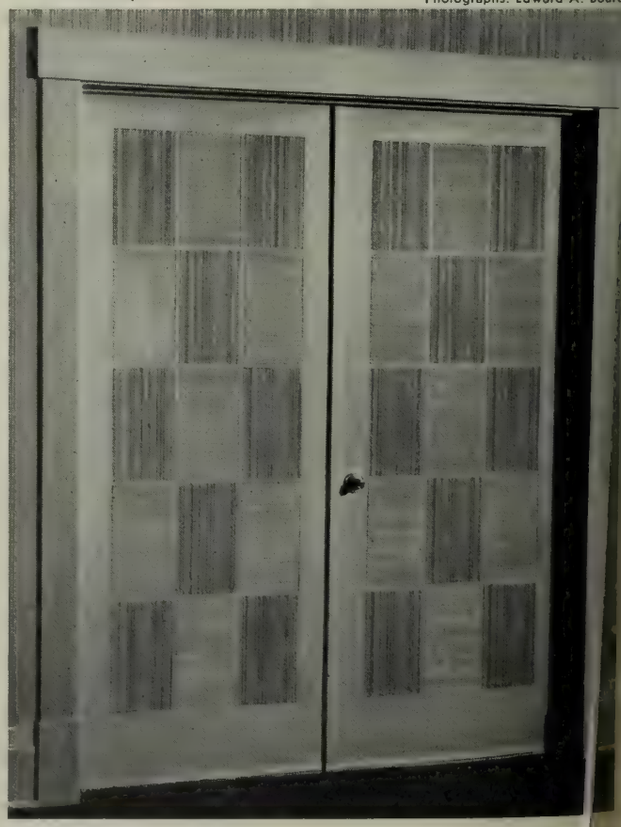
You can modernize French doors

Here's how the W. C. Hedricks of Houston, Texas, changed theirs. Anyone handy with tools will find this method inexpensive



By Frances Taylor

BEFORE: These ordinary-looking French doors, backed with monk's cloth for privacy, dated a room that was being modernized. Since privacy, not light, was needed, the Hedricks decided to cover the door panes with wood panels

d waves step up germination

arrot- and tomato-seed germination has been in-reased as much as 40 percent by treatment with high-requency radio waves, according to Dr. Herbert ones of the University of California.

Similar results were reported in Russia many years go, and Dr. Vernon T. Stoutemyer, then with the U. . Department of Agriculture, insisted that someone in merica should repeat these experiments.

The Russian experiments were designed to speed up ed germination during chilly spring weather, to see the growing of certain crops could be pushed rther north.

ests in Holland show that male asparagus plants will tyield female plants 25 to 35 percent.

Since 1-year-old plants which have not flowered e usually set out, it is impossible to sort them by sex. the home garden, however, if extra plants are set in section other than the regular bed, female plants can dug from the latter and discarded as soon as they n be identified by the berries they produce. Male ants bear no berries.

eports of "giant African beans" keep cropping up the public press, always mentioned as new and ysterious. Sometimes they are referred to as of tec origin.

Actually, these beans are fruits of a gourd, a mem-r of the genus Lagenaria, neither mysterious nor w. Under the name Zucca de Pergola, this "squash" s been in commerce for years. I have grown it as g as 4 feet, but quality is better if picked when 2 t in length. It is much inferior to Caserta, Zucchini, other summer squashes, which it resembles in vor. Unless grown on a pergola, so fruits can hang wn, it grows in a semicircle.

eaking of Zucca de Pergola reminds me of its near-ative, the Giant Zucca melon. This grows to a ight of 100 pounds or more, has a fairly solid, vorless meat. The meat is cubed, flavored with mon, orange, pineapple, or mint, dyed a suitable or, and sold as mixed candied fruits. If you buy xed candied fruits, chances are 10 to 1 you've eaten ored Zucca-melon pulp.

All of you who Bake or fry Should choose Swift'ning– Here is why:

Swift'ning* gives digestibility...plus

First of all, choose Swift'ning for this basic reason. Swift'ning is digestible. Emulsified for greater digestibility, it is unexcelled by any other all-purpose shortening. Then . . . choose Swift'ning because it gives you so much extra. Look at all the pluses Swift "built in" when they perfected Swift'ning!

DIGESTIBILITY plus

BETTER-TASTING FRIED FOODS!

No other all-purpose shorten ing makes such delicious d gestible fried foods. The fo fats used for Swift'ning are carefully selected and hig refined that it doesn't deve "off" flavors or odors in ing as some shortenings

MARTHA LOGAN'S MARVELOUS FRIED CHICKEN

Cut tender-grown Swift's Premium Chicken into pieces for frying. Mix ½ c. flour, 2 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper and 2 tsp. paprika in a paper sack. Shake 3 or 4 pieces of chicken in sack at a time to coat.

Put enough Swift'ning in a heavy skillet to make ½" layer, (about 2 c. for 10" skillet). Heat until a half-inch cube of bread browns in 60 seconds. Brown chicken on all sides in hot fat. Add 2 tbsp. water, cover tightly. Reduce heat and cook about 20 min. longer, until chicken is tender. To crisp the crust, remove cover and cook 5 to 10 min. more.

Pure tasteless Swift'ning, used at proper frying temperatures, won't develop "off flavors" and odors as some shortenings do. And remember, no other all-purpose shortening is more digestible.

"We have fried foods much more often since I've discovered how light and crisp and digestible Swift'ning makes them." Mrs. Robert Quay, Erlton, N. J.

"I'm a constant user of Swift'ning now. It makes my cakes lighter and I like it better than anything I ever used for frying." Mrs. R. W. Seely, San Marino, Calif.

Good cooks are switchi

you

DIGESTIBILITY plus

FINER CAKES-HIGH, LIGHT & HANDSOME!

Whether you use the creaming or no-creaming method, you'll be thrilled with your Swift'ning cakes. Heavenly light, yet moist—thanks to Swift's own special quick-mix ingredient. And Swift'ning cakes are richer, too.

DIGESTIBILITY plus

FLAKIER PIES!

Yes, that digestible Swift'ning piecrust is flakier, too. You see, Swift'ning has higher shortening power than any other all-purpose shortening. Because it's extra rich, it makes flakier pastry, more tender shortcakes and biscuits.

GESTIBILITY plus

MORE NUTRITION!

Still another "plus" for wonderful Swift'ning! It contains a special combination of nutritional values not supplied by any other all-purpose shortening . . . values important for your family's health.

No other all-purpose shortening gives you:

Such delicious digestible fried foods as Swift'ning!
Such flaky pies as Swift'ning!
Such superlative cakes as Swift'ning!
So much nutrition as Swift'ning!

Pure, digestible Swift'ning is the truly all-purpose shortening. There is no other like it. Try wonderful Swift'ning right away.

ew insecticide with promise

A new insecticide, heptachlor, looks so promising that more than a million pounds of it will be made before it is announced to the public.

Heptachlor is short for 1, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 8-heptachloro-3a, 4, 5, 7, 7a-tetrahydro-4, 7-methanoindene, which is considerable to be short about!

A close relative of chlordane, it has the advantage of being an effective insect killer outdoors, without remaining poisonous as long as chlordane. At a concentration of 1/10 pound of actual heptachlor per acre, grasshoppers were killed completely, while 4 ounces to the acre killed such tough pests as cotton boll weevil and thrips. Testing on the common garden pests has not yet been completed.

Indoors, it has proved a highly potent roach, fly, ant, and mosquito killer. One room sprayed with a 2 percent emulsion of heptachlor remained free of all insects for nearly two years.

The new insecticide has not yet been authorized for use on food crops, but this would be its big use if federal approval were granted.

adiolus pest control

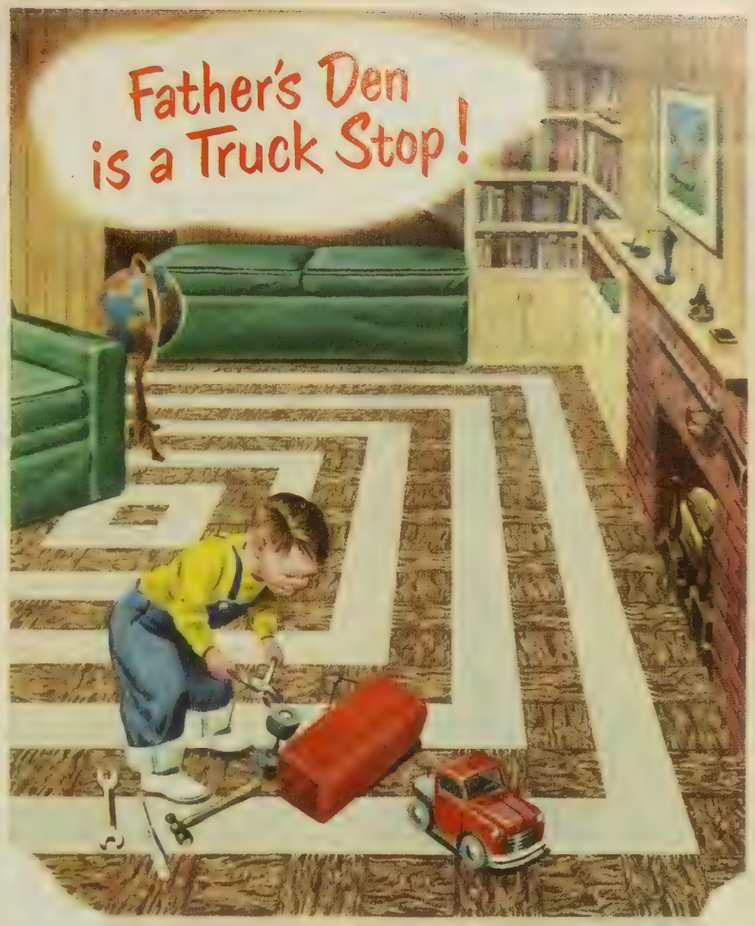
A new control for seed-corn maggot, which causes extensive injury to the gladiolus on the west coast and in other sections, has been announced by entomologists at the University of California.

Excellent results can be obtained with 1/8 ounce of 40 percent wettable chlordane in 1 quart of water or 1/16 ounce of 25 percent lindane in 3 pints of water per 25 square feet, sprayed over the corms before covering them when planting.

riving trade

Enterprising youngsters in Michigan have worked up a lucrative business in, of all things, corn-borer larvae. They dig the white larvae out of corn stubble and sell them as bait for fishing through the ice. Going price is 15 cents a borer!

at no substitute for light



Inexperienced home-greenhouse operators often try to make up for the lack of sunshine in cold weather by turning up the heat. This is exactly opposite from what they should do: Heat does not substitute for light, but merely makes lack of it all the more serious. Heat should be lowered on dark days.

House-plant growers will find oftentimes that plants which love sunshine in summer can be grown if kept quite cool in winter when sunshine intensities are low. Thus the garden marigold, a semitropical plant, does well in a south window if air temperatures do not go much above 55 in the room.

lar return from vegetables

My analysis of returns from my own vegetable garden shows that year after year, snap beans give the greatest dollar return. Tomatoes are next, lettuce, third, and Zucchini squash, fourth.

Tomatoes would be tops if production measured value, but no family can eat all it produces from an average planting, and market values on tomatoes are lower when home-garden vines are producing.

How we retired with $250 a month

HERE WE are, living in Southern California. We've a little house just a few minutes' walk from the beach, with flowers and sunshine all year. For, you see, I've retired. We're getting a check for $250 a month that will keep us financially independent as long as we live.

But if it weren't for that $250, we'd still be living in Forest Hills, and I'd still be plugging away at the same old job. Strangely, it's all thanks to something that happened, quite accidentally, in 1926. It was August 17, to be exact. I remember the date because it was my fortieth birthday.

To celebrate, Peg and I were going out to the movies. While she went upstairs to dress, I picked up a magazine and leafed through it idly. Then somehow my eyes rested on an ad. It said, "You don't have to be rich to retire." Probably the reason I read it through was that just that evening Peg and I had been saying how hard it was for us to put anything aside for our future.

Well, we'd certainly never be rich. We spent money as fast as it came in. And here I was forty already. Half my working years were gone. Someday I might not be able to go on working so hard. What then?

Now this ad sounded as if it might have the answer. It told of a way that a man of 40—with no big bank account, but just fifteen or twenty good earning years ahead—could get a guaranteed income of $250 a month. It was called the Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plan.

The ad offered more information. No harm in looking into it, I said. When Peg came down, I was tearing a corner off the page. First coupon in my life I ever clipped. I mailed it on our way to the movies.

Twenty years slide by mighty fast. The crash . . . the depression . . . the war. I couldn't foresee them. But my Phoenix Mutual Plan was one thing I never had to worry about!

1946 came . . . I got my first Phoenix Mutual check—and retired. We're living a new kind of life. Best of all, we've security a rich family might envy. Our $250 a month will keep coming as long as we live.

Lounging pillow of foam rubber always stays fluffed up, yet is as soft as a pillow can be. Pillow is 6-inch-thick molded foam rubber, 18" square, and covered in decorator fabrics (selection of 70, from sailcloth to brocade, in a variety of colors and patterns). Cover has zipper opening, can easily be removed to clean or to switch covers. If pillow gets damp from use outdoors or in a boat, foam rubber quickly dries out with no mildew or musty odor. Lazyback Pillow, $10.95 to $15.95, depending on fabric. Rubber filler only, $8.95. Extra covers, $3 to $8, in stores. Nettle Creek Industries, Richmond, Ind.

Pliable minnow bucket collapses to fit in tackle box or pocket. Small air chamber keeps it floating by the boat. Transparent in water, stays cooler than metal, and makes no scraping noise to scare away fish. Minnows live longer; bucket's soft sides won't hurt them. Can be loaded with minnows and carried in the car without tipping. Tuk-A-Buket, $2.95, in stores. Waltco Products, 2300 West 49th St., Chicago 9, Ill.

Plastic wiring wraps around pipes to warm them and prevent freezing. Can be put on at the start of winter and plugged in when freeze threatens. Smooth and flexible casing wraps quickly and is clean to handle. Prevents freezing in gutters and downspouts, waterpipes, and for soil heating and hotbeds. Thermotape 10-foot length with plug, $3.45. Thermostat $4.65, in stores. Smith-Gates Corp., Plainville, Conn.

Trowel with new-type handle saves your hands from blisters. Design of handle gives you leverage in working hard earth, making the work easier and more effective. Single-unit blade and handle are cast aluminum with red- or blue-painted handle. No-Blist'r Trowel, $1.25, in stores, or plus 10c postage from manufacturer. Ray Sanders and Co., 220 Security Bldg., Pasadena 1, Calif.

Sculptures you make yourself can look professional if you know how to "do it with wires." The basis of figure, animal, and head sculptures is the wire armature that forms the "bones." Kit of materials and instructions shows you how to make figures this way. Includes two packages of Plasteline, four modeling tools, a sculptor's modeling wheel, and two wire armatures—one for modeling two-legged animals, one for making four-legged animals. Sculpkit, $3.95, in stores or ppd. from manufacturer. Sculpture House, 304 W. 42nd St., New York 18, N.Y.

Home with a future

With rooms the size they wanted, the Friedmans' house is worth adding to

By Jessie Walker

You can't trade in a house every 2 or 3 or even 10 years, like a car. You get too attached to the house itself, to its site, to your neighbors. When you plan a house, you have to foresee the future and build toward it.

Maxine and Tom Friedman of Highland Park, Illinois, knew about how many square feet of house they could build with the money they had saved. But instead of building all the rooms they wanted smaller than they wanted them, they decided to build what rooms they could afford, and make them spacious.

Plans at the left show how Kenilworth Architect Morgan Yost satisfied the Friedmans' requests. Present rooms living-dining room, kitchen-utility room, bedroom, and garage—are large enough so their home is worth adding to, and plans for a wing containing two more bedrooms and a playroom have already been drawn. Besides planning for the future, the Friedmans have taken care of the present very well. Brick and a cedar-shingle roof contrast perfectly with the smoothness of glass and easy-to-keep-up natural cedar siding. Interiors have a color scheme just as natural as the exterior, just as easy to maintain.

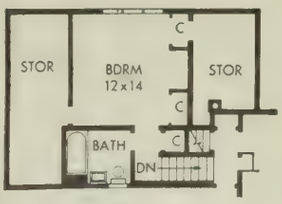
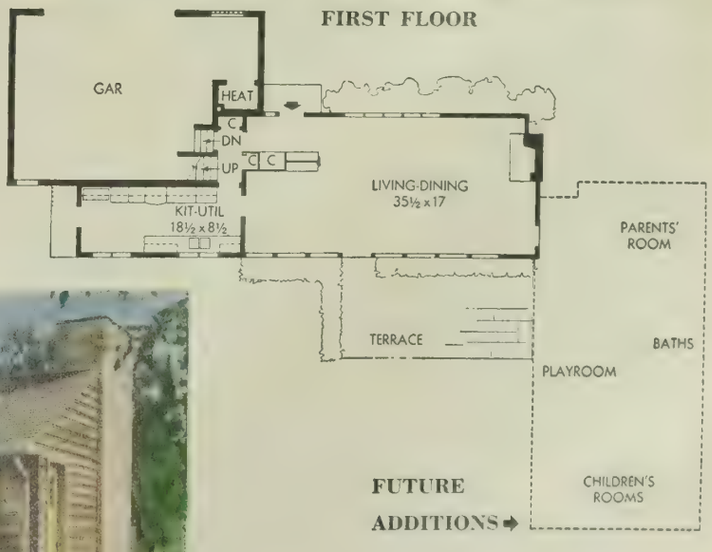
It isn't accidental that the lines of the house conform so well with the gentle slope of the land. The garage comes in at street level, but the bedroom under its gently sloping roof is only eight steps above lot level at the house, which is slightly above street level.



When the time comes that "future" bedrooms become reality, the new wing will protect the terrace from westerly breezes which sweep across the prairie, without interfering with the view from living-room windows on the north. The scenery will still be at its best, with the sun striking it rather than silhouetting it.



Only bedroom now is over garage, but because of the split-level plan, it seems close to the ground. Transom windows let in light when draperies are pulled, but overhang keeps out direct sunlight. Heat throughout is baseboard radiation

Seven days you'll never forget

You'll say it's too short, but here's how to pack the biggest and most exciting thrills of Southern California into the most fabulous vacation your family's ever had

By John McPartland

Is it worthwhile to take a family trip to Southern California if you have only a short time—as little as seven days—to spend there? Is it too expensive? Can a family have a good time without working too hard at having fun to really enjoy it? Is Southern California overrated?

All the good things you've heard about Southern California are true. The bad things are true only in respect to parts of the larger cities. In the 15,000 square miles from Santa Barbara to Mexico and from the ocean to the desert, you can sample almost every good way of life, almost every climate, and almost every kind of scenery that you would find on a world tour. There's sheer natural beauty of incredible variety; Emerald Bay at Laguna is a world away from the blazing reds and purples of the desert. Yet you can enjoy bay and desert the same morning. Southern California is not overrated; your family will enjoy it and remember it always.

You can pack a month of excitement into seven days here—the serene luxury of Santa Barbara, the excitement of Newport Harbor, the elegance of Beverly Hills, the cool pine mountains, the four centuries of history that remain so vividly alive here, the sense of tomorrow that is so much a part of daily life in Southern California.

Allow two hundred and fifty dollars a little more if you've a weakness for souvenirs—for this week (assuming there are two adults and two young [Turn to page 203

all through the house

The hall continues the yellow woodwork of the living room and carries the green broadloom carpet across the width of the hall and up the stairs where it continues through the upper hall

By Harry Richardson

The use of one color is growing in popularity because it has a way of making small homes look larger without being monotonous. If you like the new trend, you've probably wondered just how to go about using your favorite color this way in your own home.

To illustrate how it's done, we've chosen yellow, a color that works wonders in bringing sunshine into rooms that need cheer. By lamplight, yellow casts a warm glow that makes harmonious greens or browns look rich and satisfying.

Whatever your favorite color, these simple rules apply when you create a one-color scheme: Choose one color to predominate. Then select one or two others you'll use to play second fiddle to the leading color. With the yellow scheme shown, green and brown play supporting roles.

Vary the importance you let supporting colors assume in different rooms, and you can get variety without having conflicting color schemes. Here, room by room, is how you can carry one color all through the house.

In the bedroom, brown comes to the fore to create a restful effect. You find it in the wallpaper and in the carpet with its muted greens and yellows. The wood tones are pine and maple

In the bathroom, yellow fixtures and yellow woodwork contrast with dark green cabinets. Cabinets have bright yellow linoleum tops; floor is brown jaspe linoleum; rug is yellow

Compromise wit

Our Five Star home for March, No. 2103, is a compromise—and a happy one. Avoiding the triteness of some Traditional as well as the starkness of some Modern, it emerges as a house with a fresh, pleasing style of its own.

This is a good house, though, in more than looks alone.

This is, first, an efficient house. Basementless except for one small room to house furnace and water heater, its laundry and most of its storage areas are upstairs—where they belong.

This is a comfortable house. Awning windows all around mean you don't have to sprint around closing them every time it rains. The compartmented bath means you can sha . sh can soak—and both of you in privacy.

This is a friendly house. The pictures at right attest to hat. do the roomy parking court, the picture-windowed livi room, the shaded terrace behind. In this house, gu s ... good times are almost inevitable.

Finally, this is not a regional house. Though you se hou in a Deep South setting, it would be just as efficient, just com fortable, just as friendly, and just as much at home in C ncin cut, Kansas, Kentucky, or California. More on ge ...

Our contemporary home is

As intimate as an old friend

By Mr. and Mrs. Byron Vandegrift as told to Martha B. Darbyshire

You may decide that a Modern home is the common-sense solution for you and your growing family. And yet when it comes to furnishings, at heart you're still a Traditionalist. You may have treasured pieces you want to use wherever you live. What can you do? You can buy or build your Modern home, move in your Traditional furniture, and live happily ever after.

That's what we did. After living in two old-style houses, we wanted a Modern home—one designed for the comfortable, informal way our family of four likes to live. We wanted room enough so our lively children would have plenty of space to play anywhere in the house.

Into our Modern house went all our treasured Traditional furniture. A few Modern pieces were added. These pictures of our new home prove that good Traditional furnishings, functional and simple in design, fit well into Modern surroundings. We're happy with our new place—it has real livability.

Partition designed to separate the living and dining areas is a close combination of both Traditional and Modern. The Vandegrifts use a wood screen with a partial brick wall and a floor planter. A stretcher table, Windsor chairs, and glass chandelier are old family favorites from a former Traditional-style home. The floor is of easy-to-clean cement tile

As you step into the living room, a pleasant combination of Traditional and Modern greets you. From their former home, the Vandegrifts brought traditional tables, sofa, love seat, and chair. Modern feeling comes from large windows, window planter, and ceiling of half exposed wood beams, half plaster

Slate roof and redwood boards and battens give the Vandegrifts' home an informal look. Floor-to-ceiling windows bring the front yard right into the living room. Broad overhang shades living room from summer sun. Designer Paul Sterling Hoag used a clerestory window in the gable to light the hall

Photographs: de Gennaro

Sitting by the fire is a family tradition. That's why the Vandegrifts had the hearth of their fireplace built extra wide. The long black iron fireplace serves as a chimney and also radiates heat. There's generous storage space in the built-in magazine rack and cabinets along the wall. The open planning gives you a feeling of spaciousness — plenty of room for a family to relax in

Floor-to-ceiling windows seem to extend living room out onto lawn beyond covered entryway. Note drapery treatment of slanting windows. Conversation-piece table was made by mounting a circular glass top on antique porcelain barrel. Vandegrifts find the table handy when they entertain friends at buffet suppers

Trim outlines — for terrace near house

Brick risers, smoothly mortared, and capped with tile, slate, or thin stone treads, require a fair degree of skill in masonry, but make a pleasant flight of steps where formal lines without stiffness are wanted. To line the sides with mammoth Swiss Blue Pansies in 6-inch red clay pots is the idea of Mrs. Manfred Meyberg, Bel-Air, California.

Low-cost, serviceable, and pretty

Salvaged broken concrete slabs from walks and pavement can be laid up to make good-looking steps. The coarser the aggregate, the better-looking the steps. Use soil between slabs and plant low-growing rock plants in cracks at sides. Purple aubrietia is the flower that has been used here.

Informal — for a planted bank

Where a bank is retained by rocks and low-growing plants, steps with rounded edges blend better than others into the picture. If a curb is used to prevent loss of soil, let it step down as the steps do. Avoid sharp corners. Let pinks, veronicas, sedums, and other mat-forming plantings obscure edges.

ABCs
OF DECORATING
NO. 3 OF A SERIES

By Mary L. Brandt

If you choose Traditional, it's because you want your home to have dignity and charm. And you'll want the best of quality. Here's a dining room furnished with fine Eighteenth Century reproductions. Cherry woods ha a wa Striped upholstery material is particularly appropriate with Du n Plyf

If you choose Modern, you'll look for quality, too, because you know that quality furniture is extra comfortable. In this Modern living-dining room, the furniture is as well made as it is well designed: it cleans easily, wears long and well. You never grow tired of furniture with good design

Furniture is a long-term investment. Most of you hope that the chairs and tables you buy today will outlast your lifetime, perhaps become heirlooms. So you'll want the best possible furniture for your money.

First of all, look for furniture that suits your own needs best. Double-purpose pieces cost a little more, so be sure of just what extra uses you really need. Whatever period you want, you have a choice of dozens of styles, shapes, and sizes. Measure the space you have to find what size and shape will fit it best. (And take your tape measure along when you go shopping. Furniture always looks smaller in a store than it does in your home.)

Think in terms of separate pieces that look well together rather than investing in complete suites. Suites may include too many pieces or pieces that are too big. If you buy each piece separately, you can buy only the pieces you need and want.

Make your own check list of features to look for—and be sure to ask the salesman about them. Your list might include such points as:

Flexibility. How can the piece serve in different rooms now or later? Does it have any extra use? Does it team up with any other pieces to make a storage wall or extra-long sofa? Is the finish one that might blend with different color schemes? Is the style simple enough that you could mix the piece with other furniture periods?

Livability. You'll want furniture that's handsome. But be sure it will be easy to care for and sturdily built, too. Is the finish waterproof? How can the upholstery be cleaned? Will the upholstery catch or snag?

Comfort. Most of all you'll want furniture that's easy to live with. Bring Dad along when you pick out an easy chair for him. Let him try it for size. Pull the end table or coffee table you want over to a chair like your own to be certain it's at an easy-to-reach height.

Most construction points are hidden values. They're part of the reason why two chairs that look alike often vary so widely in price. You can check the seable points like these for yourself: Is all the finish the same color? Is the finish smooth to touch? Does the piece stand [Turn to page 297

Growing your own pays off

If your pyramiding food bills have long since flattened any hope of cutting the high cost of family eating—but you need to be shown that a vegetable garden is worthwhile in money value when you consider what you put into it—here is inspiration.

A study by Better Homes & Gardens shows $5.25 invested in seeds, insecticide, and plant food this spring will pay off better than 17 to 1, or $91.02. The figure is based on average retail vegetable prices for July, 1950.

It doesn't take a slide rule to figure the good-e ng bonus your family will enjoy this summer from th 15- vegetable bonanza pictured—delivered fresh in se on!

The $5.25 cost figure assumes you have the basic ols —garden hoe, spading fork, rake, trowel; that you ade the plot yourself, and that you grow all plants from ed.

But you'll still realize better than 4-to-1 divide s— $91.02 for $19.15—if you buy the tools, pay for the ow- ing, raise your tomatoes, onions, peppers, eggplant arly

There are success conditions. Vegetables need sun, an't cope with tree roots for food and water. Soil must be ood, well prepared, and watering means a better crop. ou'll need to keep weeds out, pests off.

The SOUP I Came before Cook Books

That's Vegetable Soup...variously made
Here are three popular kinds

BY Anne Marshall

MARSHALL

Soup Company

Vegetable soup is one of the very oldest in the world. Long before there were cook books, or any books, women were making soup by combining vegetables and herbs. Often they included meat. This was the beginning of our traditional vegetable soup, which has nourished women and children for thousands of years—and will for years to come.

The vegetable soup served, more and more, in American homes is ready-prepared "tried and true" recipes. It's enjoyed in these equally delicious kinds shown here. Vegetarian Vegetable Soup seems "made" to go with many salmon salad sandwiches: hot cocoa and apple sauce: deviled egg sandwiches: peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. Vegetable-Beef Soup is grand with toasted or grilled cheese sandwiches; potato or macaroni salad with deviled eggs on toast; green salad. Substantial and heart-warming, Vegetable Soup "goes with" just about everything, and makes it easy to plan meals around. For instance, Vegetable Soup tastes so good with grilled cheese sandwiches; cheese soufflé and a relish; frankfurters on toasted rolls; fruit salad and muffins—to name only a few.

Now try the menus pictured here—or make up to suit your family's taste?

Delicious for Spring

By Myrna Johnston

When a new season bursts as gay, light-hearted, and beautiful as spring, the cook should have a fling. That's you. Plan to fix something you haven't served for a long time or, better still, something you've never tried before.

For luncheon guests, Baked Crab Meat and Shrimp, lower left, comes straight from oven to table in ruffly seashells.

Big Tuna Roll, top left, is a neat and delectable way to stretch a cup of tuna. Nippy cheese sauce goes over the top.

The chafing dish keeps Welsh Rabbit smooth and hot to the last snappy bite. Below it is a big baker of Macaroni and Cheese—crusty-topped and full of fine cheese flavor. The little copper casseroles, lower right, have hot deviled eggs nestled in crisp, French-fried noodles, a rich brown sauce all [Turn to page 95

Desserts that will dazzle your guests

And you do want to dazzle them. That's the fun of turning out a beautiful creation in the kitchen.

The cheese cake's a dazzler, all right. Serve it in the evening when it can be the whole show. Bring it on at 10 p.m. One look and one bite, and the talk does a quick switch to "Isn't this wonderful?" "How did you get it so light and tender?" "This is the best cheese cake I've ever eaten."

Dazzler No. 2 is Jonquil Pudding, all white and golden to remind you of jonquils —and spring and Easter-egg hunts.

Dazzler No. 3 is Sunnyside Shortcake—two decks of tender cake topped with neat rows of juicy, perfect orange sections, topped with Orange Sauce.

For recipes on how to dazzle, see below.

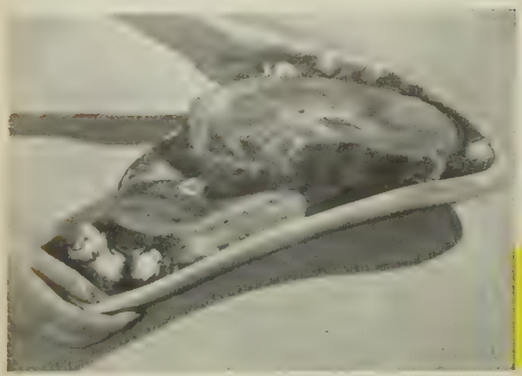
A kitchen is only as good as it looks and w[orks]. This one, designed by Architect Stephe[n A.] Stepanian and decorated by Robinson's, [is a] winner on both counts.

It has a U-plan for the food-preparation c[enter] that brings major equipment and storage [cabi]nets into a compact working relatio[nship]. Furthermore, the cabinets are indivi[dually] planned for their particular roles. Cooky [sheets] and serving platters are filed in the cabine[t next] to the range, and utensils swing out of a c[abinet] adjoining the sink.

Clever design also angled two walls [of the] kitchen to provide space for a laundry that [runs] on the assembly-line system. Clothes start [at the] loading counter next to the automatic [washer] and progress through the automatic dr[yer]. A second cocked wall gives a triangular [cabinet] to store canned foods and water heater.



Rich color used with birch cabinets makes thi[s] kitchen a standout. Breakfast bar is near re[frig]erator and range. Curtains and chair pads have quaint [Penn]sylvania Dutch pattern. Ceiling's white, sound

When you find the first tender asparagus spears, tiny green onions, or stalks of rosy rhubarb on the market, you know spring has come. So take advantage of the season's fresh, new flavors and colors to brighten your meals.

Here are ideas aplenty to perk up your daily menus, to make planning them easy for you. This is what you do: first pick the meat from the suggestions in the column at the left. Then choose what to serve in the potato dish, vegetable bowl, salad plate, and for dessert from the ideas across the page. Put on tall glasses of cold milk for the youngsters in your family.

If you're planning for company or Sunday dinner, you can dress up the meal without a lot of fuss. Just add one of the "nice to serve" extras on the right.

You're meals ahead

when you FREEZE

See how easy a dinner or a party ca be. You get the food ready ahead wh you have the time, freeze it till t busy day. Everything goes to the ta just as luscious as when you made

By Ida Ruth Mill

A magic dinner that can be made ahead 2 to 4 weeks

From crusty chicken to golden corn sticks and lemon chiffon pie, you can have the meal pictured above ready in 45 minutes. How's that for a dinner after a busy day or for Sunday after you get home from church?

Detailed directions for freezing meal are on page 268.

Here's what you do when you plan to serve your frozen dinner: Thaw cranberries and pie in refrigerator 2 to 3 hours. Take tray out of freezer an hour before dinner. Lift off foil wrap; season chicken, potatoes, and asparagus. Put 2 or 3 pats of butter on asparagus. Replace foil, wrapping it snugly around tray again—it's the lid. Heat in hot oven (425°) 45 to 50 minutes. Then call dinner!

How to freeze foods in photographs, page 263

Kid stuff! You're all ready for small-fry food fun

At a moment's notice, you can have a hamburger fry. Buy buns at store in cellophane packages or make your own. For lunch-box speed make sandwiches and label Monday, Tuesday, and so on. The baked apples are handy for the lunch box, breakfast, or an easy dessert any day.

Ice-cream cones are all dipped when you get a hungry request—no waiting till the gallon container thaws to dipping temperature. Top scoop on each cone was dipped in crushed peppermint stick candy.

You can hand a yumsickle direct from the freezer to the hungry licker. He'll soon thaw it!

A party? Get ready ahead

Here are wonderful ways to avoid out-of-breath hostessing: Look at all those ice cubes ready to go! And the frozen rolled sandwiches slice beautifully after they thaw an hour in refrigerator. Slice just before serving. Canapes, center, are all set to go, so all you have to do is thaw them an hour.

The eclairs are ice-cream-filled. Give them about 20 minutes out of the freezer before serving. Ice-cream pie should have 45 minutes on a refrigerator shelf before you serve it.

French-fried shrimp: Heat to piping hot in oven (425°) about 25 minutes. Or you could have shrimp cocktail frozen and waiting.

Cook double; bake double

Here's real luxury: Reach in the freezer for a frosted cake, a fresh-baked pie, a homemade loaf, little chicken pies, home-baked beans, long-brewed spaghetti sauce.

The trick is to cook or bake a double batch: Eat some; freeze some.

Let bread, cake, and pie thaw in refrigerator, or in covered container at room temperature. For warm pie, wrap in foil after thawing, heat in oven (425°). Place chicken pies on cooky sheet; wrap in foil; heat in oven (425°) till bubbling hot. Add a little water to baked beans and spaghetti sauce after they thaw; then heat till boiling hot.

AS FIRST PRIZES 20 FORD VICTORIAS

plus $500 cash bonus to each winner if two "red end flaps" accompany your entry (see below)

5 weekly contests with 234 valuable prizes every week—1,170 prizes in all!

Every week 4 Ford Victorias (or cash retail value if you prefer) plus $500 cash bonus to each winner if two "red-bordered end flaps" accompany entry.

Every week 10 General Electric Portable Dishwashers

Every week 20 General Electric Triple-Whip Mixers

Every week 100 crisp new $20 bills

Every week 100 crisp new $10 bills

You can enter every week!

First weekly contest starts March 7, ends midnight, March 17.

Second weekly contest starts March 18, ends midnight, March 24.

Third weekly contest starts March 25, ends midnight, March 31.

Fourth weekly contest starts April 1, ends midnight, April 7.

Fifth weekly contest starts April 8, ends midnight, April 14.

It's fun...it's easy to win!

Just name the adorable new twin babies in the Great Gildersleeve household!

One's a boy . . . One's a girl! Two names like Peter and Paula might win! Or Ray and Kay! You can quickly think of better names than these. Remember, originality counts.

Each Ford Victoria winner can also win a $500 cash bonus!

It's easy to qualify for a special bonus prize. Just include with your entry the red-bordered end flaps from two (2) packages of Parkay instead of one. Then if your names for the twins in the Gildersleeve household are awarded a first prize, you will receive a bonus of $500 in cash in addition to your shining new 1951 Ford Victoria!

The Great Gildersleeve's niece, Margie, has had twins . . . and just by helping name them you may win a wonderful prize! (See listing of 1,170 prizes at left.)

Here's all you do: Go to your store and buy a package of Parkay Margarine. Tear off the red-bordered end flap and mail it to Kraft with your suggested names for the twins. Use the blank below or an entry blank from your grocer's. (Include two red end flaps if you want to qualify for the special bonus prize of $500.)

Be sure to read all rules carefully before you mail entries.

FOLLOW THESE EASY RULES TO WIN!

1. Print or write clearly your suggested names for the twin babies. Remember, one is a boy, and one is a girl. Use the coupon in this advertisement, plain piece of paper or entry blank from your grocer's.

2. Print your name and address on each entry. Include also name and address of the grocer from whom you bought Parkay Margarine.

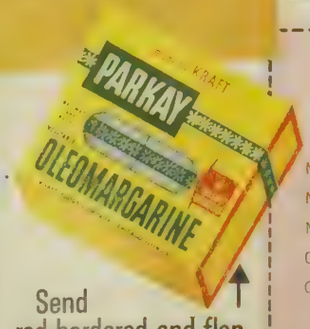
3. Send in as many entries as you wish. Write each pair of name suggestions on a separate entry blank.

4. With each entry enclose the red-bordered end flap from any package of Parkay Margarine. To be eligible for the $500 cash bonus awarded to Ford Victoria winners, enclose red-bordered end flaps from two (2) packages of Parkay.

5. Mail entries to Parkay Margarine, Box 6799, Chicago 77, Illinois.

6. There will be five weekly contests. First contest starts March 7, 1951; last contest ends midnight April 14, 1951. Entries received before midnight March 17, will be judged in the first week's contest. Thereafter, entries as received will be judged in the then current week's contest which will close at midnight each successive Saturday. Entries for the final week's contest must be postmarked before midnight April 14, and must be received by April 21. No entries will be returned, and no correspondence entered into. The Kraft Foods Company assumes no responsibility for entries lost or delayed in the mail. Entries with inadequate postage will not be considered. You accept all conditions of rules when you enter.

7. Weekly prize winners will be notified by mail. No one person may win more than 1 prize in each contest, nor more than 1 first prize in all five contests. Complete lists of winners sent on request to anyone sending a self-addressed stamped envelope at close of final contest.



8. Prizes as listed elsewhere in this advertisement will be awarded to the contestants whose name selections are considered most original, most unique and most apt by the judges. Judges' decision is final. Duplicate prizes in case of ties, in any week's contest. All entries become property of Krafts Foods Company. The names chosen for use on "The Great Gildersleeve" may be a combination of names suggested in this contest and do not necessarily have to be any of the winning names in the weekly contests.

9. Any person living in the continental limits of the United States and in Canada may enter this contest—except employees of the Kraft Foods Company, its advertising agencies and members of their families. Contest subject to Federal and State regulations.

PARKAY...tastes so good because it's always fresh!

In most states you can buy Parkay Margarine colored yellow. Parkay also comes uncolored and in handy Color-Kwik bag.

Tune in "The Great Gildersleeve" Wednesday evenings, NBC Network, 8:30 EST. You'll get lots of ideas for names.

Send red-bordered end flap

CLIP THIS ENTRY BLANK

Mail to Parkay Margarine, Box 6799, Chicago 77, Illinois. Enclose the red-bordered end flap from any package of Parkay Margarine. To be eligible for the special $500 cash bonus prize for Ford Victoria winners, enclose two red-bordered end flaps.

Butter Toast Cups With Tuna

We tell you how to make the "buttercups"—

6 slices day-old bread
3 tablespoons melted butter or fortified margarine
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ cup chopped onion
4 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons enriched flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk
1 cup leftover canned or cooked frozen peas
1 7-ounce can (1 cup) tuna fish, flaked
3 tablespoons chopped pimiento
¼ cup grated sharp cheese

Remove crusts from bread; brush it on both sides with melted butter; sprinkle with paprika. Press into muffin pans and toast in moderate oven (350°) until golden, about 15 minutes. Cook onion in butter until golden; stir in flour and blend. Add seasonings. Gradually add milk and cook over low heat until thickened, stirring constantly. Stir in remaining ingredients and heat until cheese melts. Serve in toast cups.—Mrs. Mary Newman, Columbus, Ohio.

Supper Rings

Bologna slices sizzle into little cups to hold fluffy potatoes—

Leave casing on 6 bologna slices, cut ⅛ inch thick. Heat a little fat in skillet; heat bologna in fat until rings puff to form cups. Combine 2 cups leftover mashed potatoes, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 1 tablespoon melted butter, ½ teaspoon salt, and ⅛ teaspoon pepper; beat fluffy. Spoon into bologna cups and sprinkle with grated American cheese. Place under broiler until cheese melts and potatoes are hot. Serves 6. —Mrs. Wayne Frederick, Clarksburg, West Virginia.

Henny Penny Muffins

Make them when there's just 1 cup of chicken left —

2 tablespoons chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped onion
4 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
2 cups enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 beaten eggs
1 cup milk
1 cup diced leftover cooked chicken

Cook celery and onion in butter until golden. Sift dry ingredients into mixing bowl. Combine eggs, milk, chicken, celery, onion, and butter in which vegetables were cooked. Add all at once to dry ingredients and stir until ingredients are just moistened. Bake in greased muffin pans in hot oven (425°) about 15 minutes. Makes 1½ dozen muffins. Serve with hot leftover chicken gravy or condensed cream of chicken soup. Mrs. C. W.

Desserts

Chocolate-Nut Crunch

A rich, fluffy square, a cup of coffee—your party's planned—

2 cups vanilla wafer crumbs
1 cup chopped California walnuts
½ cup butter or fortified margarine
1 cup confectioners' sugar
3 well-beaten egg yolks
1½ 1-ounce squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
½ teaspoon vanilla
3 stiff-beaten egg whites

Combine crumbs and nuts. Line bottom of 9-inch square pan with half of the crumb mixture. Thoroughly cream butter and sugar; add egg yolks. Add chocolate and vanilla. Mix well. Fold in stiff-beaten egg whites. Spread over crumb mixture. Top with remaining crumb mixture. Chill in refrigerator overnight. Cut in squares. Serves 9. —Mrs. M. A. Peterson, New Orleans, Louisiana.

Hot-fudge Pudding

You make it with a mix. It comes out of the oven with its own fudge sauce—

1 package devil's food cake mix
1 cup brown sugar
¼ cup cocoa
1 cup chopped California walnuts
1¾ cups hot water

Prepare cake mix as directed on package. Pour one-half of batter into greased 9-inch square pan. (Use remaining batter for cupcakes.) Combine sugar, cocoa, and walnuts; sprinkle over batter. Pour hot water over. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 45 minutes. Serve warm with whipped cream or ice cream. Serves 9.—Mrs. William Zoetewey, Los Angeles, California.

Chocolate-Almond Souffle

A showy, how-did-you-do-it dessert. Airy, but rich—

⅓ cup quick-cooking tapioca
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 1-ounce squares unsweetened chocolate, coarsely grated
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
3 egg yolks
¼ teaspoon vanilla
3 stiff-beaten egg whites

Combine tapioca, sugar, salt, chocolate, and milk. Cook till mixture comes to full boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; add butter. Beat egg yolks until light and lemon-colored. Add egg yolks and vanilla to chocolate mixture; mix well. Add gradually to egg whites, folding in thoroughly. Pour into greased 2-quart baking dish. Bake in pan of hot water in moderate oven (350°) 50 minutes. Serve hot with hard sauce or whipped cream. Garnish with toasted almonds. Serves 6 to 8.—Ethel Heiple, Auburn, California.

Chocolate-Mint Cups

You eat the dishes, too—

1 3½-ounce package after-dinner mints
¾ cup milk
Few drops green food coloring
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 1-ounce square unsweetened chocolate, grated

Combine mints and milk in double boiler. Heat until mints are melted. Cool. Add food coloring and fold in whipped cream. Pour into refrigerator tray and freeze until mushy. Fold in chocolate and freeze until firm. Serve in Chocolate Cups: Melt 1 6-ounce package semisweet chocolate pieces and 2 tablespoons shortening over hot water. Stir until thick; cool. Place paper baking cups in muffin pans. With a teaspoon, swirl chocolate mixture around inside cups. Cover entire surface with thin layer of chocolate. Chill. When [illegible] is hard, tear off paper. Fill with ice cream. Serves [illegible].

Leftovers

Pineapple-Veal Patties

You use leftover meat and get these delicious, dressed-up little roasts—

2 cups ground leftover roast veal
¼ cup fine, dry bread crumbs
¼ cup catsup
¼ cup minced onion
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon thyme
1 slightly beaten egg
4 or 5 slices canned pineapple
3 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
⅓ cup brown sugar
½ cup pineapple syrup

Combine meat, crumbs, catsup, onion, seasonings, and egg; mix well. Shape into 4 or 5 large patties. Place on pineapple slices in greased shallow casserole. Combine remaining ingredients and spoon over patties. Cover. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 30 minutes. Uncover and bake 10 minutes; baste occasionally. Serves 4 to 5.—Margaret Morrisroe, Westchester County, New York.

And best of all, you're sure of dependable quality, too—when the name's DEL MONTE. Why not always buy by the brand you've known so well, for so long—on so many other delicious fruits?

WINDMILL SALAD

In a shallow bowl, arrange alternating rings of dark and light-colored shredded salad greens. On top, arrange drained and chilled DEL MONTE Fruit Cocktail, as shown. Serve with this new fruit salad dressing, creamy and subtly spiced:

- 1 pkg. (3-oz.) cream cheese
- 1 tsp. sugar
- ½ tsp. salt
- Dash of cinnamon
- 1 tsp. grated lemon peel
- 1 tbsp. lemon juice
- ¼ cup syrup drained from DEL MONTE Fruit Cocktail

Mash cheese; add sugar, salt, cinnamon, lemon peel and juice. Mix well. Gradually add the fruit cocktail syrup; beat smooth. Makes about ¾ cup.

Win a prize, good cooks

There's a $70 jack pot waiting for you cooks who send us the best spaghetti, macaroni, or noodle recipes and refrigerator cooky recipes. And your chances are good—21 can win. We'll pay $10 for the best one and $3 for each for the 20 close contenders. Eight winning recipes will be pictured in October Cooks' Round Table.

Spaghetti, macaroni, and noodle dishes go easy on your budget, make wonderful cold-weather eating. What is your favorite?

You may start with homemade or prepared noodles; with elbow, shell, or quick-cooking macaroni; with packaged or canned spaghetti. You may end up with a baked dish or a top-of-the-range meal.

Perhaps your specialty is a spaghetti-sausage fix-up with tomatoes and cheese, a macaroni-salmon scallop, noodles with meat balls and tomato sauce. Or you may have a new version of an old favorite such as macaroni and cheese, Italian spaghetti, or chicken and noodles.

This is just a beginning of all the delicious spaghetti, macaroni, and noodle dishes. Choose the one you think is best to eat, prettiest to serve. Mail it in today.

Refrigerator cookies, crisp and delicious, have a lot in their favor. You can mix them ahead of time, then slice and bake when you need them.

What kind does your family like to find in the cooky jar? It may be orange cookies with coconut, rich chocolate-walnut bars, or spicy gingersnaps. Or your stand-by may be oatmeal or old-fashioned molasses cookies.

If you have any special tricks with refrigerator cooky dough, tell us about them, too. Do you roll the dough in logs or press it into an ice-cube tray to chill quickly?

Perhaps you give the cookies a quick trim by slicing them with a corrugated French-fry cutter. Or you may make fancy pin wheels by rolling up layers of chocolate and plain dough jelly-roll fashion.

Send us the recipe you've tried and like—a recipe with your own flair. Just follow the simple directions below. You'll be in line for a prize.

And remember, the winners of these 21 prizes will receive the Better Homes & Gardens Certificate of Endorsement and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

Macaroni and Cheese

Easy to put together. A wonderful family-style supper—

1½ cups scalded milk
1 cup soft bread cubes
¼ cup chopped pimiento
1 tablespoon minced onion
¼ cup melted butter or fortified margarine
1 cup 7-minute macaroni
1½ cups grated American cheese
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 beaten eggs

Pour scalded milk over soft bread cubes in bowl. Stir pimiento, onion, and melted butter into bread cubes. Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water for 7 minutes. Add grated cheese, salt, and pepper to mixture in bowl. Mix lightly. Add slightly beaten eggs. Don't overbeat them. Add the cooked, drained macaroni. Fill a greased 9x13-inch shallow baking dish. Bake in moderate oven (325°) 50 minutes.

Eagles' Nests

These are delicious and so attractive for a company luncheon—

6 hard-cooked eggs
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 teaspoon vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon dry mustard

Halve eggs lengthwise; remove yolks. Combine with remaining ingredients; blend. Refill egg whites. Heat in Brown Sauce: Melt 3 tablespoons butter; add 3 tablespoons enriched flour and blend; add ½ cup milk and 1 cup consommé. Cook over low heat until thick, stirring constantly. Season with ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, salt, and pepper. Serve in nests of French-fried noodles.

Salmon Loaf Salad

A cool salad loaf is a nice change from winter's hot, heartier fare—

1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
⅓ cup lemon juice
1 1-pound can salmon, flaked, or 2 6½-ounce cans flaked tuna
1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped green pepper
½ teaspoon salt

Soften gelatine in cold water; dissolve over hot water. Add remaining ingredients. Mix lightly. Salmon or tuna should be in large flakes. Pour into oiled 8½x4½ mold; chill until firm. Unmold; garnish with egg slices, cucumber sticks, and lemon. To match loaf in picture, page 77, double recipe.

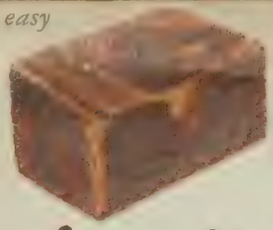
The Best Cooks Use Stokely's Finest Foods



Mrs. J. D. Young, 3852 Graceland Ave., voted Best Cook by Navy Club of U.S.S. Auxiliary Ship No. 42.

Ask Mrs. Young why the juices she serves are always Stokely's Finest, and she'll tell you: You'd need a citrus grove to get juice as fine, as fresh-tasting. You'd need fruit specially grown for natural sweetness . . . ripened on the tree, then picked and pressed when it's heavy with juice. That's what you get when you open a can of Stokely's Finest Orange Juice or Citrusip, the refreshing blend of orange-and-grapefruit that's getting to be as famous as that original favorite, Stokely's Finest Tomato Juice. For breakfast, lunch, and on your appetizer tray, enjoy the finest juices . . . reach for Stokely's to get the Finest.

MY-T-FINE DESSERTS...8 DELICIOUS FLAVORS

Made by the makers of Vermont Maid Syrup and Brer Rabbit Molasses.

62 ideas for your spring dinners

Begins on page 82

Orange Candied Yams

The brown sugar, orange juice, and peel give them their wonderful flavor—

- 6 medium yams
- ½ cup boiling water
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 3 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
- 1 tablespoon orange juice
- ½ tablespoon grated orange peel
- ¾ cup light or dark corn syrup
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- Orange slices

Pare and halve yams. Add boiling water and salt. Simmer in covered skillet until tender, about 15 minutes. Drain off liquid, leaving ¼ cup in skillet. Dot potatoes with butter. Combine remaining ingredients. Pour over potatoes. Cook uncovered over low heat until glazed, about 15 minutes. Baste frequently; turn potatoes once. Serves 6.

Pineapple Chiffon Cake

High, feathery-light, with a creamy pineapple frosting—

- 2¼ cups cake flour
- 1½ cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ cup salad oil
- 5 unbeaten egg yolks
- ¾ cup unsweetened pineapple juice
- 1 cup egg whites
- ½ teaspoon cream of tartar

Sift dry ingredients into mixing bowl; make a well in dry ingredients. Add salad oil, egg yolks, and pineapple juice in order given. Beat until satin smooth. Combine egg whites and cream of tartar in large mixing bowl. Beat until they form very stiff peaks (stiffer than for meringue or angel cake). Fold egg-yolk batter gradually into egg whites. Bake in 10-inch tube pan in moderately slow oven (325°) 55 minutes, then in moderate oven (350°) 10 minutes. Frost cooled cake with Pineapple-Butter-Cream Icing.

Pineapple-Butter-Cream Icing

Cream ½ cup butter or fortified margarine and 4 cups sifted confectioners' sugar. Stir in 6 tablespoons well-drained crushed pineapple and 1 to 2 tablespoons pineapple juice. Beat thoroughly. Spread on top and sides of cake. Decorate with pineapple daisies.

Tender Veal Birds

There's a moist, well-seasoned stuffing inside—

Cut 1½ pounds veal steak in 3x 5-inch pieces. Spread with Savory Stuffing. Roll; fasten with toothpicks. Wrap with bacon slice. Brown in hot fat; add small amount hot water; cover tightly and cook slowly 1½ hours. Makes 6 birds.

Savory Stuffing

- 3 cups toasted bread cubes
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped celery
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¾ teaspoon sage
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 beaten egg
- ¼ cup stock

USE ONLY SOFTASILK

FRESH ORANGE CHIFFON CAKE

Preheat oven to 325° (slow moderate). SIFT an ample amount of SOFTASILK CAKE FLOUR onto a square of paper.

STEP 1 . . . Measure (level measurements throughout) and SIFT together into mixing bowl:

1⅛ cups (1 cup plus 2 tbsp.) sifted SOFTASILK Cake Flour (spoon lightly into cup, don't pack)
¾ cup sugar
1½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt

Make a well and add in order:

¼ cup cooking (salad) oil, such as Wesson
2 unbeaten egg yolks (medium-sized) juice of 1 medium-sized orange plus water to make ⅜ cup (¼ cup plus 2 tbsp.)
grated rind of 1 orange (about 1 tbsp.)

Beat with spoon until smooth.

STEP 2 . . . Measure into large mixing bowl:

½ cup egg whites (4 whites)
¼ tsp. cream of tartar

Whip until whites form very stiff peaks. DO NOT UNDERBEAT.

STEP 3 . . . Pour egg yolk mixture gradually over whipped egg whites—gently folding with rubber scraper just until blended. DO NOT STIR. POUR into ungreased pan immediately.

Bake in loaf pan, 9½ x 5¼ x 2¾-in. 325°—50 to 55 min. . . . or until top springs back when lightly touched.

Immediately turn pan upside down, resting edges of pan on 2 other pans. Let hang, free of table, until cold. Loosen from sides with spatula. Turn pan over and hit edge sharply on table to loosen.

Split cooled cake crosswise into 3 even layers. Spread Orange Filling (recipe below) and sweetened whipped cream* between the layers. Cover top with whipped cream. Chill in refrigerator 1 to 2 hours. Garnish with orange slices, if desired. To serve, slice in pieces about 1-in. thick. Serves 8 to 10.

*Use 1 cup heavy cream sweetened with ¼ cup sugar. Grated chocolate may be folded into the whipped cream.

FRESH ORANGE FILLING

Mix together in saucepan . . .
- 1 cup sugar
- ½ tsp. salt
- 4 tbsp. cornstarch

Stir in slowly . . . 1 cup orange juice (including pulp)

Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and boils. Boil 1 minute. Remove from heat.

Blend in . . . . . .
- 1 to 2 tbsp. grated orange rind
- 1½ tbsp. lemon juice
- 2 tbsp. butter

You have to shop often if your refrigerator is too small. Or if it has a "lazy" cold-making unit. You have no other choice.

But now, Frigidaire makes tiresome, "hand-to-mouth" buying a thing of the past. Now you can decide how often to shop.

For Frigidaire brings you a refrigerator bigger on the inside, actually smaller on the outside — a feat made possible by compressing and rearranging the working parts.

Not only have you room for more food, but food keeps longer, better. Frigidaire's famous Meter-Miser is the reason. Simplest cold-making mechan the Meter-Mis makes all the c you'll ever ne for all the kinds food you keep.

Petits Fours Frosting

Cook 2 cups granulated sugar, ⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar, and 1 cup hot water to thin syrup. Candy thermometer will read about 226°. Cool to lukewarm (110°). Add ½ teaspoon vanilla. Add sifted confectioners' sugar till frosting is of consistency to pour. It will take about 1½ cups. This amount of frosting frosts about 10 Petits Fours. You can tint it any desired color with food coloring.

$250 for your one-dish meals

Do you plan a one-dish meal on a shopping day when you know you'll arrive home just before the family? Bake a special casserole to take along to the club luncheon or serve friends you have in Saturday night? Have a thrifty dish that stretches the food budget toward the end of the week?

If so, you may be headed for a prize. We want to hear about your favorite one-dish meals—the kind your family asks for again and again.

If you win first place in this special contest, we'll send you $100. Second place will receive $50, third $25, fourth $20, fifth $15, and sixth $10. And you have six other chances to win $5.

Just think of the best one-dish meal you ever made. It may bake out of the way in the oven, or bubble slowly in a skillet, or cook elegantly in a chafing dish.

Perhaps you start with ground beef, tuna or salmon, chicken, dried or corned beef, or leftover meat, then go on from there to add Limas, macaroni, noodles, rice, or potatoes. You may give it extra flavor with vegetables, cheese, or a blend of spices or seasonings.

Your specialty may be fancy enough to go on the buffet table when company comes—a chicken-mushroom bake or shrimp and rice in a cheese-tomato sauce.

Or it may be as simple as a Saturday-night hamburger casserole with mashed-potato topping. Or a highly seasoned chili con carne.

Send us your favorite one-dish meal today. If your family and the company that comes to your house vote your recipe tops, we want to try it, too.

Here are the rules:

1. Write your recipe clearly on one side of the paper. Send but one recipe at a time and mark it, "One-dish Meal Recipes."

2. Print your full name and address clearly in upper right corner of recipe page.

3. Give measurements in level cups, tablespoons, and teaspoons; never give them in heaping or scant measurements.

4. Be sure to specify in your recipe the brand names of the nationally known food products you use as ingredients—products available everywhere. We must know them so we can test your recipe with the same brands you use.

5. Include 50 to 100 words about the history or origin of your recipe.

6. All recipes submitted become the property of Better Homes & Gardens.

7. Entries must be postmarked by midnight, March 31.

8. Address the recipes you enter to 8303 Tasting-Test Kitchen, Better Homes & Gardens, Des Moines 3, Iowa.

What a family room can mean to you

By Martha Stevens

Circular Lazy Susan dining table with captain's chairs is close to the kitchen. It's a favorite spot for doing homework. The entire wall is lined with bookshelves, and there are cabinets below for storing games. Interior decoration is by George Hall

Here's how one family got its family room. The Herbert C. Webbs, Beverly Hills, California, decided to enclose and make part of their home the terrace area between their two-story house and garage. It was an ambitious project, but the Webbs saw it as an investment in good living. How well it has paid off for the Webbs and their two children may help you decide whether such a room is worthwhile in your own case.

The Webbs have found that:

1) The family room is a practical solution to the problem of finding a place for their teen-age daughter to entertain.

2) The room makes evenings at home a new pleasure by drawing all the family together.

3) The Webbs can enjoy a bridge foursome, or fill the room with tables for larger groups. And it's easy to serve buffet style from the snack bar.

Those are three good reasons why you, too, may find such a room a worthwhile investment for your family.

We lived in Shangri-La on $75 a month!

By Jay Vincent O'Ry

The plumbing was a little primiti', but we settled for peace of mind

You too can live on considerably less than $100 a month! We did, for a memorable half year.

Our home was part of a great mansion; our bedroom was as large as a small cottage, cool and dark, with a heavily beamed ceiling. A gracefully colonnaded porch opened on a courtyard full of flowers, with trees whose branches were hardly able to carry their burden of luscious fruit.

Our existence was unhurried, unworried. Delightful idleness indeed, especially for my wife, Jody, whose only con delegation of work to our two servants, a daughter.

These two faithfuls did everything and did it combined monthly wage of $6, and had ne "maids' day off" until we forced it on them.

With the abundance of pork chops and roa and filet mignon, venison steak, and fresh fru tables, we had to watch our waistlines. The

Easier than ever to clean and keep clean
—your new CALORIC

"America's Easiest Ranges to Keep Clean" really means something in your home . . . time saved, work saved, hours away from the kitchen. That's why "easy-to-clean features" came first with 7 of every 10 women who told us why they bought a Caloric. Now, Ultramatic Caloric gives you even more easy-clean advantages along with the modern, speedy, trouble-free, completely automatic cooking features you've always wanted in a range.

See dealers under "Caloric" in classified phone books. Caloric Stove Corporation, Widener Building, Philadelphia 7, Pennsylvania.

WHY CALORIC IS SO EASY TO KEEP CLEAN:

Porcelain enamel inside and out—triple-coat acid-resisting white parts ★ Seamless construction eliminates dirt-catching crevices ★ Veri-Clean Broiler, completely removable for washing in sink ★ Porcelain burners easily removable for washing ★ Vents keep cooking vapors from soiling walls

Any Caloric model can be factory-equipped for "Pyrofax" Bottled Gas or other LP-Gases.

TEST YOUR CAR!

THE STARTING TEST

How fast can you start on cold, frosty mornings? If you have trouble, you need Casite. Casite retards congealing of oil, lets the engine turn over and go, no matter how cold the weather. Casite guarantees Quick Starting or Double-Your-Money-Back!

THE IDLING TEST

Notice any engine roughness, jerks, sputters? Chances are, they're caused by sticky valves. Casite gets rid of gum and goo, frees sticky valves and rings, lets the power zoom through. Casite guarantees Better and Smoother Performance or Double-Your-Money-Back!

THE "MOLASSES" TEST

You'll find that finest motor oil is heavy and sticky as molasses when cold. It must warm to 210° before it gets around efficiently. Casite helps this oil get around fast—into all the tight spots—actually speeds the flow of No. 10 oil 24.3% at 50°F., more when the engine is colder. This cuts engine start-up wear, cuts repair bills.

Get Casite from your garage, service station or car-dealer.

theless aimless, wanderings. We had both begun to miss puttering among our prized azaleas, the familiar nooks in our old house, our favorite home-cooked dishes, and I, my comfortable, tobacco-drenched den.

The great idea suddenly dawned on me in Tucson. Driving past Davis Monthan Air Base brought memories flooding back. I suddenly remembered adventuring, desert-ratting Tim Casey, one of my favorite comrades during the war. Tim and his fanciful stories of the desert—prospecting trips, digging for ore, lost cities. During one of these bull sessions, he had told me of a fantastic, isolated, yet very accessible place in the Mexican Sierras, a forgotten little town he intended someday to return to and "do absolutely nothing."

As I recalled from his enthusiastic description—one I found later to be 100 percent correct—it was an ancient mining town, founded in the Sixteenth Century. The mining had petered out, but this semi-ghost town had once been powerful and wealthy, with more than 25,000 souls. Now it counted a bare 3,000. Its once-great mansions were half in ruins, but it was still an architectural gem. And living there, according to Tim, was so pleasant, comfortable, and cheap that anybody could afford it on a small income.

That night I told Jody about it. By the gleam in her eyes, I could see she was making up our minds. What was there to lose but time—and we had an oversupply of that. In our minds, there began to build up the hope and the hunch that this might be IT, the spot we had been searching for.

We decided to get to IT as fast as possible. Early the next morning, we headed due south for Nogales, where the courteous Mexican consul issued us 6-month visitors' permits. We checked through the Mexican customs, hit the excellent highway to Sonora's streamlined capital, Hermosillo, 170 miles south, and Guaymas, 85 miles beyond, famed for its deep-sea fishing. We left Guaymas on a rough, but passable road—since paved—and came to Yaqui River after 80 dusty miles, crossed it on a ferry, and drove through the amazing desert boom town of Ciudad Obregon, central point of the great Yaqui Desert. Parts of this desert, with vast wheat fields, have been transformed into Mexico's breadbasket. Forty-five more miles and we were in Navojoa, jumping-off point for our destination, 35 miles away in the purplish hills. All these towns, on the main highway and railroad, and all with good hotels, we now left behind us.

Slowly we started climbing, drove through the half-in-ruin village of Minas Nuevas where John Hays Hammond mined silver in 1882 and where now the beloved patrona is the well-known Dona Clara Yaeger. For over 30 years, this remarkable American has lived near the now-silent mine, once operated by her husband, in her great and comfortable "United States equipped" casa. Here she brought up and educated her four children, and here she intends to stay, not wanting to trade her life for all the comforts north of the border.

Here's architectural beauty undimmed by four centuries of Six more miles, then we crunched over a dry, sandy river bed and onto the cobblestone streets of a town so utterly different from those we had seen that we felt we had landed in a quaint corner of Old Spain. Here IT was, the small pueblo with the big name: EL REAL DE NUESTRA SENORA DE LA PURISIMA CONCEPCION DE LOS ALAMOS, now just plain Alamos.

Past one handsome plaza, shaded by enormous wild fig trees, all the while escorted by a reception committee of shrieking chamacos (urchins), we jogged toward another plaza and came to a stop in front of an imposing two-story mansion, the Hotel Alamos. A courteous caballero, Don José Enriquez Aguilar, and his comely, English-speaking daughter Rafaelita led us to our room on the second floor. Two mozos (servants) lugged the baggage up, drove the car into the regal patio, and we were left (feeling dirty, tired, and forlorn) in our suite. It contained a double bed, washstand with bowl and pitcher, two chairs, and a chifforobe dimly revealed by a 15-watt lamp. And also, gleaming in a far corner, a pot de chambre. All this was enclosed by 4-foot-thick walls with heavily grilled windows. By careful measurement, the room was 35 feet one way, 20 the other, and top by a 16-foot ceiling.

At the Nation's Call

This country's telephone service is one of its greatest assets in time of emergency.

We have more telephones than all the rest of the world put together. They are connected with one another by a nationwide network, reaching into every corner of the land and speaking in unmistakable tones of the unity and purpose of the American people.

Every telephone is a weapon for our defense. These are not weapons yet to be built. They are here, forty-two million strong. Behind them is a force of telephone men and women equal in size to forty full strength divisions — thoroughly trained, well equipped and eager to do whatever task may be set for them.

America's telephones are busier than ever with the urgent, vital calls of production and defense. The products of America's might are rolling off the assembly lines and the telephone is helping to get the job done.

In everything that concerns the defense of our country, the Bell System can be counted on to do its full part . . . always.

Haunting tunes for a few centavos

Leisurely we investigated Alamos. Walking the streets of this ancient town, which had been forgotten by Father Time and which in turn had somewhat disdainfully returned the favor, was like strolling arm-in-arm with romance and history. On bars of silver laid on this very street from that imposing casa yonder to the Cathedral, a beauteous, young bride had once picked her way to early Mass. Her aged, adoring husband, the fabulous Don José Maria Almada, who had fathered no less than 43 children by two previous wives, could not bear to see her soil her feet in the muddy rain water. So he simply ordered his servants to lay out silver on top of the muck.

Such grandiose gestures came naturally to this forgotten town, once so rich with seemingly inexhaustible mines that it became the seat for a Bishop, had its own mint, and was even once the capital of what is now our own Arizona. It was one of the main stations on the Camino Real (King's Highway) from Mexico City to San Francisco, and it played an important part in the founding of the city at the Golden Gate. It was in 1775 that Capitan Don Bautista de Anza made his memorable overland trek from Sonora, via Tucson, with some 177 members in his party. Forty-nine were from Alamos.

In the José Maria Almada mansion, a large number of silver coins were unearthed in subterranean passages by a poor merchant who had rented it. On numerous occasions in Mexico's turbulent past, wealthy, politically involved families often had to make hasty exits to save their heads. Jewelry was easily concealed on the person, but hard and heavy money had to be left behind and buried.

This is the story, generally believed founded on fact, about the once great Promontorios Mine, which originally belonged t Jesuit Order. When Charle of Spain ordered their expuls 1767, the fathers, it is said, off the best stopes and drift surface openings, hoping tha time might arrive for reposs of their mine. Candlelight

By candlelight the world grows calm and good
A fitting place for peace; and simple food
Is festive, as the tapers' mellow glow
Shines down upon the dearest things I know . . .

The silver shimmer of pale damask's gleam
Tall goblets catching sparkle from each beam
Of flickering flame, the breathless hush of night,
And you across from me in candlelight.

Humbly I bow in thanks at eventide
For things like these; Who could ask more beside Food, shelter, hearth,—the weary day's release
From petty things to you and home, and peace?

Radiant Sunny Warmth

FROM A HEATING SYSTEM

Completely Concealed

Typical installation of floor coils in B & G Hydro-Flo Radiant Panel Heating System.

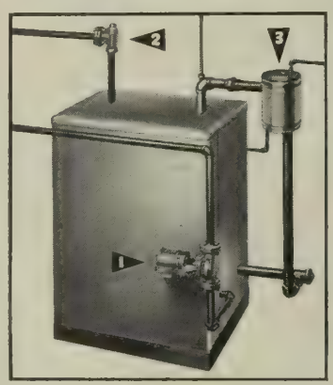
B & G Hydro-Flo* Heating

with Radiant Panels

It's little less than magic—this utterly modern way to heat your home!

There's no visible means of heating, yet a B & G Hydro-Flo Radiant Panel System blankets your home with cheerful warmth from fall to spring. Pipe coils in the floor or ceiling emit a constant flow of radiant heat as soothing as sunshine. The heat supply is automatically matched to the weather—so exactly that your home is always at the same comfortable temperature—never too hot, never too cold.

You'll be delighted, too, with the decorative freedom permitted by this completely concealed heating system . . . and with its greater cleanliness.



All the hot water you can use!

And here's the plus value of B & G Hydro-Flo Heating . . . an all-year supply of hot water, heated by the same boiler that heats the house. Hot water when you want it—all you want—for automatic washers, for baths and showers.

All on least amount of fuel

The precise control of heat which distinguishes a B & G Hydro-Flo System means not only greater comfort but smaller fuel consumption. The combined cost for heating both the house and domestic water is unbelievably small for this double duty.

B & G Hydro-Flo equipment can be installed on any hot water heating boiler.

1. B & G Booster. An electrically operated, thermostatically controlled pump which circulates hot water through the pipe coils.
2. B & G Flo-Control Valve. Helps keep home temperature at the comfort level and permits year 'round operation of the Water Heater.
3. B & G Water Heater. Provides an abundance of low-cost hot water for kitchen, laundry and bath . . . all around the clock and calendar.

What should you do about allowances?

Spending money—it's great stuff. But how much of it does a fellow need? Should he earn it or should you give it outright?

...es what other parents and their boys ...d girls—in grade, junior high, and senior ...h schools—had to say about this puzzle ...e a whole town talked it over. It ...y solve youngster's money troubles

By Jeannette Eyerly

Should your boy or girl have an allowance? When shall it start? Shall it be monthly or weekly? How much shall it be? Should your child "work" for his allowance, or shall it be given without regard to chores done around the house? Should you interfere if you feel that your child is spending his allowance foolishly?

These and other similar questions are asked by intelligent parents everywhere, for they realize that, in large measure, their children's adult happiness will depend on their ability to handle money—both saving and spending—successfully.

Unfortunately, however, just realizing that the "allowance problem" is an important one, doesn't necessarily help you to solve it.

Sometimes your thinking is unconsciously warped by your own childhood experiences. One father, a self-made man, says "I didn't have any allowance when I was a kid. My boy is going to have to get out and work for his money." Yet another man, equally poor as a child, denies [Turn to next page

What about allowances?

Begins on prece

himself many adult pleasures in order to give his children lavish allowances because "I don't want them to skimp and do without, the way I did when I was a child."

However, for every parent who lets his emotions influence his judgment, there will be dozens of others who resolve to tackle the allowance problem squarely and intelligently, only to discover that there is no one right way to handle it—that it rests with each family.

For example, the Duncan boys —aged 11, 14, and 16—have earned money ever since they were old enough to rake leaves or push the lawn mower. They baby-sit with the neighbor's children, carry papers or help on a paper route, and do odd jobs. They'd think it "sissy" to have an allowance. They are, however, given a certain sum each week to pay for carfare, school lunches, supplies, and, now that they are older, some articles of clothing. Candy bars, movies, comics, and other "junk," they pay for from money they earn themselves. Gifts to members of the family are also paid for from money they earn—and no gifts are more highly valued by any parents.

The two Harris girls, 10 and 12, are given 60 cents and a dollar, respectively, each week. They do no "work" for this money. Of their own free will, or "for love" as the youngest says, they make their beds every morning, set the table, and wash or dry the dishes at least once a day. They are given the opportunity to earn extra money by working around the house or yard.

The reverse of this picture is seen in the family with four youngsters, 5, 12, 13, and 16. The mother of this brood says, "Johnny, who is 5, receives 5 pennies a week. The 12- and 13-year-old girls each get 1 dollar a week. This is to cover movies, bus fare, afterschool ice cream, and small purchases. Our other son, when he reached 16, was raised from 2 dollars a week—which he got from the time he was 14—to 3 dollars a week, because he's now at the age where he does a little 'sparking.' This 3 dollars also has to cover all of his bus fares, movies, school games, and the like.

"All three of the older children are expected to do certain chores each week for this allowance. The girls wash their socks and underwear, and change the sheets on their beds. Chris takes care of the outside of the house—yard work, driveway, garage cleaning. In winter he takes care of the furnace."

The fact that all three of these systems are completely different, yet all function smoothly is of little help if you are coming face to face with the allowance problem for the first time.

That allowances are a vital subject was demonstrated recently in Des Moines, Iowa, by Paul Durrie, director of that city's Adult Education Program. Seeking an interesting topic for the annual Family Life Conference, he asked P.T.A. groups in all of the grade, junior, and senior high schools to case histories of problems plexed them.

Typical was the follow history: "Tom is 8 and go elementary school. He has weekly allowance which or spends as he pleases. their children about its best use.

Opinion was evenly divided on whether money should be given for improvement in school and extra-curricular activities. And fathers were more inclined to favor such recognition than mothers!

More than a third of all parents with grade-school children felt that money should be left home when they were not planning to use it. One parent replied, "If they carry it and lose it, they learn its value." Less than a third thought that stealing resulted from the existence of unequal allowances. One parent confidently wrote "children can understand if you can't give them a big allowance. Only a child who has not been properly trained would steal because he had a smaller allowance than the boy next door."

Even more fascinating than the percentage figures, however, was the between-the-lines scribbling on many of the folders. One woman was so full of her subject that she covered two pieces of writing paper with her comments!

"A child should not be paid to do his schoolwork," one father wrote. "Kindness and encouragement help more than money, although the child may be given something extra as an award."

Another penciled in, "Money given for schoolwork is a bribe. If a child has enough talent to get an A, he will get it without being paid."

A questionnaire from one of the poorer districts bore this notation: "Real happiness proceeds from appreciating what you have. Envy and desire for more will raise its head regardless of the amount of material wealth."

More than a third of all parents felt that "grade children should do things without being paid." As one put it, "A child should work because it is his home also."

It was not, however, until a panel discussion was held at the junior and senior high schools in Des Moines that the boys and girls on the receiving end of the allowance had their "say."

Three students and three parents were on each panel. A 17-year-old girl chosen to represent her senior classmates agreed that "the primary purpose of an allowance is to teach the child how to use money."

Replying to a father's question about when the allowance should start and how long it should continue, a boy of 14 said, "It's usually determined by the practice in the neighborhood and payment of the allowance may begin as early as 5 years of age and continue until a person has his own income."

Students at one junior high defined "allowance" as "the child's part of the family income." Their young spokesman explained it this way, "Allowances should not be paid for household chores. After all, my dad isn't 'paid' to earn the living, and my mother isn't 'paid' for taking care of all of us. Therefore, my sisters and I don't expect to be paid for what we do. Our day would ordinarily start at 5:30—after all, there was always an afternoon siesta to make up for lost sleep—when we would stroll to the mercado municipal (public market), stopping at El Chino's for some coffee and his special hot kahlas (cakes) for us norte americanos. By the flickering lights of kerosene lanterns, we and all other Alamos householders would do our marketing. We soon learned that a red bandera (flag) hung over a meat stall denoted bull meat, and that Rafael, our vegetable amigo, kept his freshest wares not on his stand, but in a back room. We found the market clean and all meat rigidly inspected.

A source of never-ceasing wonder was the frugality of the buying and the small quantities carefully weighed or measured out. It was not uncommon to see shoppers purchase 2 pennies' worth of soupbones, ground coffee, lard, or kerosene. And many is the time that I saw highly prized soap powders dispensed by the tablespoonful!

After our return and morning coffee, freshly roasted and ground, we would take our morning showers, as soon as the Alamos water supply was turned on. After our bath, Josefa would fill every available container with water, since at 10:30 the valves would be turned off. The same system applied to the municipal electric works. At 6 p.m. the new Diesels, recently installed as a Federal Electrification Project, would start roaring. Until midnight Alamos would have electric current—and the O'Ryans an occasional waffle feast. At 12:00 the lights would blink twice, the roar would stop, and Alamos would go into a deeper sleep, awaken slowly, start next day in low gear, and never increase this serene pace.

At first, the tranquillity of this "City of the Poplars" actually came as a shock to our United States nerves. After we got in step, we discovered how soothing the pace, how salubrious the climate, how clean this little town actually was. And above all, how remarkable its inhabitants; helpful, gentle, unsophisticated, completely tourist unconscious. Wherever we went, we were really welcome. Generally poor by our standards, they always insisted on giving something—homemade sausage, flowers, dulces (sweets), fruits, delicious chicharrones (fried pork scraps), which took the place of bacon.

Alamos, with its Spanish-Moorish architecture and the soft patina of the ages, certainly cast its spell on us. It did the same to William Levant Alcorn, a jolly but practical and prosperous Pennsylvania dairy farmer, who was jeeping through Sonora. Having to lay over in Navojoa for a day, he thought he might as well kill time by a short side trip to Alamos. Naturally he looked us up, Americans being a rare commodity there. He stayed overnight, then another night—the spell was doing its job.

Levant ended up by staying two months! During his sojourn, we jeeped all over the place. We knocked on doors, and I explained that the senor was interested in antiguedades (antiques). And antiguedades we uncovered; lamps, statuettes, pitchers, glassware, paintings, silver, old jewelry and coins, Ming vases holding dusty, artificial flowers, and on back porches, Sheraton tables or Louis Quinze chairs from which we had to chase indignant hens.

Levant first acquired a gem of a casita (small house) under a huge oak by the Alamos creek, in which the natives still pan gold when times get really tough. For this piece of real estate, he paid about $125. Now completely under the spell of Alamos, he put in a bid on a casa facing the Plaza—and got it. For a brief description of this new property, let it be said that, at the time of purchase, it housed 50 cavalrymen. Considering the fact that Senor Alcorn had a farm back home to look after and was not thinking of retiring and becoming a Grandee, this Plaza palace began to look like a white elephant, until I suggested he transform it into a tourist home. And so he did, modernizing it completely with American plumbing, stoves, refrigerators, and such. And so now the less adventurous or more hurried visitor can find pleasant asylum in Los Portales, Calle Juarez No. 6, at rates I am dead certain will hardly pay the interest on the investment.

"Why, mi amigo, did you ever leave the States where you earned so much?" I queried. "Por qué, senor? Qué question! Por amor, por una mujer naturalmente." ("Why, senor. What a question! For love, for a woman, of course") he replied.

Then there was the twice-weekly visit to the magnificent estate and orchards of Don Anselmo Macias, ex-governor of Sonora and General de Division (highest military rank in Mexico). Don Anselmo was called El Gobernador de las Casas (the Governor of the Houses) because he owned so many of them. Born very poor in Alamos, he helped support his family by peddling chicharrones to the rich and mighty in their great houses. He swore that one day he too would own a big casa. Today he has mansions all over Mexico.

My wife would lose her head completely in the Governor's rose gardens. Here Juan Madriles, the governor's foreman, would load the back seat of the car down with literally dozens upon dozens of exquisite roses and throw in a big basket of citrus fruits—all for the price of two dozen oranges back home.

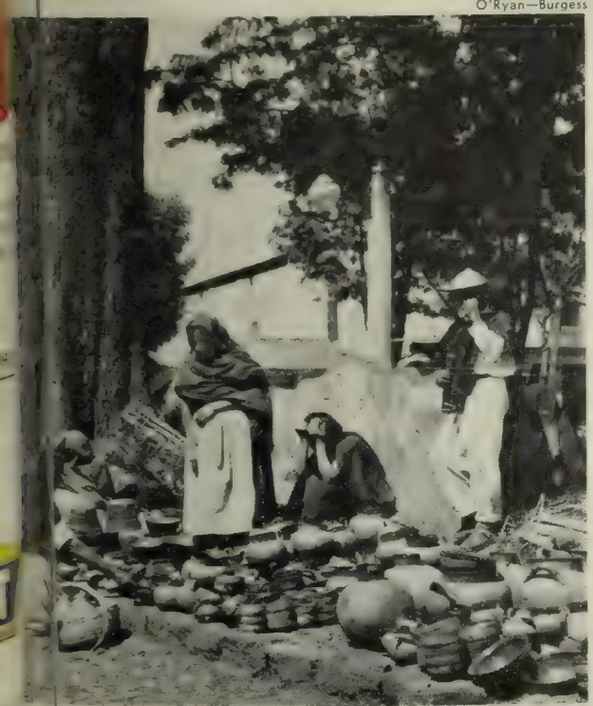
Occasionally we made a shopping trip to Navojoa in one of the station wagons which maintain twice-daily service between that town and Alamos, also bringing in the mail. Here such out-of-the-ordinary items, not obtainable in Alamos, as imported Gorgonzola, caviar, Canadian bacon, American hams, and pancake flour, or the latest antics of Li'l Abner and Dick Tracy, could be found. From Navojoa one can fly to the border in a few hours, or take an overnight train for Arizona.

In addition to being the center of a productive dry-farming area, Alamos boasted a very lively leather-goods industry with its own tanneries. Thousands upon thousands of pairs of so-called corriente (rough or work) shoes were manufactured here.

And finally there was the Hernandez printing shop. Here in the isolation of the Sierra de Alamos was a shop doing extremely fine printing, with orders from all over Sonora and neighboring states. The driving force behind the concern was our friend Joaquin Hernandez. Every time you see or buy a Mexican Jumping Bean, there's a good chance that it was exported by this same Joaquin.

This smart caballero, the new type of Mexican whose motto no longer is manana but ahora (now), also started with little capital but plenty of cabeza (head). Now he is the acknowledged czar of the fur, hide, and frijoles brincadores (jumping beans) business.

The jumping bean occurs only near a few springs in the Sierra de Alamos—nowhere else in the entire world. Joaquin wrote me: "One afternoon of July, 1921, came to my father's shop an American named Dunlap, to whom I proposed a small lot of jumping beans, which he bought, paying me a dollar for 1,000 beans. This sale caused me a great enthusiasm, and I immediately started to offer beans to the U.S.A."



Now, 30 years later, Joaquin Hernandez exports some 10 million of these jumpers and lives in a casa in Navojoa that would put many a Hollywood estate to shame.

Silver mining around Alamos has come to a standstill because the ore is low grade, while costs and taxes are high. There's still some gold mining on a small scale, and we often had natives at our door offering small quantities of gold at prices $10 below our United States standard. As a matter of fact, our door and patio were never quite free from peddlers, mostly shy children, who would offer a couple of eggs, a chicken, or baskets of exquisite embroideries for sale at shamefully low prices. The pay-off came one afternoon when Jody had just purchased 5 pollos (chickens), with Josefa's assistance. When my trusting wife let them loose in the back patio, they immediately sailed over the 20-foot walls into the streets. Not 5 minutes later an innocent-looking senorita was seen catching one of them; the same senorita who had just sold Jody the chickens. Quite unabashed, she again entered the patio and offered the same hen for sale—at a slightly higher price this time.

Among the many things we did not get around to doing, was to fish in the Gulf of California, 40

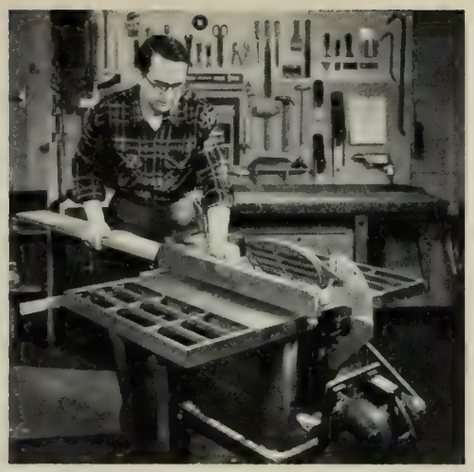
How to expand your home worksh

It pays to have a master plan to guide your shop growth

By Bob Jones and Hi Sibley

One of the greatest thrills that can come to a home handyman lies in watching a workshop develop through the years. Sound, careful planning is all-important. Start making your master plan as soon as you become familiar with the basic hand tools.



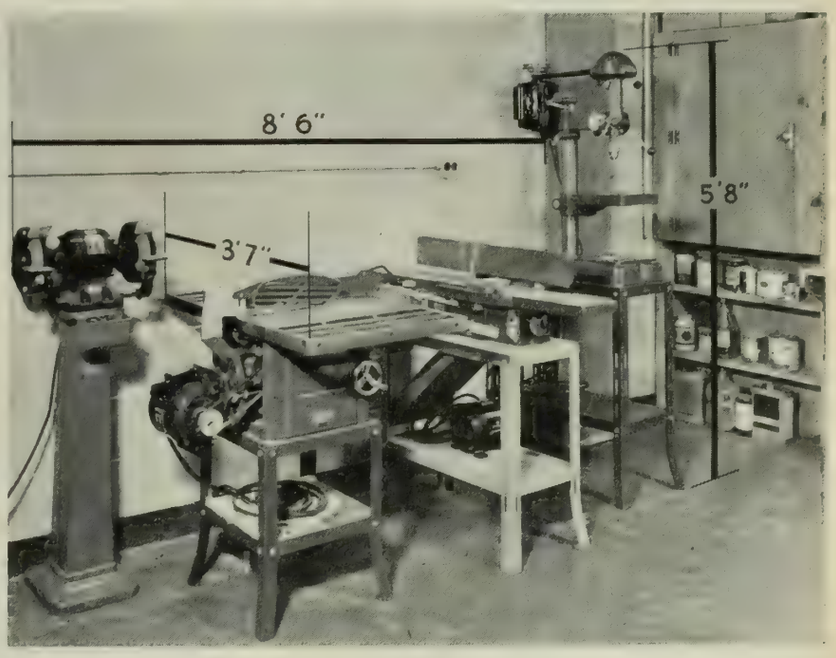
You'll modify your plan, of course, as your shop and your interests develop. Make sure each change is for the better. If you don't, you may find yourself in the sad position of the man with a large investment in tools—who spends his leisure time playing cribbage.

Your plan should be comprehensive enough to help you avoid two pitfalls:

First, it should tell you where you will put major benches and cabinets, storage racks and tool hangers, shelves and power tools, so each unit may be used efficiently without interfering with another. [See page 16

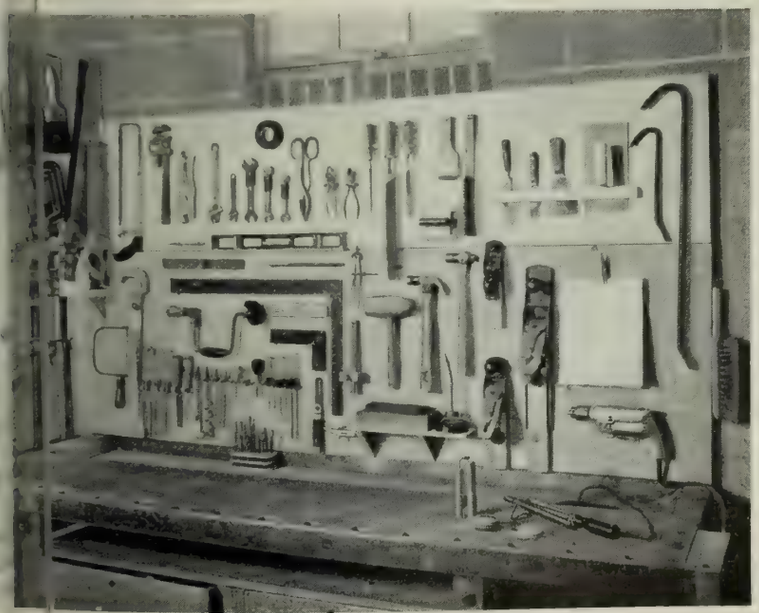
Grinder. Your grinder, mounted on stand or bench, requires less than two feet of clear space for most operations. Special attachments will speed sharpening, increase accuracy. You can use wire brushes, fabric wheels for buffing operations

Circular saw. Assign a central position in your shop to a circular saw. You need all the clear space you can get on all sides, depending on the length of lumber you cut. Diagonal positioning, as here, increases space available for ripping



Drill press. Versatile drill press will function efficiently in a corner, so long as you leave clear space in one direction for a long board. As you position your drill press, don't forget the many other jobs you may do with extra attachments

Photographs: Stanley



Jointer. Your jointer (wood-turning lathe, too) can be positioned permanently against a wall. But jointer needs clear space at each end equal to the greatest length of lumber to be smoothed. Both circular saw and jointer are easier to use and store if made portable with locking casters

Here are the power tools you'll want first

Basic power tools. Here, in order of usefulness in the average home shop, are basic power tools. Grinder, left, keeps cutting tools sharp. Among big power tools, circular saw is usually most wanted. If you're remodeling or building furniture, you'll want a jointer next for truing edges. But if you're doing many small handyman jobs, you will want the drill press before the jointer an' tools that will pay their way

USE THIS assortment of hand tools as a guide in expanding your own collection. All of these see frequent use in day-to-day handyman jobs; buy them as you need them. (For a selection of basic hand tools, see the February, Better Homes & Gardens, page 63.)

Lower panel, left to right: Coping saw, keyhole saw. Chisels, expansion bit, auger bits, awl, screwdrivers. Drill bits, center punch, countersink bit, screwdriver bit, nail set. Wood rasp, star drill, framing square, brace, folding rule, try square, T-bevel, jackknife. Scriber, marking gauge, mallet, claw hammer, ball-peen hammer, whetstone, oilcan. Block plane, smoothing plane, jack plane, electric drill, brush, alcohol torch, soldering iron.

How to expand your home workshop

Second, it should help you avoid costly duplication of purpose in your selection of tools and other equipment.

To help you plan your workshop, Better Homes & Gardens has developed the model workshop pictured on page 158, one that would thrill any home handyman who has advanced past the 10-thumb stage.

With such a shop, you can handle a wide range of handyman jobs, from repairing a brooch clasp to building handsome furniture. True, it may take you years to build up such a shop. The cost may have to be spread over many a birthday and Father's Day and Christmas. But no matter how long it is in arriving, your shop should go according to plan.

Only you can decide the direction of growth. While most handymen prefer woodworking, perhaps metalworking appeals to you. In that case, your basic power tools would be a metal-turning lathe, a metal-cutting band saw, perhaps a small forge.

The heart of any shop is a solid workbench, equipped with vises. (See "How to Plan a Home Workshop," February, 1951, Better Homes & Gardens, page 63.)

Beyond the basic bench, you'll find a need for constantly expanding your storage space. Each new hand tool must be stored someplace. With power tools, you will be adding accessories to increase their versatility. You'll have to find places to put your accumulations of hardware and lumber and paint.

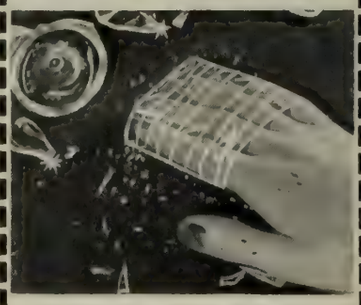
That means adding shelves and cabinets as you go—and your first problem is assigning space for such storage units, to be built as the need arises. A full wall of storage units in your shop will not be too much.

Then comes the question of what power tools to buy first, and where to put them. The photographs show one approach to the problem. But the final answer on tool selection must be determined by your interests. If you are developing a shop strictly as a spare-time hobby center, and want to turn out small projects in a hurry, you might well decide to put a scroll saw ahead of all the power tools pictured on your list.

With the basic power tools pictured—grinder, circular saw, drill press, and jointer—you can speed a great variety of handyman projects. Consider their space needs as you plan your shop. The grinder is first on the list because it keeps your cutting tools—chisels, planes, and bits—in perfect working order. Then, among major power tools, the circular saw is most useful. In addition to ripping and crosscutting, you can miter and dado, plough and groove, shape and mold, sand and smooth, cut metals and grind tools with a circular saw plus the right accessories.

The jointer is next on the list because the job it does—true edges and surfaces perfectly—can be duplicated only by hand-planing and sanding. It's not a versatile tool, but you can use it to make cupped boards usable, cut moldings, tapers, and bevels, to cut tongues and tenons for mortise-and-tenon joints. A jointer combined with a drill press enables you to duplicate the precise mortise-and-tenon joints that distinguish commercial woodworking. With a jointer, you could use a portable electric plane to good advantage.

Should your interests run to the multitude of small handyman jobs—repairing as well as building—you probably want that jack-of-all-trades, the drill press, before you get a jointer. In addition to drilling, attachments let it do jobs like mortising tenons, shaping, sanding, routing, carving, mixing, grinding, polishing, cleaning, buffing. But don't expect to do much work in the line of end drilling into long pieces. A small floor-model drill press will handle most jobs. But for normal shop work, the bench model serves nicely.



If your shop space is limited, perhaps one of the multipurpose power tools will fill your needs. (See "Give Yourself a Power Shop," December, 1950 Better Homes & Gardens, page 66.)

Beyond these basic power tools you'll be considering other tools as you begin to specialize. A bandsaw, for example, will let you cut curves in heavy stock. It should be set up in a clear floor area, with enough room for large pieces to be pushed through the blade. For lighter curved cutting, you might use a scroll saw on the corner of the counter.

If your interest runs to furniture-making period furniture, you'll

The discomfort problem
During "those uncomfortable days" of the month, do you wish you could get rid of pins, belts and external pads? Then wear internal Tampax instead, with the assurance there will be no chafing, binding or bunching, none whatever!

The meeting-your-public problem
You may trust Tampax to cause no odor. Also there's no fear of ridges or edge-lines under dress or skirt.

The disposal problem
Made of pure surgical cotton, Tampax comes in slender one-time applicators. It's so compact that a full month's average supply goes into purse. Naturally, disposal is no problem.

The tub-and-shower problem
Tampax is quickly and easily changed and you can't even feel it when in place. No need to remove the Tampax during the daily bath.

The economy problem
Buy Tampax at drug or notion counter in 3 absorbency-sizes: Regular, Super, Junior. Economy box lasts 4 months (average). Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

os, by instinct or from experience, that his mother or th will react most unfavorably to his outburst, and gather choke down his feelings than face their anger. The youngster who is openly aggressive may be just as rned over his parents' reaction, and anxious to avoid at ll costs, but his feelings overwhelm him, and he can- ntrol them. Afterward, he feels guilty and ashamed matter how brazenly he has acted. His guilt makes u eel more frustrated and unhappy, thus more ag- es e and more fearful of parental recrimination. The d cle can't help but repeat itself, again and again, le he's lucky enough to have parents who don't con- m him and his behavior, because they understand that gr siveness is normal and natural. Actually, aggres- fe ss is more than normal—it's necessary. The boy or rl ho is able to express his real feelings openly and ndly is starting early in life to be an independent, lf-liant person who can stand on his own two feet and ght his own battles. It is critically important for kids to ar now to declare their rights, how to attack problems ua ly and courageously, how to approach other people tha t fear. If these lessons aren't learned during the ar of childhood and adolescence, they may well never le ned at all. All of us know adults who are so passive d rvile that everybody walks all over them. It's a safe es that most of them fell into their dismal pattern as un sters, when their normal and natural aggressive- ss as squelched.

s portant to make clear here what is meant by the rd normal. If the boy next door is always fighting with ur ids and cannot play peacefully for 10 minutes at a ti s that to be considered normal aggressiveness? If e d your youngsters is constantly battling with his sister br her, or with you, is that normal? Definitely not. The mo y aggressive boy or girl is one who is occasionally sti and unfriendly. Most of the time he seems happy d sisfied and gets along pretty well with you and with ur oungsters.

On the other hand, a child who shows an unbroken tre of excessive hostility, can certainly be said to be no ally aggressive. There's a world of difference be- tw n normal and abnormal aggressiveness, and parents sh ld make sure they know which kind their youngster de onstrating before they attempt to deal with it. As u'll see in the following paragraphs, each needs to be ha d in a different way.

First, how to handle normal aggressiveness? Let's discuss the case of 7-year-old Greg and the 5½-year-old boy who lives next door. There are no kids closer to Greg's age on the block, so he plays a lot with the younger boy. Usually, they get on pretty well, but every so often Greg hauls off and hits the other boy, or yanks away one of his toys, or teases him.

Should Greg's mother keep hands off, on the grounds that her boy doesn't behave this way often? Certainly not. Her Greg shouldn't get the idea that it's perfectly all right to hit or hurt his playmate. He needs to learn how to get on amicably with other people, and how to respect their rights and feelings. At the same time, he needs to know that it's natural for him to feel mad at other people once in a while, that everybody feels that way sometimes.

How might Greg's mother put these feelings across? If she catches him about to hurt the other boy, she should try to prevent the attack. She shouldn't scold him or shout at him, or do anything to make him feel frightened or guilty. Quietly and casually, she should attempt to divert his attention. Or say: "You mustn't do that; that's not friendly." Or say, "I know you feel pretty mad right now, but it isn't good to hit or hurt people. It's better if you talk about how you feel than if you fight."

Unfortunately, Greg's mother said none of these things. She scolded and punished the boy for his aggressive behavior. She demanded that he apologize, and dragged him over to the other boy's house to do so. And often she hit him (or had her husband do so) so that he'd know how it felt to be deliberately hurt. Many parents don't realize that striking or slapping an aggressive child is futile, and very dangerous. All it does is to convince the boy or girl that this is a cruel world, and that big, strong people are out to hurt him. The result usually is that he becomes much more hostile and belligerent.

Unhappily, Greg's parents a finding that out.

If Greg's outbursts hac handled in a calm and f way, there would graduall been fewer and fewer of th course, no child can learn week—or one month—how trol his impulses and confi self to socially acceptable b But gradually he will lear gets understanding and en ment from the adults arou his parents, too. And they didn't do much about it. Once in a while, they gave him a sharp talking to, but usually they told each other that he was just showing healthy, boyish energy and they oughtn't to hem him in. They were sure he would soon quiet down.

But Harold didn't. Excessively aggressive youngsters never do quiet down of their own accord. Actually, a boy like Harold wants to be made to stop what he is doing. He knows deep down that his behavior is wrong. He feels guilty, and that only drives him to further misconduct. Too often, his explosions become more and more violent, as Harold's did. One day he deliberately pushed a little girl down a flight of stone steps. The girl's legs were fractured, and she lay in a hospital for three months.

Harold's parents were deeply disturbed, of course. They were even more disturbed when they realized that they had been largely responsible for Harold's attack. Had they taken action when the boy's aggressiveness first showed itself, they might have stopped it from reaching such extremes as violence and injury.

When chronic aggressiveness isn't checked in its early stages, it all too frequently gets totally out of hand and ends in a violent explosion. Authorities on young criminals have found that nearly all had long been hostile and aggressive in their relations with their parents and other youngsters. Hardly any of the parents, however, had been seriously concerned by their child's behavior or had sought help in handling him.

Sometimes, parents fail to check aggressiveness because they don't recognize it. Youngsters often express anger in indirect ways. They may, for instance, take out their hostility against inanimate objects. Parents may assume, mistakenly, that they break or destroy things because they are careless or clumsy. Thirteen-year-old Lynn's parents assumed that. She was always breaking dishes and tearing her clothes, and her sister's. At s she broke glasses in the lunch spilled ink over her desk and scratched and marred her with a nail file or pen point books and papers were alway and mutilated and could rar re-used after she finished them. There is little hope of g such a youngster to be more ly and cooperative, until it i ognized that her behavior liberate and aggressive.

MY BOOK HOUSE

It's made their whole house look new!

"I couldn't help overhearing, when Peggy and Ellen passed by. It's true, too, what Peggy said. Since we got our new Ruberoid Tite-On Roof, our house is one of the most attractive in the neighborhood.

"Bill says we were a fire hazard before, with the old dried-out shingles. And besides, in the hurricane last fall some of our old shingles blew away. He says this roof will outlast the house.

"It's comforting to know that flying sparks or embers can't ignite your roof . . . and it's weather-tight against anything that comes along.

"I thought it was going to be a pretty messy job . . . but the men put the Tite-On shingles right on over our old roof. So we've got all that extra insulation.

"Bill says that the Ruberoid Co. has done more than any other company to prolong the service of old buildings.

"It's so easy and so economical to have a long-lasting roof . . . why not do what we did, and fill out the coupon below. This will bring you literature, and the offer of a full estimate on the cost of real roof security, and beauty for your house."

Guest bed becomes couch when slid under shelves at left. Enclosed space behind pillows is for those pillows at night. Drop-down shelf is a night stand.

Pivoting bed unit was made with two plywood panels, one fixed to floor, the other hinged at upper right corner. Waxed hardwood runners on both panels (see sketch below) make pivoting job smoother

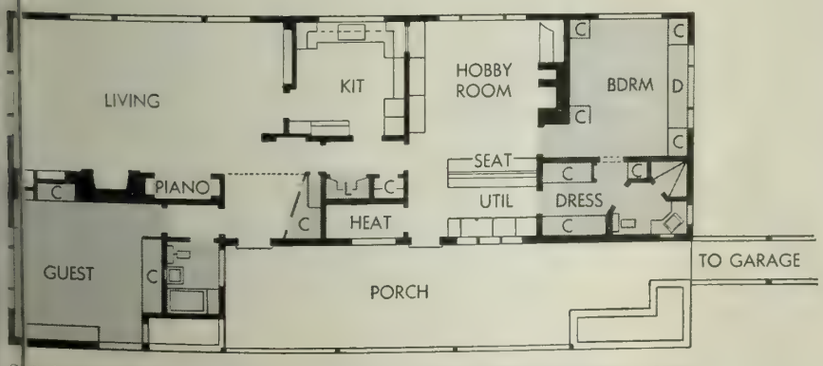
At one end of bank of drawers is special storage space: slanting shelves for everyday shoes, boxes for sandals and "occasion" shoes. Coiled spring prevents belts hanging on hooks from flying out and keeping the door from closing. Lower closet is for blouses and other short hanging garments that get mussed in a drawer. Labels on boxes are type used on nailbins in hardware stores



Bank of drawers supplants all furniture in bedroom except bed. Drawers are graduated, many compartmented for specific items. One is divided with fishing fly boxes for earrings, with plastic egg containers for bracelets, pins, needles, and extra buttons

Bed is flanked by shelves for much-needed bedside fixtures. Drawer below the clock (background) holds three-way reading pillows. The Boileaus read in bed often, can thus dispose of reading pillows without getting up. Switches beside bed control separate reading lights

All clothes not stored in bedroom are kept in dressing room. Shelves here were engineered to Mr. Boileau's shoes. Hooks on sides are for spare shoelaces, a shoe hook, a clothesbrush. Tie rack is tiered for ease in selection of ties

Shaded areas of floor plan show where the built-ins you see here and on pages 180 and 181 are located. For unshaded areas, see next month's issue

By Helen Denson

Q. What are the types of glassware?

A. There are two types of glassware—hand-blow hand-pressed. Handmade American glass is still m craftsmen who work by sight and feel, much as a fr artist does. Since the days of antiquity, glassmake used silica sand as their basic ingredient and fused i white-hot heat with lime, lead, and alkalies. The tions of these ingredients vary with secret chemical f used by each glasshouse.

Q. What is meant by hand-blown stemware?

A. Goblets, like the one at right, sherbets, beverage glasses, bowls, and decorative figures are literally "blown." They are transparent, lustrous, free from distortions. Hand-blown stemware is usually more expensive than hand-pressed glassware.

Q. Is all hand-blown stemware flawless?

A. No, there is no such thing as a flawless handmade glass. In fact the minor flaws in glassware such as mold marks, tiny bubbles, seeds, and ripples prove it is handmade.

Q. What is hand-pressed glass

A. This is glass shaped in a tailed metal mold. Plates, hea and larger pieces, as well as sc heavier stemware, are mad fashion.

Q. How is glass decorated?

A. It can be cut, etched, or

A. This is the oldest method of decorating glassware and is still popular. Cutting is done by pressing glass against a revolving wheel. The artisan memorizes the pattern and cuts freehand, with no marks on the glass to guide him.

ire of glassware

Q. W hat is etched glass?

A. The design is made by dipping glass into an acid bath which eats into it, except where the surface has been protected by a wax coating, to create the pattern. The indentations are less deep, and the patterns more ornate. It is usually less expensive than cut glass.

Q. Is undecorated glass always less expensive?

A. No, the amount of pattern is not always an indication of price or quality. Some of the most beautiful and expensive glassware is perfectly plain. Remember that a great abundance of pattern can be used to hide imperfections in glass.

These pieces are available in wide choice of patterns.

Q. Is it important that the glassware you buy be available in "open stock" rather than in sets?

A. Yes, "open stock" is your assurance of getting replacements and additions to your glassware in any quantity over a ng period of time.

Q. How can the quality of glass be tested?

A. One of the time-honored tests for judging a crystal goblet is to ring the bowl lightly with your finger tips as shown in picture. It should have a clear, musical tone. Be sure the goblet is standing on something or is held by the stem. If your fingers are touching the bowl, it will not ring.

Q. Does all good glass ring?

A. No, it is a mistaken idea to think that all good glass must ri like a bell. Good-quality hand-cast or pressed glass, wh ch includes items such as plates, bowls, etc., will not ring w n you tap it, although the brilliance and perfection are st there. Instead, the glass will give a muffled sound. The li it contains to add strength and toughness keeps it from m king a ringing sound.

How to buy and take care of glass

Q. How should you choose a pattern?

A. Basically, your way of life and your other tab sories such as dishes and silver should determine yo of glass pattern.

Modern interiors. If you lean t temporary vogue for chaste lines, you will probably pr blown tumblers with pillarli Some have no decoration at beauty, like that of a well-cut in their proportions and grac Form, brilliance, and clarit prime considerations. Several have been made in lovely sha oak leaves, ivy bowknots, or Greek key for patterns. They fective foils for dishes which same motif.

Old-fashioned "homespun" interiors. If there is a solid Early American feeling about your home, try the "thumbprint" or lace pattern in pressed glass which goes so well with hooked rugs, pine, and maple. Use milk white pressed glass. There is also hand-cut crystal in a colonial pattern inspired by the pre-Revolutionary era. One pattern reproduces the puff-ball designs of candlewick spreads. Another was inspired by the turnings on a spool bed.

Eighteenth Century rooms for more formal patterns. T signs which tie in with Georgian, or Regency mot find etched glassware wit spired flower patterns.

When you are in doubt as to which style or pattern to choose, remember that in glass, as in life, usually the most beautiful, the most tasteful, is that which is most simple.

Q. How do you care for glass?

A. If you keep these points in mind, your glass you faithfully for years and give sparkle, charm to your home each time it is used:

1. When you wash glass of any kind, place or dish towel in your pan and on the drainl glass in at a time. This will prevent chippe with mild soapsuds and rinse thoroughly i Bluing or a few drops of ammonia in the rins luster. When washing and drying, hold ste bowl to avoid strain. Allow tumblers which have held iced drinks to warm up before dipping them into hot water.

2. If you subject glassware to sudden sharp changes of temperature, you may place too much strain upon it, even though American handmade glassware is carefully tempered and the most shock-resistant in the world. For this reason, set a silver spoon in a glass before pouring in a hot liquid. Place ice cubes carefully in a glass instead of dropping them.

3. Clean etched or cut glass with a soft brush. If your glass is decorated with a gold band, omit the ammonia or the bluing. Do not use a strong soap. If by accident one glass is inserted in another, don't try to force them apart. Fill the inner one with cold water and dip the outer in hot. They will come apart without strain.

4. Never stack glassware. Handle and store it so edges do not bump together. This causes them to nick. As a further precaution, store glasses with their rim sides up.

5. If your glassware does get a nick, use a piece of 00 emery paper wrapped around the handle of a spoon. Rub it back and forth across the nick until it is smooth. You can get rid of the "frosted" appearance which results if you put polishing rouge on a bit of leather and repeat the rubbing process.

MOBILIZE FOR MERCY
1951 RED CROSS FUND

In the face of the critical international situation, the American Red Cross has accepted the responsibility for:

1. Procuring and providing blood for military and civil defense requirements.
2. Training 20 million persons in first aid, including treatment of atom-bomb attack injuries.
3. Training 250,000 nurses' aides and hundreds of thousands of housewives in home nursing.
4. Developing plans to assist civil defense authorities in the provision of food, clothing, and shelter during an emergency period.
5. Expansion of Red Cross services to the armed forces to meet the needs of a greatly expanded fighting force asked for by President Truman.

This year the American Red Cross is asking everyone to give, and give generously, to help them "mobilize for mercy."

New chests with many uses

Shirts stacked on shelves are always within reach, even if you want one on the bottom

By Elizabeth Shenley

Here are two new chests and a cupboard in natural cherry that are as good looking as they are practical for any room in your house These pieces are a wonderful solution if you move often—or if you can afford to buy only a few pieces of quality furniture. Gentle curves lend softness to the Modern designs. And the polished brass pulls backed by gun-metal plates accent the warm beauty of the cherry. Darker wood on drawer and door fronts gives a smart, two-tone effect. Many of the pieces are designed to lead a double life. Some can be used separately or combined to make another piece. For instance, the four-drawer chest at left, topped with a two-shelf cupboard, makes one piece to hold shirts, socks, and ties in bedroom.

You can REMODEL and BUILD inexpensively with Johns-Manville Decorative Panels and Plank!

The "Home Idea Book" tells how you can install pre-decorated J-M Panels and Wall Plank over cracked ceilings and walls, or build extra rooms at low cost. Instructions on request (see coupon).

Without fuss, the room is quickly ready for use—all new, stunningly beautiful! J-M Panels and Plank come in soft, pastel colors. Grooved-edge Lightning Joints conceal all nailing or stapling.

Our new "HOME IDEA BOOK" tells how...

This fascinating, 64-page "Home Idea Book" in full color portrays "a generation of ideas for better living."

It covers interior remodeling with a wealth of easy-to-follow suggestions—ideas for "doing over" unattractive ceilings and walls . . . ideas for kitchens and bathrooms . . . ideas for extra rooms in attics and basements. It tells how you can build, insulate, and decorate, all at the same time, with J-M Insulating Board.

The book covers exterior remodeling, too, with many "before and after" illustrations. It tells about Smoothgrain Asbestos Siding, the newest fireproof siding which cuts down upkeep and makes old homes look like new. It contains recommendations on roofing problems, with full-color illustrations of American Colonial Shingles, the most beautiful low-cost asbestos roof J-M has ever developed.

It explains how J-M Rock Wool Insulation can make your home up to 15° cooler in hottest summer . . . save you up to 30¢ on every dollar you spend for fuel, every winter! It shows new house designs, points of good construction—dozens of stimulating ideas! Send coupon and 25¢ for your copy today.

"SO BEAUTIFUL AND EASY TO CLEAN

. . . my cheerful Marlite bathroom!"

"HONESTLY, our walls were a sight before we modernized with Marlite. Now the room is so cheery and bright . . . and I love the way it cleans! Dirt, stains, and the youngsters' smudges can't penetrate that durable plastic surface, so I just whisk them away with a damp cloth! And Marlite's beauty lasts for years . . . eliminates costly redecorating."

LOVELY DECORATOR COLORS! Select the perfect color scheme for your room. Ask your lumber and building material dealer to show you genuine Marlite in solid colors, as above, and in the distinctive horizontaline, tile, wood and marble patterns.

FOR YOUR BUSIEST ROOMS! Colorful, durable Marlite is ideal for your kitchen, bathroom, utility room, recreation room and den. The large, easy-to-fit panels go up quickly over old walls or new, with a minimum of muss. Ask for Marlite by name. Marsh Wall Products, Inc., Subsidiary of Masonite Corporation.

How to make a bedsp

Photo

This smooth, neatly tailored bedspread is one that you can m...e

By Mary Brooks Picken

You can dress up your bed with a spread that tailor-made for it. Choosing a fabric is the first important step. Be sure you get one that launders well and won't wrinkle readily. Cottons are usually most satisfactory. The new metallic, nontarnishable trims now add a touch of glamour to plain material. Give your spread a professional look with a fringe that will wash as safely as the spread itself.

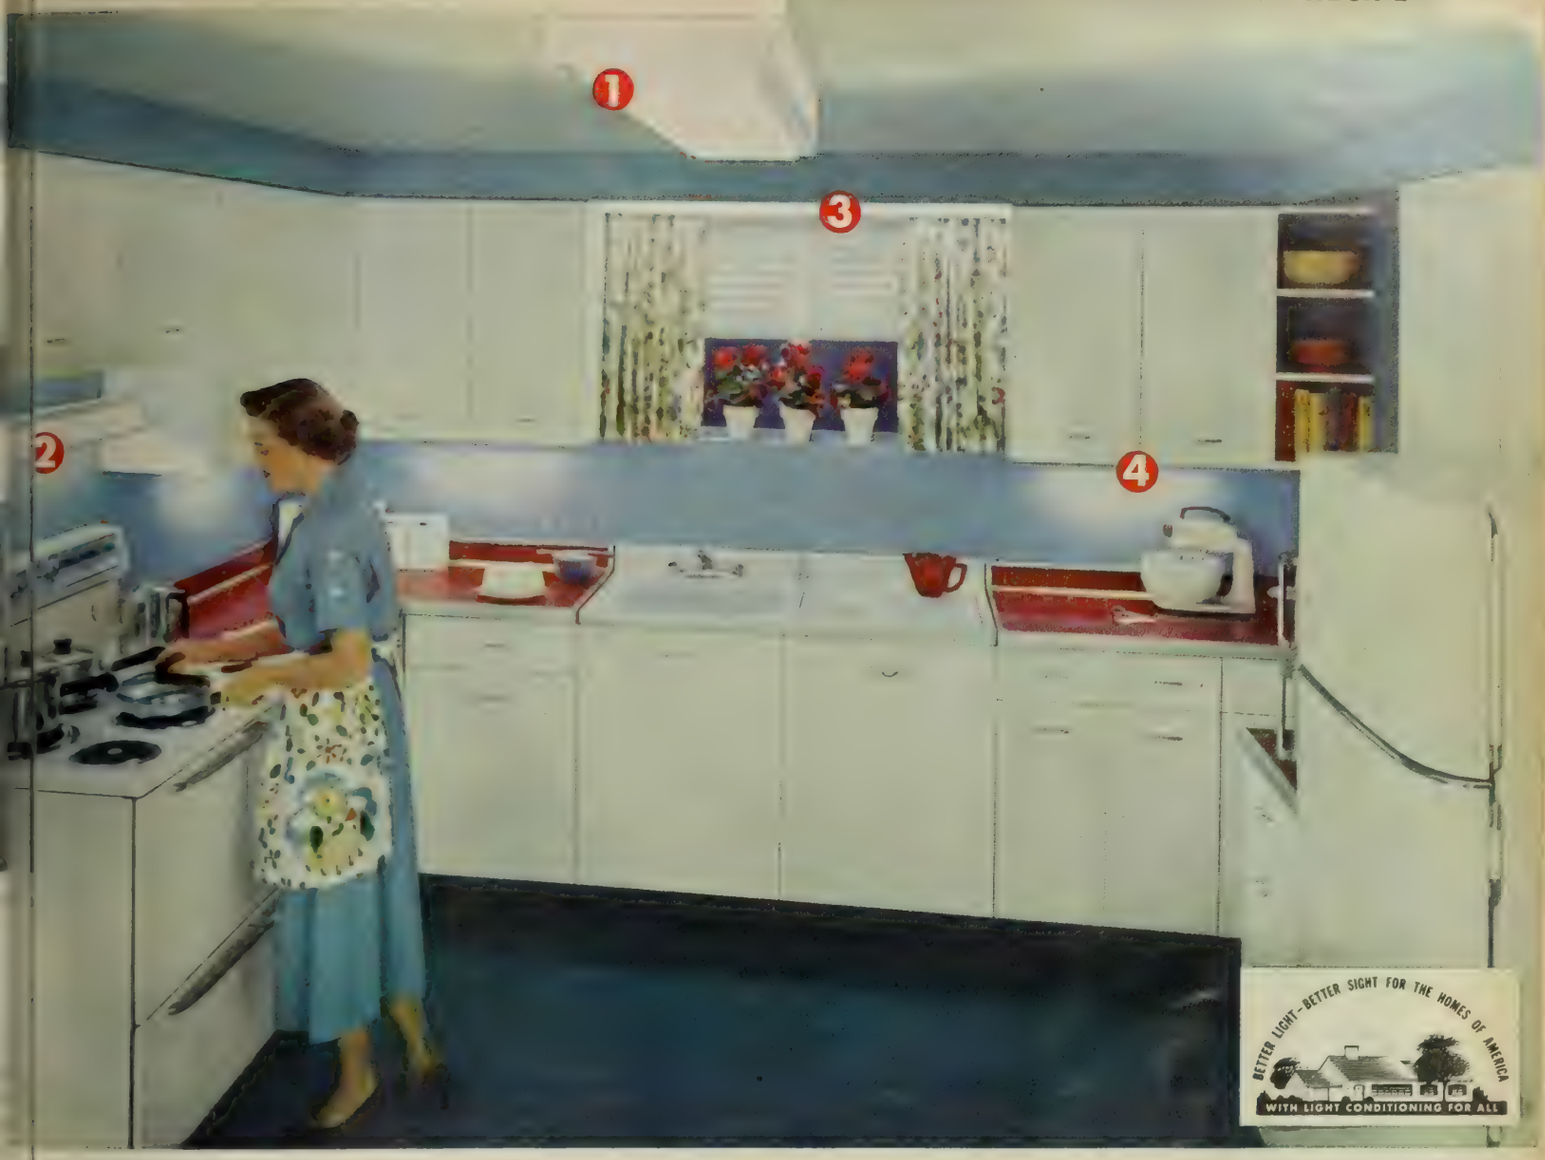
A box-spring ruffle makes your bed more attractive when you remove the spread at night. It can match the spread or bring added interest in a contrasting color. For accent, try cushions or valances to match.

Below are the complete directions for making a bedspread, headboard cover, box-spring ruffle and decorative bolster.

The smooth, trim bedspread, above, is made of metallic cotton with matching headboard and bolster. Ruffle is a striped rayon taffeta. You can make your own version of a spread such as this by following directions, step by step.

To measure for a bedspread: Take these measurements:

1. Head of box spring to foot.
2. Corner to corner across bottom.
3. Top of box spring to floor, plus 2½ inches.
4. Depth of mattress already made up plus 2 inches for overhang of spread.



To measure for a headboard cover. Measure:

5. Height of headboard.

New Walls for Old Without Replastering

Do your cracked walls need redecorating? Do you have unfinished wallboard you'd like to look like lovely plaster? Then you'll welcome an amazing new product called DRAMEX. DRAMEX colors like paint and resurfaces like plaster . . . all in ONE coat. And it's inexpensive.

BEFORE It's a problem, isn't it? . . . how to redecorate those walls with cracks and blemishes. Ordinary paint won't hide the flaws and replastering is so expensive.

Now you can redecorate cracked walls—without replastering. A new and different paint called DRAMEX fills cracks and nail holes—hides blemishes—as it colors. One coat gives you a new wall surface . . . plaster-hard, beautifully colored and finished. Be your own decorator by using any of the lovely colors shown below—or you can intermix colors to create your own smart shade.

AFTER The walls of the above room were resurfaced and redecorated with one coat of Peach Blossom DRAMEX. The cost of the DRAMEX used was only $6.40.

DRAMEX—perfected by makers of Bondex, world's largest-selling cement paint—is an ideal finish for wallboard rooms. Builders are using it in fine new homes. Just tape and seal the joints—apply DRAMEX—and you have lovely "living room" walls. No cracks or blemishes. No tape marks showing through. DRAMEX mixes easily with water—dries in 4 hours—has no paint-y odor. It's actually fun to use.

WHERE CAN YOU BUY DRAMEX?

Dramex is available at better paint dealers everywhere. For the name and address of your nearest Dramex dealer . . . PHONE ANY WESTERN UNION OFFICE ANYWHERE IN THE U. S. A. (by number) AND ASK FOR "OPERATOR 25." In Canada, write The Reardon Co., Ltd., Montreal 1.

parents because they treated him too harshly. Like too many parents, they had only one recourse when any difficulty arose; they shouted and spanked. They offered no comfort or understanding. When a youngster is treated with violence, he may bend over backward to avoid invoking his parents' wrath. His hostility must have some outlet, so he may turn it on himself, as Jay did.

On the other hand, 13-year-old Lynn's parents were too indulgent. They had always coddled and fussed over her; had given in to every whim; had never made any demands on her; fought her battles for her. When a youngster is pampered and overindulged in this way, she cannot possibly develop any self-reliance or any feeling of independence. She can't feel capable of solving problems on her own, or of standing up for her rights. She feels too inadequate to do anything but run to her parents for protection. Naturally, she feels very frustrated and resentful.

Harold, the boy who pushed the little girl down the steps is typical of the third group. He was the younger of two children—his sister was three years older, a lovely-looking and particularly precocious child. Harold was expected to equal her in every way, at school, at camp, in dealings with other youngsters. He couldn't help but feel bitter toward parents who seemed only to want him to measure up to some ideal they had conceived, and never considered his capacities and limitations.

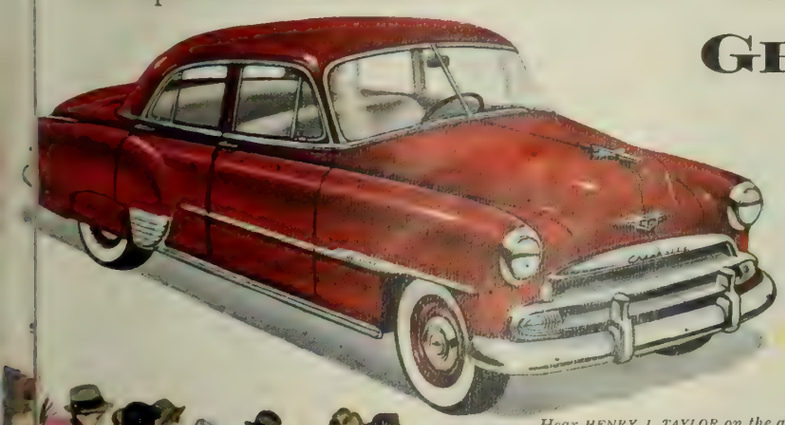
Everybody's looking at the KEY VALUES FOR 1951

PONTIAC

ALL THE NEW GENERAL MOTORS CARS for 1951 are now on display.

The finest models yet produced by Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac—they are centers of attraction everywhere.



You will find each as thrilling to drive as it is to behold—each distinguished by new advances in styling and ease of handling that have been years in the making.

For each has benefited from the continuing program carried on, year after year, by GM's research, engineering and production staffs to develop betterments in materials and construction for use by all General Motors cars.

This exploration is concerned with a multitude of things—from window glass and finishes to metallurgy and the chemistry of fuels. The net result is the richer beauty, finer quality and superb performance that make the new GM cars the key values for 1951.

We believe they will supply the better transportation millions of Americans still need, and invite your inspection—at the showrooms of your local GM dealers.

Standard equipment, accessories and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice.

platters and bowls. He, like Tom, deducted his expense, but the deduction was not allowed.

Allen, the government held, was working in wood primarily for recreation, and as a hobby, despite the incidental income. Tom, on the other hand, proved he was primarily engaged in producing income.

These two rulings are clear, but what if you earn $100 or $250 in your spare time? Can you or can't you deduct? If you have such a claim, the government will want complete facts in order to make a ruling. If you can prove this extra activity is primarily income, you can deduct. If not, you cannot deduct expenses, although the extra income is taxable.

The second way to look for a tax savings under business deductions is to check all allowable personal deductions to see if any can be listed as business deductions. Here is how the same expense can cut your tax payment by being deducted on Page 2 of the tax form instead of on Page 3.

Ralph D. . . . . rented a room in his house to a young college student. It was such a minor item that Ralph never thought of the renting as a nonbusiness activity for gain, although he included the rent in reporting his gross income of $4,000. And since his personal deductions for contributions, interest, taxes, etc. came to less than $400, Ralph filled out Short Form 1040 and claimed the standard personal deduction of 10 percent of his adjusted gross, or $400. That left his taxable income at $3,600.

A year later, on the advice of a friend, Ralph figured his allowable nonbusiness deductions in connection with renting out that room. In addition to such costs as redecorating, he found that since that room represented one-seventh of his house, he could deduct one-seventh of his costs for light, heat, and utilities, and one-seventh of his payments for mortgage interest and property taxes, and claim these deductions as business, rather than personal, expenses.

Ralph found that he actually had $100 he could claim as a business deduction. That reduced his adjusted gross income to $3,900. And since he could take 10 percent, or $390 as his standard deduction for personal expenses, it reduced his net income to $3,510, and saved the taxes on $90.

It's to your advantage, too, to scan all personal expenses for items that can be deducted from gross income to lower the adjusted gross.

It is generally known that any loss suffered from the sale of a personal residence is not deductible. But if you have to move from your home before it is sold, and it stands empty, you can deduct the costs of maintaining the property until the sale. These would include the cost of heat, taxes, and other necessary expenses.

When it comes to taxes, you ren who contribute to of a parent cannot

each claim an exemption or partial exemption. The one who is held to contribute more than half of the support gets the total exemption; the other cannot deduct at all.

If your young son earns $499 in a year, he needn't report it, and you can claim him as a dependent, if you furnish more than half his actual support. If he earns $500, he must file a return, and you cannot claim him as a dependent, thus losing the $600 exemption.

Take every deduction to which you think you are honestly entitled, but don't crowd or look for loopholes. Don't allow your sympathies with yourself to affect your judgment. The government considers your intent. If it feels your intentions are to evade a just tax, you will be embarrassed morally and financially.

You can, for example, legally pay your children salaries of $499 for employee services rendered, deduct their salaries as business expenses, and still claim them as dependents if you provide the required support. But the government is very suspicious of these family salaries. If you make such a deduction, you will have to prove that you would pay a stranger the same salary for the same services. You wouldn't pay a neighbor's child $499 a year for locking your store every Saturday night. You can't "hire" your son that way.

4. Avoid claiming expenditures as expenses

An expense is a charge against income, and may be deducted in full. An expenditure is a charge against capital, and must be deducted over a period of years as depreciation. One landlord repaired a roof on a tenant's house; another landlord put on a new roof. The cost was about the same. But the first man, who repaired, could deduct the entire amount as an expense. The second man had to depreciate. The repair of a roof is considered a necessary expense in maintaining the property at its previous level, while a new roof prolongs the life and increases the value of the house.

A car bought for business use would be an expenditure, and depreciated. A new set of tires would be an expense, and wholly deductible. If you use a car partly for business, only the business percentage of expenses and expenditures are deductible.

If a doctor buys magazines for his patients to read, that is a business expense. A new text on some phase of medicine is an expenditure, since it increases his knowledge or value.

If you use your car a great deal in your business, you may be allowed to depreciate it in three years. If the business use is light, you may have to depreciate it over a five-year period.

At the present time, it would probably be to your advantage to have a longer schedule, since it gives you a deduction in each of five high tax years, instead of only three. Better find out what the

Since the 1949 provision relating to split incomes, there is no reason for the average taxpayer to consider a separate return. Its use is usually limited to certain cases where husband and wife each have suffered large capital losses.

A joint return is usually best. Even though your wife has no income, she is allowed a taxpayer's exemptions. On a separate return, you couldn't claim support of your wife's niece or nephew. On a joint return, in which your wife assumes the status of an equal taxpayer (and is equally liable), she can claim a $600 exemption for support of that same niece.

The only way to find out which form will save you money is to try them out. If you have done everything correctly up to this point, you will find the most advantageous form without trouble.

8. Make a trial draft in pencil

It's easier to erase on the same form than to spoil a dozen that you go at in ink before you're sure of every detail.

9. Check your addition!

It's silly to be one of the million taxpayers who increase their taxes by failing to add correctly. Even if you're good at arithmetic, the tired mind can play tricks. Call in a fresh observer for that final check.

10. When in doubt, find out in advance

The greatest tax expert in the country—your local tax office—is ready to help you make out a correct return. Do what the experts do. Bring down those doubtful and borderline cases and find out where you stand. If you take a chance on a doubtful item, it may cost you an extra 6 percent, or even more.

Many people hesitate to consult their tax office for advice because they are afraid the government men won't allow them to claim certain deductions. But remember this: Between January 1 and March 15, you can claim anything you think right. The government men may advise you not to make a claim, but the income tax is a self-assessment tax, and you are the final authority on what you want to put down until your account is audited. Then, if you are in the wrong, you'll pay interest. If you ask for aid after March 15, the local office can deny any claims it considers incorrect.

Taxes are up and going up, but your correct tax is the lowest tax. Don't add up your mounting tax bill by being careless or reckless. Define the terms, apply them to your situation, and when in doubt, find out in advance. You'll be money ahead.

A Cutler-Hammer MULTI-BREAKER in your new home ENDS the blown fuse Nuisance forever!

A Cutler-Hammer Multi-Breaker ends the blown fuse nuisance forever. No longer will you have to hunt fuses in the dark . . . or break off in the midst of preparing a meal to go to the store for the new fuses you forgot to buy. No longer will you have to stumble down dark cellar stairs and fumble in the old fuse box wondering what to do. The Cutler-Hammer Multi-Breaker is installed in the kitchen or any other convenient place. When service goes off, all you do is reset a tiny lever that has snapped out of position. Nothing to buy. Nothing to replace! Service is restored in the twinkling of an eye, even by a child! The average new home can have this modern and safe protection for less than $8.00 additional. Also easily installed in old homes. What are all the facts? Write today for our free booklet "Goodbye to Fuses."

Engineers, stylists, bankers, architects, mechanics ...amazed any car offering so much could cost so little!

NEW IN MORE WAYS THAN CARS COSTING UP TO $1,000 MORE!

With your first look at this great new Dodge you'll see why people at a "Secret Preview" were impressed with its greater dollar value.

You'll see thrilling new beauty, bumper to bumper! Brilliant new styling . . . exciting new features that make traditional Dodge value greater than ever before!

But the greatest thrill of all will come with your first ride . . . when you "float" down roads that stop other cars! You'll glide right over the rough rutted roads and streets that jarred and "hammered" you in the past. There's never been a ride like this before!

ROOMIER THAN EVER! With all its sleek lines—the 1951 Dodge gives you even more headroom than ever! More stretch-out roominess than cars costing up to $1,000 more! "Watchtower" visibility in every direction! Greater-than-ever safety, comfort, driving pleasure.

You'll find it's fun to drive this great new Dodge. And you'll enjoy the admiration it draws wherever you drive it!

GO SEE IT TODAY! You'll see why we say cars costing up to $1,000 more can't match this combination of new beauty, extra room, riding ease and famous Dodge dependability!

1-Eliminate expensive trimming

Inexpensive tricks—combination of clapboard with board and batten on walls, car siding on entrance porch, projecting trellis, patterned brickwork, a green-and-white color scheme—attract your eyes

Even in these high-pric days, you can still build a go low-cost house. A good hou makes good use of space, go use of materials, and is attr tive in line and detail.

You can build such a ho in three ways. These exam show you how it can be do

e c ements in living room, screened porch, and broad brick terrace take advantage of lake view and breeze. House is placed so trees keep roof shaded

After a glance at the Earl Suddoth house near Memphis, you might think, "It looks pretty fancy to me." Robert E. Brown, A.I.A., would reply that the tricks he used are what distinguish a plain house from an eye-catcher.

The house is full of contrasting pattern, color, and texture—of brick, of wood, of roofing, of windowpanes. Shadow from protruding brick in the foundation wall, from a vertical trellis by the front door, and from an open overhang provide added sparkle.

Windows are aimed for best view, air, and light toward the lake that forms a crescent around the house, while the house as a whole snuggles under tall shade trees that repel the brunt of Mississippi Valley heat.

Living room is full of space—low-cost space. High, sloping ceiling with exposed rafters saves cost of joists and finished ceiling material. Massive fireplace wall is in scale with the room. Casement windows give view of Spring Lake in two directions

Cinder block spray-painted gray and natural wood contrast pleasantly. Narrow end of house faces street, so maximum number of rooms get south

If it's a low-cost house you want . . .

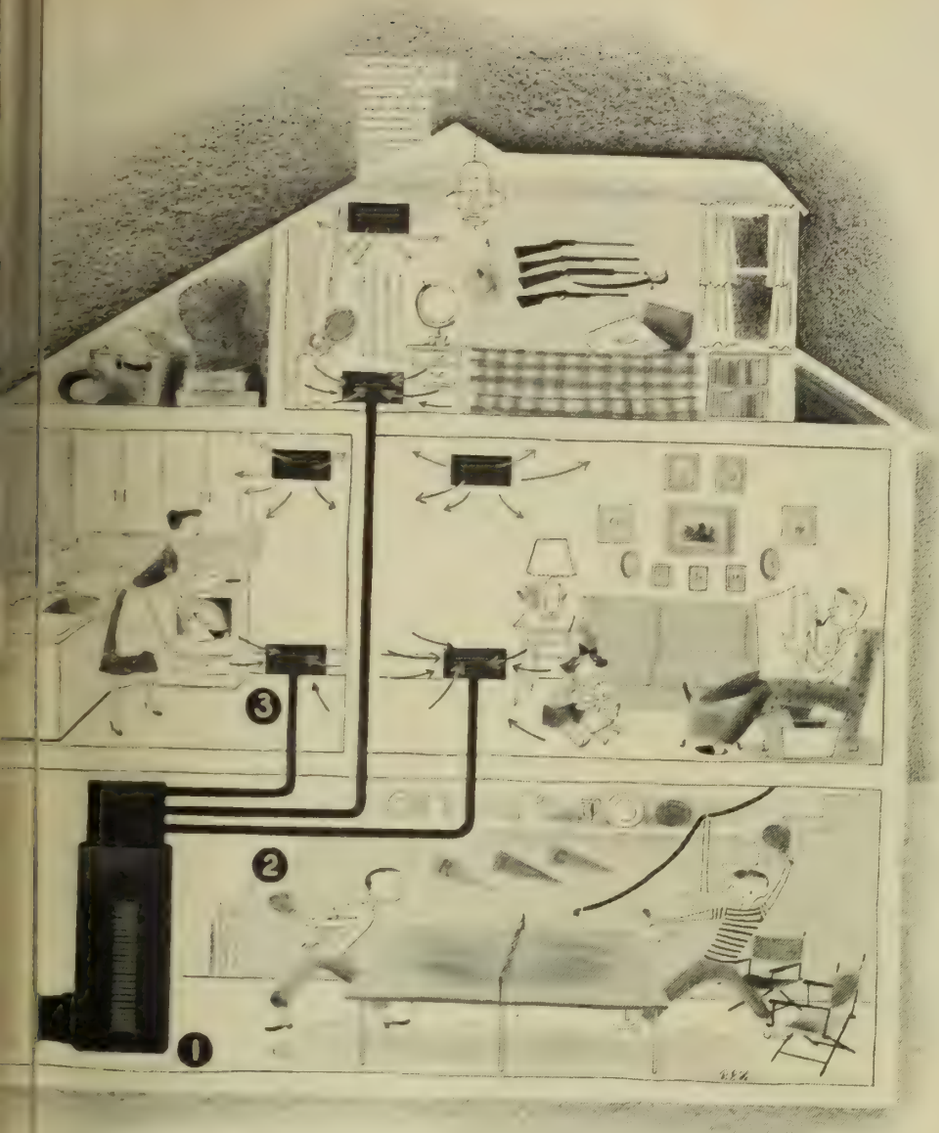
2-Use inexpensive materials

House will fit either a narrow lot or a broad, shallow lot

To keep a house of 1,200 square feet within reach of a th budget, you have to choose materials carefully, and ma up in color, simplicity, and line for paucity of cash. In desi ing the Yellow Springs, Ohio, home of the A. M. Radins, Arc ec Max G. Mercer used only low-cost materials, but in a wa ha belies their inexpensiveness.

Against the rough texture and starkness of light gray de block, he has played warm, rich wood colors. Strong horiz ta and excellent grouping and placement of windows are ef tiv in keeping the blocks visually in the background. Inside, ar colors again soften the geometric stiffness of block walls

Photographs: Dearborn-Massar



Strong horizontal lines of louvers and the eave are tempered by the equally strong verticals of window mullions. Note that tapered joists have been doubled and separated with a spreader for decorative effect

Like the exterior, interior walls are cinder block with occasional expanses of plywood. Both rafters and insulation board forming underside of roof are exposed. Though cinder blocks are painted white, texture still shows through

You probably know someone like Jim Blake. Marr . to charming woman, he's deeply in love with her and h b through 10 years of marriage.

But occasionally in the past, Jim has broken do

"Jody," he's said in those moments, "is a wonde l gi most of the time but an impossible one some of the t . A when she's impossible, there's nothing I can do."

The occasional tiff common in all marriage? Th that gets out of hand now and then? The period ness? Jim means none of these.

What he does mean, for example, is that whene is an argument—and that isn't too often—the a itself gets lost as Jody accuses Jim of not loving her.

He means that when he has a tough business which distracts him, that too is like a red flag sig Jody that he doesn't love her.

He means, in short, that Jody seems to have bl tional areas and that when she reaches them, it's i to deal with her. Then, all the neat rules for give don't work.

Jim's problem isn't a rare one.

Some women, at other times charming and wives, become tough to live with every so often. this is true of some husbands too, but let's say at this article talks about wives.

Yet when wives like Jim's become difficult, it i sheer cussedness. They don't set out deliberately to live with.

We're beginning to understand now what the t and what can be done about it. And the trouble, variably, lies in one or more of four deeply entren —unconscious driving forces.

Which sounds forbidding. But isn't.

The good news is that this new knowledge will all the rules of give and take and the argumen reasonableness have failed. I've seen the evidenc

How to be happy with the girl you married

Begins on pa

Not long ago, somewhat self-conscious but determined, he took his problem to a marriage counselor. After stating it and reviewing his own background, he was, on request, telling what he knew about Jody's when he had a sudden flash of insight. In telling the facts of Jody's life, he could see the connection between them, the underlying emotional dependence they had produced, and all their troubles.

Now, Jim is an unusual kind of man. First, in taking the ball and seeking help. And, too, in what he could do thereafter.

For, once he understood, Jim was able to solve the problem by keeping in mind Jody's need for reassurance, by giving her affection even when he was distracted by other things.

Some men can actually be happy with dependent women, can take on the responsibility involved, once they understand it. And, because such wives if constantly reassured of love can return it abundantly, the reward makes it worthwhile.

But the demand on the husband is great, and few men are strong enough to carry the entire load.

They needn't.

Always the most practical solution is for the wife herself to gain some insight. If the husband takes the lead, there's more than one way to get this accomplished.

Do you know a type of woman seemingly very different from Jody Blake? She, too, is otherwise lovable, but with a specific blind spot: An inability to admit she's wrong—even on the mildest issue. Whether it's a discussion or a course of action she's undertaken, she has to be right. And when things go wrong, she blames somebody else—usually her husband.

You probably know half a dozen such women. At least, I do in my own circle of friends. I've seen and heard them in action—at bridge, at parties, at dinners. I've seen desperate looks come over their husbands' faces, and I've s husbands try every defensi

Continued from

It's a defense, and so is another habit that frequently becomes involved. "The woman who feels that she has not been loved enough," Doctor Hollis points out, "may have a strong need to believe that this is not her own fault, not a punishment for her lacks and misdeeds, not something that she deserves." Carry this over to married life, and it becomes hard for such a woman ever to admit her own part in a family problem.

Does she have to be made over before she can understand and be rid of these tendencies?

Claire didn't. In a dozen interviews with the counselor—and after the first few, she continued them without Dan—she gained enough insight not only to understand the force driving her but to gain some control over it.

Similar results are possible for many women if they really want to be helped.

The whole process is aided when the husband understands; when, aware of the cause of the trouble, he not merely encourages his wife to seek help but lends support while she's getting it.

This is equally true for the almost incredible variety of difficulties caused by the second trait:

Some women are all snarled up with their folks—not, it must be emphasized, with direct interference from in-laws, but, instead, with their own buried and twisted attitudes and feelings toward their parents.

Such attitudes and feelings are often to blame for unreasonable distrust, nagging criticism, or undue efforts to reform a husband.

children, their mother is ury importance during l. It's she who supplies le Father makes only in- t appearances. Later, Father takes his place, fully from this period. Some continue to be so bound up with their fathers that they aren't free to give themselves fully in marriage.

There are also women who, thwarted or at least feeling that they were thwarted by their fathers, carry over a great hostility toward men. They're distrustful of all men, even their husbands.

Other women who have hostile feelings toward their fathers may tend to unleash them on their husbands. One woman with deep hostility toward her father—"The only time we children were happy was when he was not at home"—went through periods when she poured totally unjust criticism on her husband. Suddenly imagining a way in which her husband was like her father, she would be compelled to criticize him.

After she had been led to get her hostility toward her father out of her system, she was able to separate her feelings for her husband from those she bore for her father.

For women who act irrationally because of parental ties, as well as for those emotionally dependent, insight is the great need.

Some husbands with thorough understanding, great patience, and tact, may help their wives to identify the forces gnawing on their marriage. Even when the aid of a skilled third party is required, it's often up to the husband to recognize the trouble and encourage his wife to seek the outside help.

The third trait is as widespread as the two already mentioned and often more obvious:

There are women who, without realizing it, have an actual need to make themselves miserable.

Here, for example, is Mrs. Willis, on whose otherwise pleasant face there appears from time to time signs of hopelessness and misery. At such moments, Mr. Willis knows that he is in for hours of futility.

Mrs. Willis' complaints are many-sided. Her health—it isn't good. Her clothes—she has practically none to wear. And she gets no recreation, no fun.

But what are the facts?

After her last child, her doctor had suggested that she come back for a checkup, and her husband had tried to get her to do so. Somehow she never had time.

No clothes! Yet she has never once asked her husband for money to buy clothes. And when he offers to go shopping with her, Mrs. Willis finds some excuse for not going.

Lack of recreation? The fact is, she always refuses, on one ground or another—because of "poor health" or "no clothes"—to go out.

The inescapable truth is that Mrs. Willis has inflicted unhappiness upon herself. Without in any way understanding it, she has had

She disliked housework and candidly said so, had a strong need to control her own money, and constantly tried to dominate the home.

As a little girl, Ellie had been strongly attached to her father. Ellie began to feel that her mother was jealous of the closeness between daughter and father, began to feel too that her only hope of keeping her mother's love was to give up anything that might lead to rivalry. Unconsciously, Ellie became afraid to develop into an adult woman sexually.

There were other factors. During her adolescence, Ellie's father interfered with her development by discouraging relationships with boys. And he even encouraged her to take up his trade, a technical, masculine one.

Ellie Charles' case is the rare kind because it is so extreme.

As a general rule, most women, Doctor Hollis notes, have certain characteristics or ways of feeling and behaving.

They find pleasure in the jobs involved in making a comfortable and attractive home.

They enjoy, and have some natural skill in, caring for children.

They prefer to stay in the home rather than work if they have children, unless work is necessary for financial reasons.

They have no marked need to dominate or be aggressive.

Ellie Charles ran counter to every one of these.

Much more often, however, a woman will lack only two or three of these normal characteristics. What is really the trouble is not so much a complete lack of any of them as a kind of wavering between wanting and not wanting to be a woman.

Few women entirely escape occasional feelings of resentment against men in general and their husbands in particular. The average woman, say some authorities, resents her husband at times because she feels inferior just because she is a woman.

This is still a masculine-dominated world. And, living in it, women may store up frustrations. Every now and again, without knowing why, they may turn on their husbands.

From childhood on, women are taught that men can do things women can't do—just because they're men. Many girls also acquire the feeling that their domestic role is an inferior one. And, in the business and professional world, there is still no over-all equality of the sexes; men more easily get better jobs, better pay.

As a kind of compensation for their feelings of inferiority, some women belittle their husbands, others become domineering.

Marriage itself introduces complications. If you're a more or less average couple, it was probably more difficult for your wife to adjust to marriage than it was for you.

For one thing, she is much more dependent upon you than you are upon her. She may have left her job, given up independence to become completely dependent.

For another, after marriage, you went right on with the work you had been doing, while your wife had to undertake entirely new obligations and functions. For her, marriage became a full-time job, while for you it is a part-time one.

It is a good idea for you to compensate your wife a little for the handicaps of womanhood.

You can return to her some degree, at least, of economic freedom through an arrangement under which it isn't necessary for her to be constantly asking for money.

You can appreciate the importance of her contributions to the family, recognize that they are as vital as yours. You can understand that your wife's job in the home requires, no less than does yours in business, the learning of skills. And you can show your understanding and appreciation, not in sporadic outbursts of excessive compliments, but quietly and consistently in your whole attitude.

Healthy at all times, such efforts on the part of the husband become even more so when any trouble between him and his wife is the result of her dissatisfaction with being a woman.

Obviously, the trouble with an Ellie Charles is much too deep-seated to be materially helped in this way. But in other cases, there's much the husband can do to remove his wife's feelings of inferiority, to make being a woman more attractive to her.

The husband who doesn't throw up his hands helplessly when symptoms of any of these four troublesome traits appear, but who recognizes them has a good chance of helping his wife.

But, finally, we have to come to an unavoidable fact: Although this article concentrates, as indicated in the beginning, on the difficulties of wives, it can't entirely omit mention of the difficulties of husbands.

The very same factors that make wives tough to live with at times also operate in husbands. They, too, may have excessive emotional dependence, encumbering parental ties, a subtle need to suffer. They may even be rejecting, to a degree, the obligations of being a man.

Husbands as well as wives may need help. And can get it.

The happy fact is that there is no arbitrarily and hopelessly contrary person—man or woman—however difficult and exasperating he or she may seem to be.

When all the usual rules of give and take and all the old clichés don't work, there's no need for despair or for painfully "grinning and bearing it." The trouble is there under the surface; it can be uncovered and uprooted.

Now! Play the Piano in 30 Days!

This new, easy modern musical notation makes available to you over 10,000 pieces of popular, semi-classical and classical music.

Amazing New Musical Notation Enables You to Play the Works of the Masters in a Few Weeks at Home!

• Not just a new teaching system—but a new musical notation, easy to learn, easy to read. Thousands and thousands of people who couldn't play a note have been enabled by Klavar to play complicated scores in a few weeks.

Klavar is the invention of a great European genius. In Europe it has already revolutionized the teaching of music. Hundreds of thousands of people have learned to play the piano easily and quickly with its aid.

You'll find that with Klavar you can read and play music easily and naturally. Gone forever is the old musical notation which has called for endless hours of study and practice. Today a child can learn to read Klavar in a few hours.

Because of the great popularity of Klavar, almost every piece of music of any importance, over 10,000 selections in all, has been printed in this new, easy notation. These are all available to you.

In a few weeks you will be able to play selections by Bach, Tschaikowsky, Chopin. The whole world of music will be at your finger tips. This is true even if today you cannot play a single note.

Because it is so hard for anyone to believe that learning to play the piano could be so miraculously easy, we are offering you the first lesson in this course absolutely free. Play the themes contained in the first lesson in this course and see for yourself how wonderfully simple Klavar is. To get your free first lesson and a full description of Klavar, just mail us the coupon below. Send no money. Just mail the coupon today without obligation.

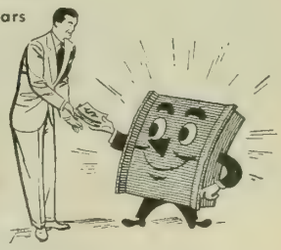
Special effects. A stippling roller with a coarse nap can be used to get a mottled design. Load roller by running lightly over paint liberally brushed on a piece of wood, metal, or glass. Heavy-textured effects are produced by going over a surface twice. Stippling is done by running roller over paint that has become tacky, or by using a heavy-textured type of paint

Q. Which is most important in an insulation?



☐ Vaporseal ☐ Uniform thickness ☐ Double heat loss barrier

A. Be sure to have all three. In an insulation like Reflective KIMSUL*, the many-layer fiber blanket resists heat loss and the aluminum foil cover reflects heat back into the house. This double protection is the most effective method of stopping heat loss ever devised. Uniform thickness—to prevent thin and thick spots (a feature of Regular KIMSUL, too)—is assured with the exclusive stitched blanket construction. Unlike other insulations, thickness can't vary with age or because of improper installation. The aluminum foil cover also acts as a vaporseal to prevent condensation in walls and keep humidity at the comfort level.

Q. How soon does insulation pay for itself?

☐ 1 to 4 years ☐ Never ☐ About 30 years

A. It depends upon how much fuel is saved by the insulation, and what its other benefits are worth to you. A home insulated throughout with KIMSUL may save as much as 44% on fuel—so the insulation pays for itself in a short time, often in only one or two years. Meanwhile, it keeps a home snug, warm, draft-free in winter—up to 15° cooler on hottest summer days.

Q. Where should a new house be insulated for proper protection?

☐ Around foundations ☐ Attic and sidewalls ☐ Between floors

A. Both attic and sidewalls should be insulated to stop the greatest percentage of heat loss. Be sure, too, that the insulation has been applied in adequate thickness at these points, and around doors and windows. It must also be resistant to fire, vermin and mold. Investigate to make sure that an "insulated" house is properly insulated.

Q. Can I install my own insulation?

☐ If you're under 35 ☐ Never ☐ Yes

A. Many insulations require skilled labor and special equipment for installation. However, KIMSUL insulation is easily applied by the home-owner himself in either his existing or his new home. It is available in easy-to-carry rolls at lumber and building supply dealers everywhere. For the average six-room home, complete insulation with KIMSUL costs less than the price of a good easy chair (still less if installed by the home-owner).

Zephyrs flatter your home and increase its value. Doorhood-shelters keep stoops dry; keep muddy tracks outside. Zephyr awnings shelter interiors from blowing rains; protect doors and windows against dampness, swelling and decay. Zephyr permanent awnings admit light and air; repel heat and glare. In the summertime Zephyr's patented ventilated feature (thermo-syphon action) goes to work. Room temperatures are actually kept up to 12 degrees cooler. Imitations are similar in appearance only. Get genuine Zephyrs with thermo-syphon principle. Send coupon for literature and nearest dealer's name.

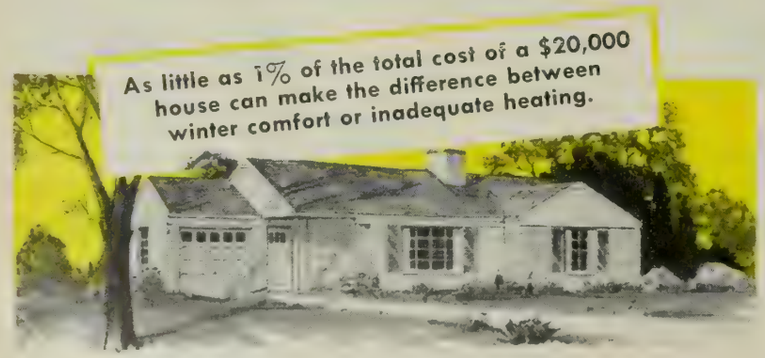
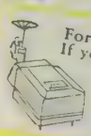
WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE IN COST?



The cost of a furnace or boiler is only part of your investment in a heating system. The planning and workmanship of the installation costs more than the heating unit . . . this means any skimping on the installation in an effort to cut costs is false economy.

In most parts of the country you depend on your heating eight months of the year for home comfort. Remember, nothing else contributes so much to family comfort as a modern heating system.

When you or your builder wisely selects Janitrol gas heating, whether it's a warm air or hot water system, you've assured yourself of care-free heating comfort.



With Janitrol you get double assurance of complete heating satisfaction because in addition to getting the most modern gas equipment built, you get the experience and skill of an authorized Janitrol dealer whose workmanship must measure up to factory's high standards.

Thermopane windows in home of Dr. & Mrs. V. W. Brinkerhoff, Toledo, increase comfort. Thermopane is used throughout in Pella sash.

Thermopane Windows Don't Give You the Cold Shoulder

In building your new home, plan for comfortable winters. Make sure there's no "low-comfort zone" next to your windows. The best way to avoid such wasted space is to use *Thermopane insulating glass in every window.

Thermopane has a blanket of dry air hermetically sealed between two panes. This keeps the room-side surface warmer in winter . . . eliminates the chilly feeling you get near single-pane windows. With Thermopane, you can arrange your furniture as you like it and leave it that way.

Another big advantage! With Thermopane windows, heat loss is half as much as through single glass. You save fuel. Thermopane reduces condensation on windows, too. It makes windows self-insulating . . . you never need struggle with storm sash. Thermopane stays in all year . . . its insulation helps keep rooms cooler in summer.

You can use Thermopane in any type of window . . . picture, double-hung, casement, sliding, awning. Your L·O·F Glass distributor or dealer, or your building supply dealer, can tell you all about it. Or write for our free Thermopane booklet. Handsome furniture you can build

By John Webster

Many family budgets expire on the doorstep of a new home. They just can't be revived to buy the basic chairs, tables, and cabinets every home needs.

If you have watched high building costs shrink your bank account to near zero, you will be interested in the furniture pictured here. It was designed and built by Sam Maloof of Ontario, California.

Sam is a professional designer and builder of fine furniture. But he also has the interests of amateurs at heart—Sam is a young man with the responsibilities of a new business, a new family, a new home. He knows what it is like to have no furniture to move into a new home, for it happened to him.

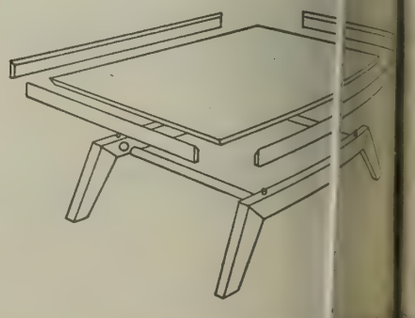
So Sam designed and built the furniture you see here, handsome, but simple enough so it can be duplicated with hand tools by any unskilled handyman.

Cord makes back, seat of string chair

TO MAKE your furniture-building project easy, Better Homes & Gardens has had patterns of all these pieces prepared by the Easi-Bild Pattern Company. Each major part is pictured full size, so you simply lay the pattern on wood, trace, and cut. Complete materials lists are included.

In this string chair, heavy wrapping cord, about 1/8 inch thick, adds comfort. You can use colored cord, or dye white cord to fit your room. If you have access to a band saw, you can speed cutting of back legs. But with a pattern, it isn't difficult to cut them accurately with a sharp handsaw.

A big coffee table, for less than $5



THE TOP of this good-looking coffee table is a f er built of 3/4-inch fir plywood. But edge strips hide th and look of the plywood edges, give the effect of a slab t 2 thick. As an alternate, you could cut top from plas -co plywood and cover edges with metal strips.

Versatile bench goes together quickly

IN A combination living-dining room, it often is desirable to separate living and dining areas. That is the basic advantage of this design.

The parts—storage cabinet, grill, table, and benches—are built independently, then put together. This gives you the effect of a separate dining room, in minimum space and at low cost. Or you can build just the cabinet.

Planning and Decorating Booklet

"How to Plan and Decorate Masterpiece Rooms" is an amazing new booklet in full color which leading authorities say contains one of the most exciting decorating ideas of the century.

Without any previous knowledge of color harmony this sparkling new booklet explains a simple device for giving your rooms the same color charm found in the world's great paintings.

Elizabeth Whitney, A.I.D., a contributor to "How to Plan and Decorate Masterpiece Rooms."

As you go from page to page you will see room after room in which the color magic of a great masterpiece has been captured. Yet, the color selecting device by which it was done is so simple that it is actually automatic. You can't go wrong. It leaves no color decisions for you to make.

Once your choice is made you can proceed with confidence, knowing the great masters would have used those same colors in the same way.

That's why leading editors and decorators say "It is amazing. Every, woman should have one of these wonderful booklets."

We lived in Shangri-La on $75 a month

miles due west. And Jody didn't finish her dozens of sketches of the little town, where the turning of every corner showed a more fascinating view, nor I my research in the Cathedral's archives with its priceless records of Alamos' history.

Time for parting had come; time also to again face the realities and high cost of living in that good old country north of the border. Our carefully kept, 6-month records revealed that our cost-of-living bill had averaged $75 per month! And we had lived abundantly.

Jody had a good farewell cry with Pancha and Josefa; I had a last round of saluds (your healths) with the boys. Slowly we drove through the cobblestone calles of Alamos, now so much a part of us, drank in the charm and mellow beauty of its ancient, some half-crumbling but always proud casas, then: adios and hasta luego (au revoir).

When Father Bear growls

Upturned faces, mouths agape,
Four eyes round with awe.
Daddy is a sight to see
When he lays down the law!
Daddy's voice is strong and stern.
Little people—hear him speak.
Daddy's discipline is good—
He tries it once a week!

—Billie W. Dean

In retrospect, this we can say in all sincerity. Never have we enjoyed an experience as much as we did our 6 months in Alamos. The two excellent doctors or the two well-stocked drugstores never made a penny out of us; we weren't sick a day. Never did we spend a peso in a curio shop; not a single such animal could be found in Alamos. Neither did we ever run across the run-of-the-mill tourist-town "guide," or panhandler. The only precaution we ever took to keep healthy was this: We never drank unboiled water, never ate raw foods, except fruits. These we washed before peeling. And we always scalded our dishes.

In view of Alamos' easy accessibility, it is an inexplicable phenomenon to us why so few tourists ever visit it.

It's true we did not find luxurious hotels, motor courts, or expensive restaurants. The accommodations were then definitely primitive, limited—but clean; the eating places were fascinating but to most, uninviting. But it would be a simple matter to bring along a few pots and pans, a pressure cooker, camp stove, and a radio that works on AC, DC, and battery. With this equipment, you could set up housekeeping in the Alamos Hotel—or the Yaqui Desert.

As to the plumbing, sorry—Chick Sales only, but easily kept sanitary. If a longer stay is contemplated, modern plumbing can be installed in a jiffy, at low cost.

In short, life in Alamos to us was not a hardship, but a pleasure. We left Alamos feeling that we were leaving behind us, temporarily, 3,000 friends. It certainly had a great variety of things to offer: beautiful architecture, hunting and fishing, treasure hunting, or prospecting for the adventurous.

But it shines most invitingly as a little Paradise for the plain artistic loafer or for those, old or young, single or otherwise, male or female, who are not blessed with an overload of worldly goods. For those who are looking for an ideal place to retire on a modest income, we found Alamos to be the answer.

And, in looking back, I often recall the unforgettable fiesta given us by our muy amigo (good friend) El General de Caballeria (General of Cavalry) Ramon Limon, the man who is entrusted with the task of keeping on friendly terms with the fierce Yaqui Indians in southern Sonora. We had toasted this, that, and other things; never were bonds of friendship between our countries more firmly cemented. And never had my good senora danced more strenuously, as the only norte americana present, with all the high, intermediate, and low brass, and finally with the most eager dancers of them all, the Mexican G.I's.

"You see, Don Jay," the General, whom I called just plain "lemon" at his own insistent request, opined, "you in the north are wealthy, powerful; you rule the world. You have everything . . . except, me parece (it seems to me), something you may have forgotten, or maybe never learned. That, for your own peace of mind, you should try to learn from us Mexicanos. We have little, require little; we are satisfied with little. We don't worry—we know how to enjoy life."

I've known dogs to be given away or put to sleep because they couldn't be persuaded to give up their newspaper ways when they grew up. Owners of other dogs go right on living with pets who continue the newspaper habit all their lives, shrugging their shoulders and accepting the indoor business as a necessary routine.

Dogs are creatures of habit. Once a dog has gotten into the habit of using newspapers indoors—that's it! From then on, nowhere else will do. So we avoid the newspaper training as we would the plague. Right off the bat, we take our pups outdoors five times daily on a leash. We set these airings by the clock, because a dog gets used to regularity and habit.

When a pup has an indoor accident, we get in a whack across his rump with a folded newspaper, right in the midst of the wrong act, so as to associate the punishment with the crime. A spanking administered even 5 or 10 minutes after any wrongdoing has no meaning. The punished pup only regards you as some kind of domineering oaf and wonders what all the rumpus is about.

The newspaper doesn't really hurt. But the noise creates quite an impression on the pup. We immediately throw in a severe scolding and finger-shaking, to add more drama to the situation . . . all to impress the pup he's a bum and a no-good unless he mends his ways.

The routine we've outlined makes housebreaking comparatively simple. And it's really fun to watch a youngster buckle down and do his part in learning manners. Our latest triumph was with a female Boxer of 4 months. In one evening, mind you, we taught this little girl the ropes. She had one accident . . . and that's all. That was over a month ago. Since that first night, she has been as dependable as the clock on the wall. When she has to "go," she walks around in circles and barks. Of course, we play up to this and immediately take her out. After she has performed, we praise her to the skies, as though she were a grand-opera prima donna. And she loves it. Dogs go for praise . . . hook, line, and sinker. Which is a good thing to remember in all kinds of training you are attempting.

people in your family). This will let you take in just about all the highlights of Southern California in seven days.

You have to add on, of course, what it costs you to get to California, whether you drive your own car or travel by one of the three railroads that serve Los Angeles—the Sante Fe, Union Pacific, or Southern Pacific—or by plane or bus. If you arrive without a car, you might want to rent one to take some of the detailed trips below.

Unlike most vacation areas, where you spend all your time on a continuous tour, the way to see Southern California is to pick a good home base and make it your headquarters for the whole week. You'll do your daily adventuring by going off in a new direction every morning, returning to home base each night. The weekly rate will give you a better home for less money.

A home base will save you time and money. You won't have to find a new place to stop and unpack every night. You'll stay outside the crowded downtown areas, thus avoiding the troubles of city traffic. And you'll be centrally located so that each of your daily trips will be fresh, new, and different.

tage high above the ocean, where you can watch the yachts and sailboats coming into beautiful Newport Harbor? Headquarter at Corona Del Mar. Does your family like fishing? You can try about every kind of ocean fishing at Balboa, and there are sailboats, motorboats, little two-seater water cycles to take out on its quiet bay.

These places are on the coast highway, U.S. 101 Alternate, south of Los Angeles. Corona Del Mar and Balboa are separate communities of Newport Harbor, 45 miles south of downtown Los Angeles, 95 miles north of San Diego, 150 miles west of the mountain lakes and the date farms of the desert. Laguna Beach is 7 miles south of Newport. You will go out each morning in a new direction toward Hollywood, Los Angeles, the mountains, the desert, the missions, San Diego, and Mexico.

Laguna, between the golden-green hills and the ocean, is an artists' colony with a long crescent beach broken by sea-etched caverns 50 feet below the bluff homes.

Here is an odd clue to what to expect of Laguna—along its main street of ceramic shops, art galleries, restaurants, and hotels is a neat little store devoted entirely to the sale of olives—giant olives, ripe olives, green olives, stuffed olives, exotic olives, strange c... heard-of olives! First day

This is the day to explore the country close around your home base. Spend the morning looking over your town, particularly its homes. At Laguna, the cliffside homes above the ocean: old "Noah's Ark," made of ship timbers, held together with fishing line and sail rope, is next door to a modern palace; hideaway cottages, owner-built and shielded from the road by thick, wild shrubbery, cling to the rocks above the sea next to sleek glass and concrete homes; all of them are surrounded by flaming nasturtiums, giant geraniums, ice plant, hibiscus, bougainvillea, and poinsettias.

clothes at home and go directly into the water at either Balboa or Laguna.

Your first evening's dinner should be an event. At Laguna there's a famous place—Victor Hugo's—on the ocean at the northern part of town. It's only one of a dozen good restaurants in town, however. Two dollars a person will cover dinner.

On Balboa Island there is a small place, the Cape Cod House, run by a couple from Boston who do very well with seafood, especially abalone, a California specialty. (There's a state law prohibiting its export.)

You can finish this comfortable, get-acquainted day with a drive in late evening along the coast highway south to Dana Point; try to make it just after sundown. The sky and the ocean, the white houses on the cliffs, the waves riding in like white horses are unforgettable.

Second day

You're off early, headed north for Los Angeles on the coast highway, U.S. 101 Alternate. Five miles north of Newport is Huntington Beach, with two miles of the finest ocean beach anywhere. Huntington Beach is a forest of oil-well derricks, many of them whipstocked under the ocean bottom. (Whipstocking is a method of drilling from the shore at an angle to bring in oil a mile down and almost a mile out from shore.)

Here at Huntington Beach 30 years ago was a little gun club on the salt flats. There was also a block of lots an encyclopedia company had picked up; salesmen give buyers a "free building lot in California" with every set of books. Then one bright morning, the discovery well, Bolsa Chica No. 1, blew its derrick over with a gusher of thousands of barrels of oil. The gun-club memberships were worth fortunes, and encyclopedia buyers all over the nation got royalties.

From Huntington Beach you continue north along the ocean. At the Long Beach city limits, stay on the highway that skirts along the shore line through downtown Long Beach and past the famous Rainbow Pier and ornate hotels.

Offshore is Terminal Island, with the U. S. Navy Yard. You enter the port of Los Angeles, San Pedro, a sailor's town—perfumed with crude oil and the salty holds of the tuna fleet.

Keeping to the ocean road, you pass Fort MacArthur, and Point Fermin. This area is falling into the sea; there is a big hotel here, now abandoned, as the earth cracked open beneath it. If you stop, you can see these crevasses, some a foot wide.

Look back for one of the world's great views: below you the harbor with gray warships and rusty freighters, bright-painted tankers riding high when empty, rolling sluggishly with their black cargo; in the distance the gleaming city of Long Beach. As you round the point, you have come 45 miles from Newport. At Clifton you rejoin U. S. 101 Alternate. Los Angeles international Airport, 10 miles farther on, is worth a brief stop and the 25-cent parking fee.

Five miles north on Sepulveda Boulevard (California No. 7), you drive through the grounds of the largest veterans' hospital in the country. Just beyond these grounds is Sunset Boulevard; turn right, and a quarter-mile ahead is the University of California at Los Angeles.

Returning to Sunset Boulevard and heading east, you'll soon encounter guides waiting to direct you to homes of movie stars.

Turn right off Sunset at Canon Drive. In less than a mile, you reach downtown Beverly Hills.

You can lunch at the Beverly Hills Tropics. You are likely to see a handful or two of celebrities, and the food is excellent. Two dollars a person for lunch will be a good investment here. Another place equally famous is Dave Chasen's, at Robertson Boulevard. The Player's, on the Sunset Strip, and Lucey's, across from the Paramount Studios on Melrose Avenue in Hollywood, are also popular eating places for movie people.

If you're not especially interested in Beverly Hills or movie stars, drive east on Santa Monica Boulevard (the wide street with the flower-filled parkway marking the north end of the business district) to Fairfax Avenue, turn right, and go south to 3rd Street. You are now at the Farmer's Market.

The Farmer's Market was begun in the '30's as an actual roadside market for farm produce. Today it is a shining village of shops and stalls, mostly still a grocer's dream of Heaven—extra-fancy, prime, special-select. Even young children will enjoy this place, and the rest of the family will be fascinated by the pet animals, toys, foods you never dreamed of, candies, magic nuts, and shopping celebrities. Lunch will cost about a dollar and a half per person.

A few blocks from the Farmer's Market on Wilshire Boulevard are La Brea Pits, pools of tar which have imprisoned fossils for 30,000 years. Here are sculptured replicas of the cave bear, saber-toothed tiger, and other prehistoric beasts whose bones have been found in the sticky tar (brea).

Four blocks south of the Farmer's Market is Wilshire Boulevard's Miracle Mile, a lavish shopping street, young and casual, looking more expensive than it really is.

At La Brea Avenue the Miracle Mile ends, and you go north to Sunset Boulevard, where you turn right toward the radio studios.

Tabasco sauce, and very little mayonnaise. Sprinkle ends of canapes with paprika; garnish with slivers of ripe olives and pimiento. Spread diamonds with mayonnaise, ham salad; garnish with shredded sharp cheese and stuffed-olive slice. Freeze canapes; then arrange on cooky sheet or cardboard; wrap snugly with aluminum foil; return to freezer.

Eclairs: Fill with ice cream, and frost with chocolate-butter frosting. Freeze, then wrap in aluminum foil, and return to freezer.

Ice-cream pie: Mold graham-cracker or vanilla-wafer crust in paper pie plate. Soften ice cream enough to swirl it compactly into crust. Freeze firm; pipe plain whipped-cream trim around edge. Freeze. Wrap and return to freezer.

French-fried Shrimp: Clean uncooked shrimp. Dry thoroughly. Dip in a batter made by beating together 1 cup enriched flour, ½ teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 1 cup ice water, and 2 tablespoons salad oil. If you're keeping shrimp frozen very long, omit salt. Fry in deep fat (360°) to a pale golden color. Drain on paper toweling. Cover with waxed paper and cool. Arrange shrimp on cooky sheet, wrap snugly in aluminum foil, and freeze. Or package in freezing container.

Frozen for small fry

Hamburgers: Buy the buns in cellophane packages or make your own, wrap in cellophane, and freeze. Season ground beef, shape into patties, and stack with squares of waxed paper between. Wrap in foil, and freeze. Thaw on refrigerator shelf or let them thaw in the picnic basket en route. Or allow extra time to fry.

School sandwiches: Make a different sandwich for each of the five days, using meat, chicken, cheese, baked beans, peanut-butter mixtures. Spread on whole-wheat and white enriched bread. Note the different ways to slice—see picture, page 85. Place in plastic sandwich boxes or freezing bags, label, and freeze.

Ice-cream cones: Fill cones; dip tops in crushed peppermint stick candy. Freeze. In summer, they'll be ready to lick in 2 or 3 minutes.

Baked apples: Bake apples as usual. Cool and seal in paper cups.

"Think you'd better move the car."

Freeze. To serve, thaw in refrigerator or at room temperature.

Yumsickles: Dissolve summer-drink powder and add ¾ cup sugar. Pour into molds fitted with stick. Place in freezer till frozen. Unmold and replace stick. Put in small paper bags or wrap in waxed paper; freeze. They're ready to lick when the youngsters are.

You can freeze yumsickles in little paper cups, too. When mixture's frozen to a stiff mush, stick in a wooden meat skewer. You can make yumsickles of orange or grape juice, lemonade or limeade.

Cook double; bake double

Angel cake: Bake cake as usual; spread with butter frosting; freeze. After frosting sets, wrap cake. Notice special rack on page 85. New freezers come fitted with convenient cake and pie racks. They save your beauties from getting bumped.

Apple pies: Nothing really new about this. In Colonial days, a whole winter's supply of pies was baked and frozen. Here's how you do it now. Bake the pies as usual. Cool. Freeze, then wrap.

Bread: Bake bread in deep aluminum-foil frozen-food containers. Cool, then wrap and freeze. You could use packaged roll mix. One package of mix makes 3 loaves.

Chicken pies: Roll plain pastry and cut in rectangles to fit aluminum-foil frozen-food containers loosely. Cut rectangles almost through with a chicken cooky cutter, crimp around edge with fork, and bake till golden on cooky sheet. Make filling of thickened chicken broth, chunks of chicken, a few peas, and bits of pimiento. Pour into aluminum frozen-food containers. Cool. Top with pastry and freeze. Wrap in foil; return to freezer.

Baked beans: Use all your oven space and make an extra batch of baked beans to freeze. Cool; fill paper cups; add lids. Freeze.

Spaghetti sauce: Brew spaghetti sauce, cool, fill freezer jar; freeze. You could have frozen meat balls ready in freezer, too.

Freeze leftovers

Freeze the extra chili, chicken a la king, sandwich spreads, and the rest of the big ham. They'll taste wonderful next week, and the family will be ready for the reappearance then.

RECIPE

"PARTY" HAMBURGER

1 lb. chuck beef, ground
1 teasp. salt
2 tablesp. minced onion
¼ cup water
1 tablesp. LEA & PERRINS Worcestershire Sauce

Combine all ingredients. Ground beef is best handled lightly — otherwise cakes become too compact. Shape gently into 6 cakes. Sauté in a little hot fat in a skillet for about 3 min. on each side, or until of desired rareness. Makes 6 servings.

Whenever recipes call for Worcestershire, you can be almost certain that the experts who write the recipes mean you to use LEA & PERRINS Sauce, the original Worcestershire. Always ask for it by name.

MARCH GARDEN GUIDE

March is when gardening activities go into high gear over the country, when patience pays off. Here's what to do:

CALIFORNIA

Sow vegetable seeds and set out plants. To avoid disease, don't plant tomatoes in the same spot each year.

Prevent sunscald on newly transplanted trees. Wrap bark, or shade them on windy and sunny sides.

Mulch fuchsias instead of cultivating, if possible, since feeding roots are near surface.

Divide mum plants now; feed and keep watered.

Plant magnolias now. Roots are active, and you'll have the most success in transplanting.

Prune fruit trees now. Remove as little as possible from small trees.

Plant some of the new varieties of peaches available from your local nursery as Daily News 1-, 2-, 3-, and/or 4-Star. These new peaches combine abundant floral display in early spring with delicious fruit.

CENTRAL AND EAST

Trim hedges to shape before growth starts. Straighten any fall-planted evergreens that are slanting due to uneven winter settling of earth.

Remove mulches from perennials as soon as new shoots start to show. If you mulched with leaves, manure, or old straw, spade in as much as possible.

Sow annual poppies as soon as the ground can be worked. Pansies must be planted early. They grow best in cool weather. Tuberous begonias can be potted now. Pot and start to force geraniums stored dry in cellar over winter. Fertilize your lawn when ground is frozen and clear of snow.

Control scale insects on such trees and shrubs as apples, pears, elms, lilacs, euonymus, and pachysandra with a dormant-strength spray. Follow manufacturer's directions carefully. Temperature should be 45 degrees or above, and the spray should be applied the fore part of the day. Cover all evergreens, including broadleaf kinds, before using oil spray on nearby plants, or wet the evergreens with the hose before and after spraying. Spray does drift.

Spray peonies with Bordeaux or other available copper spray material when the sprouts are about six inches tall. Give this early protection also to other perennials that often get disease, such as phlox and delphiniums. Repeat sprays at 10-day intervals till buds show.

Start indoors such vegetables as broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, and head lettuce; set out next month.

SOUTH

Weed now. It'll save you hours of work this summer. Th is the time to feed your entire garden, too.

And this is the last safe time until fall to plant perennia vines, roses, shrubs, and trees.

Sow hardy kinds in the north; both hardy and tender the south.

Mow ryegrass regularly. It should never become t enough to shade the summer grasses.

When danger of frost has passed, set out bedding plan Plant coleus, ferns, geraniums, petunias, sansevierias, thu bergia, and Wandering Jew in boxes, urns, or in the soil.

Except in Lower South, prune bush roses in March—ea March in Middle South, late March in Upper South. Pru back to 10 inches. Use an all-purpose spray or dust week Plant southern magnolia, Magnolia grandiflora. Give plenty water the first season. There's still time to transplant tr and shrubs in Middle and Upper South.

TEXAS-SOUTHWEST

Resod barren and thin spots in the lawn.

Start your spray or dust program immediately. Insects abundant in March.

Prune roses; remove old canes from climbers to help c trol mildew. Feed and spray.

Seeds of everything overlooked in February can be so

Fertilize and spray fruit trees. Prune off deadwood.

Plant zinnias, marigolds, and other tender annuals a the middle of the month.

Native hollies can be moved safely this month.

Set out seedlings of alyssum, coreopsis, petunias, verbe and similar flowers started indoors as soon as danger of frost is past in your area.

Evergreen shrubs may be sheared lightly now to m them more dense. New growth covers cuts quickly.

Sun! Air! Moisture! Food! These are the things all growing things require. And the one most often lacking is plant food!

How good to know that new process Vigoro makes even common sand as fertile as finest golf course soil. For Vigoro is complete, balanced plant food. It supplies all the vital food elements every grass plant, flower, vegetable, tree and shrub must have for proper growth and development. Apply new process Vigoro now and regularly. See what a difference it makes.

HOW TO APPLY:

If lawn is dormant: Apply any time at the rate of 3 lbs. per 100 square feet.

If lawn is green and growing: Be sure grass is dry. Then apply at same rate and wet down thoroughly. (In making new lawns, apply at same rate before seeding. If grass is already seeded, wait until new grass has been mowed twice.)

*There is only one VIGORO . . the trade-mark for Swift & Company's complete, balanced plant food.

FERRY'S ZINNIAS

Monarchs of the Summer Garden and first in the hearts of America's Gardeners!

Giant Dahlia Flowered Zinnia, CRIMSON MONARCH, our own improved strain. Available in 10 other pure-lined colors. Also in glorious mixture. Long, sturdy-stemmed plants, 30" high, flowers between 4" and 5" diameter.

Be it the massive-blooming "Crimson Monarch" pictured above or the exquisite gem-like "Cupid Tiny Tim"—the Zinnia, in its almost bewildering range of sizes, colors and forms, is America's most widely grown flower. And, naturally, ranking first in this preference are Ferry's Zinnias—because they exemplify the results of our long established program of plant hybridization, seed breeding and true-strain development. Whether you prefer giants, pompons, mexicans, or gaillardia flowered, your best assurance for better Zinnias is to select Ferry's Zinnias in separate colors or our formula blended mixtures.

Seeds are the least expensive part of gardening. And the most successful gardeners select seeds that are known to give the best results. So play safe—select Ferry's Seeds at your favorite store. No other grower-distributor approaches Ferry-Morse in volume of flower and vegetable seeds sold to home gardeners—or in acreage devoted to their testing and growing. And no other grower-distributor enables you to select just the seeds you want when you want them in over 100,000 retail outlets. So for a better garden . . . buy Ferry's Seeds!

Allowances

gether and make a list of all the things the child buys or that the parent is in the habit of buying for him. All children won't want or require the same things, and different communities present different needs for money. The entire purpose of an allowance is defeated unless it is large enough to cover the child's more or less fixed expenses plus a small amount to do with as he pleases.

Parents who continually buy extras for a child, or help out because the child forgot to budget for expenditures not made regularly (such as a yearly bicycle license or a season ticket for the swimming pool), may be gratifying their own egos by being generous, but they are not helping their child learn to manage money.

Parents can help children to stretch their allowances. It was not until one mother and father discovered that their own birthdays plus Mother's Day and Father's Day, all falling within one six-week period, had bankrupted their youngsters that they learned what a terrible strain gifts were on their children. Now they encourage and help the children to make gifts instead of buying them.

As an incentive to saving, some parents double all money a small child agrees to put in his bank. Money thus saved should be earmarked for some purpose—a trip to camp, a new bicycle, clothing, or hobby equipment.

The idea of saving for saving's sake has scant appeal for a young child, and dropping pennies into a bank and then having the amount saved transposed into figures in a little book gives him no pleasure as well as little training in the real purpose of saving.

Children within the same family are seldom alike, and it is not unusual for their unlikeness to be shown in the way they handle money. "Whenever there is an emergency and we need money in a hurry, we turn to Linda," one father says. "Yet John, who is three years older, is broke the day after he receives his allowance."

Experience may not be the best teacher, but it is still a good one. The boy who, on his first trip downtown, took his week's allowance and bought—and ate—a full pound of dimestore fig bars, learned a lesson more quickly, if uncomfortably, than from a month of parental lecturing.

Youngsters who have seen their parents plan, save, and budget for a family vacation, new furniture, or a new car, cannot help but learn from the example that is set them.

You must never lose sight of the real reason for giving your children an allowance, and search diligently for the best method of administering it. The boy or girl who learns to spend wisely and to save intelligently—whether for pleasure or a future obligation—cannot help but be a happier and a more self-reliant adult.

March 2 Here it was nearly down to zero this morning and there was that one crocus bloom by the front of the house, all sadly withered, amid the light snow of last night.

At night I was off with Maggie to a neighboring town to talk to a gathering of several garden clubs. With the bitter cold and the howling winds, the auditorium where the meeting was held could not be heated up. All the men and women kept on their heavy coats. So when I was introduced to speak, I kept my overcoat on, too.

After I talked a bit, I walked back to the projector, which I ran myself, to show some color slides of newer varieties of flowers. This was nearer the door and colder yet. But I shivered and showed the slides.

Maggie told me that as soon as the lights were turned down, quite a lot of the audience had got up and gone home. I don't blame them. It would have been a great blessing if we could have slipped out with them.

March 3 Once again duty called, and instead of sitting by our own fireside, I had to bundle up and go out in the cold to a local garden meeting. I was not the speaker at all, but I really needed to be there in connection with some business to be brought up. Why, oh why, do all the garden clubs pick early March for their important meetings? Why not May?

March 4 Sunny day, things beginning to get warmer outside. I worked up a bit of garden fever. But duties at my desk kept me right at the jolly old job. David saved the day. He carried out the ashes.

Maggie made an oration about the trash on the lawn. She vowed she would get out and pick it up herself. But just between us, when night came, she hadn't actually made a move in that direction. She was just trying to bluff David and me into doing it.

March 5 Now is the hour, and the day is at hand. Bright was the sun and warmer grew the day, until toward afternoon the thermometer stood at 60. The crocuses at the south of the house began to pop open, until there was a yellow line clear across the front.

So I went out and began to hunt for my pruning tools. I found my good pruning shears that had been lost for more than a year. I found the light lopping shears where they should be. But I couldn't find the heavy lopping shears, which I needed most. I paced back and forth about three times between the little tool shed and the garage. At last I found them under some burlap in the shed.

Then, triple-armed, I tackled the big Amur maple hedge at the back that needs a heavy pruning every spring to keep it from growing into small trees. This time I want to do an extra-good job. It has grown too high, so I want to thin out part of the top to get it back shorter. I'll take two years to do this, so it won't get too much of a setback at one time. There's a good bit of deadwood, too, on the inside of the hedge, and this needs to be cleared out, cut down to live wood or clear to the ground.

So it's a bigger job than usual. I worked away at it, sorta leisurely like, and enjoyed it. In an hour or so, I was not more than a fourth done. By this time, I was beginning to sweat. Maggie's summons to eat was right welcome. But I'm off and away to another year.

The day grew warmer, and the crocuses began to open, until there was a yellow line clear across the front between their calls, I could hear the tweet, tweet of the titmice. I listened a bit, roused up, then out and down to rouse up the furnace. Then to the kitchen where I had coffee and bacon going before even Maggie got there.

March 7 Out once again on a pleasant evening and in considerable mud, to work further at pruning. I finished one side of that back hedge, but when I started in on the east side, the glory of a setting sun was right in my eyes. So I went over to the viburnum hedge between the west rose bed and the strawberry patch and worked away.

In due time came to an elm seedling that has grown up alongside the hedge. My, how that thing has grown! I had whacked if off once. I should have grubbed it out by the roots. Tonight I did the same thing over again. Hunted up the ax. Sharpened it with a file. Whacked with free-swinging blows that wellnigh pulled my arms out of the sockets. Vigorous work for a chap, so early in the season. But yet, a needful and timely chore.

March 8 Wind blew, snow swirled, thermometer dropped, and all the outdoors shivered. Tonight was the annual open meeting of our men's rose club, with a big program and public invited free. I never expected anybody to show up. But, believe it or not, nearly 200 people braved the blizzard and came to listen to discussions on how to plant, prune, feed, spray, dust, mulch, and cover. An important point brought out was that a coarsely ground corncob mulch is the best for a rose bed in these parts.

March 9 Downtown this afternoon at a hotel in the midst of a business meeting. Toward 2:30 my conscience began to hurt. Here it is, stark winter. And I had put out the last sunflower seed for the birds last evening. I could just see the little critters sitting and shivering on the twigs of the trees and bushes, shaking their heads, their stomachs empty.

So I slipped out of that meeting, stopped at the seed store, bought more sunflower seeds, and was home by three. I rushed out seeds,

March 28 Now is the hour, again, as at long last the weather is sedate enough. For two days past, the weatherman has just taken his whole water bucket and tipped it over on us. So out I hiked. Got out the two-pronged, forged weeding hoe and began that annual chore of pulling away the soil that we had heaped around the roses last fall.

Now to reveal a secret—this was never finished, and about a fourth of our roses never were covered. But those not covered are just as alive as those which were. Which adds weight to the argument of some of the local rose brethren that it wasn't necessary at all to cover roses in these Midwestern parts, if they were growing in a thrifty manner last fall.

March 29 At long last and way too late, stopped at the seed store for the supply of seeds I get locally. My varieties of vegetables include disease-resistant sorts and such as are recommended for freezing.

Tonight, went to "family night" in parlor at our church. Everybody comes, and families bring potluck suppers. I spent the whole time answering questions. Why doesn't my French lilac bloom? It will, one of these years. Is this the right time to sow grass seed? It is.

If only I had set up a booth and charged a fee—50 cents for flower questions and 37 cents for vegetables—I'll bet I could have earned $73.37 for the church treasury, with no extra labor on my part.

March 30 Bright, warm day and had to be off on business trip until pretty late. Home, rushed to the bathroom to see how much new tile had been put on. Alas, the room is still gaunt and bare. The men didn't come.

Then out to work more at uncovering roses. Couldn't find my hoe. Wonder where I threw it when I dashed in to the phone the other night. Well, I hunted up an old one, went to work, and labored until supper.

March 31 This was the first real day of spring, and so we rallied round and began things in earnest.

As I was working at this uncovering, along came Donald. I gave the hoe to him, and I started in at pruning back the rosebushes. He worked and got this chore all finished up.

Meanwhile, I got all the roses set out. These are a few newer varieties I had ordered. Then I noticed that a few iris in the new bed had somewhat heaved out over winter. So got out my big trowel and reset them. Then, there stood Maggie on the path, to ask when was I ever coming in to supper.

That ended the month—entirely too soon. If the weather had only been better, I'd have in the early vegetable bed, with the spinach, leaf lettuce, radishes, peas, and a few hills of potatoes. I'd have some seeds sown too, mebbe, of larkspur and sweetpeas and petunias and annual poppies and so on. Can't be helped, though.

Considering a Power Lawn Mower?

Let's say that for many good reasons you have decided you'd like to save time and conserve energy with a power lawn mower.

Look what you get in a Pennsylvania:

3 Fundamentals of Pennsylvania Power Mowers are 1 • grass-cutting ability, 2 • long life and efficiency, 3 • ease of servicing.

Grass-Cutting Ability. Pennsylvania mowers today are cutting grass smoothly after 20—30—50 years' service. Full-tempered, double-ground blades stay sharp. Cutting cylinder mounted on lifetime ball bearings.

Efficiency—Long Life. Even youngsters like Pennsylvania's easy operation. Powerful Briggs & Stratton engine. Fingertip control of throttle and clutch. Professional gardeners, who pack 10 years of home owner use into one—prefer Pennsylvania Mowers.

Ease of Servicing. Sharpening, adjustment, lubrication of Pennsylvania Power Mowers completed in fraction of time required for most power mowers.

Quality Dealers Like Pennsylvania. Your better neighborhood dealer would like to sell you a Pennsylvania because he knows you'll be satisfied. He knows, too, that Pennsylvania mowers are made intentionally better.

"Advice to a Man About to Buy a Lawn Mower" and "How To Grow a Beautiful Lawn" are the names of two informative folders which we will be glad to send you on request.

BUILDS MANY MASS. HOMES, PICKS DELCO-HEAT BURNER AS BEST FOR OWN HOME

"I have used Delco-Heat units in many homes that I have built during the last four years," writes Leonard Forish of Westfield, Mass. "The complete customer satisfaction and dependable, economical operation of Delco-Heat units have convinced me that they're the best. When I built my own home I chose a Delco-Heat Oil Burner."

Dependable, economical operation is what you'll find in all Delco-Heat units. The reason for this is the careful General Motors' engineering and manufacturing—plus the expert installation that Delco-Heat specialists give you. Kneil Coal Co., Westfield, installed Mr. Forish's unit.

What's wrong with this family?

What's right. It's good for Billy to have his dad cheering for him. Usually Billy goes off by himself with the gang to play, because he's "big enough" now and doesn't need Dad around to supervise. But in a crucial game like this, it makes him feel a little more important and confident to know that his dad is there rooting for him.

What's wrong. It's too bad Dad didn't just stick to rooting. Instead, he scored two errors by (1) signaling Billy to steal home, and (2) getting into the argument after Billy was called out by the umpire. His mistakes both add up to one thing: He is keeping Billy from learning how to stand on his own feet and hold his own with the other kids. It isn't so important whether Billy wins or loses as it is to let him learn how to take responsibility for his own actions and face up to the consequences.

All youngsters, at the age of 9, are in an endless tug-of-war between staying little and growing up. They are eager, now, to be part of a gang, to be treated like an adult, not to be babied or have the other kids think they are "sissies." But just as much, they want to know that you are still there and that they can always turn to you when the going is rough.

Every dad is a hero to his child of 9. It's a wise father, however, who can use his hero-role to help his youngster discover and develop confidence in his own abilities, instead of handing down decisions to him from above.

Your youngster has already learned to turn to you for help in deciding what to do. When he gets to be 9 or so, he needs to find his place with youngsters of his age and be guided as much by what they think as what you think. To lead without being "bossy," to play by the rules of the game, to take turns, to lose gracefully as well as to win—these things he learns from the gang. Nothing worse could happen to him at this age than to find himself an "outsider."

You can succeed where Billy's father failed—by giving your child the courage to settle his own troubles, letting him know that you do not expect him to always win, and that you love and stand behind him whatever happens.

Springtime is Spray Time

DIRECTIONS IN PACKAGE

Start early to spray regularly with reliable, dependable Black Leaf 40. It's economical . . . one teaspoonful makes two quarts of spray which quickly kills (by contact and by fumes) aphids, leafhoppers, most thrips and other soft-bodied sucking insects that attack flowers, vegetables, fruits and shrubs. Insects controlled by this method do not develop resistant strains.

Black Leaf 40 is selective . . . does not destroy friendly insects that attack your insect enemies. It also spares bees—the pollenizers. Black Leaf 40 provides clean protection—never stains or burns and leaves no unsightly or objectional residue on flowers, foliage or fruit. And it repels dogs—keeping them away from ornamental plants when used as directed.

Other famous Black Leaf® pest control products

Black Leaf Rotenone Dust is a blend of 1% rotenone and 10% sulphur on a special carrier material with superior dusting qualities. Controls bean beetles, webworms, asparagus beetles, potato beetles, cabbage worms, cucumber beetles, squash vine borers, and similar chewing insects infesting vegetables, flowers and fruits. Also controls fleas and lice on domestic animals.

Black Leaf Garden Dust is a combination insecticide and fungicide which may be used as a dust or spray. It combines the advantages of nicotine, pyrethrum and rotenone for control of chewing and sucking insects—plus a concentrated fungicide for protection against fungus diseases of flowers, fruits and vegetables.

Rid Your Home of Insects

Use Black Leaf Aerosol Insect Killer! Just press the button and the handy dispenser does the rest. It ejects a cloud of aerosol fog which quickly knocks down and kills flies, mosquitoes, roaches, ants, bed bugs, moths and silver fish. Leaves no unpleasant odor and is harmless to humans and pets when used as directed.

Black Leaf products are sold at drug, hardware and garden supply stores everywhere

By building a light ornamental trellis that looks like a fence, you can dress up your own or your neighbor's unbeautiful garage enough to do away with background planting. John Staley designed this trellis, painted it a woodsy brown and silvery gray after rotproofing wood with preservative that does not stain paint or endanger plant roots

Build a seat of many uses

Baer

Place a seat like this under either a young tree or a gnarled veteran of many storms, and the whole family will use it. It's a plant or workbench if you need one, or a table for the very young. Recessed base saves banging your heels. Stone edging saves wearing grass. This eight-sided model needs only short boards. Herman garden in Carmel

CYCLONE FENCE
makes the difference
by protecting your children!

● You enjoy real peace of mind when a Cyclone Chain Link Fence has been installed . . . because it converts your yard into a protected playground where your children can play with safety.

They are prevented from dashing thoughtlessly into the path of passing traffic. They are safe from stray animals that may be vicious. And their natural impulse to wander away is curbed.

Important, too, is the way a Cyclone Fence protects your pets, lawn, flowers and shrubbery. To find out the many advantages of choosing "Cyclone"—send for our free book.

Cyclone is the trade-mark name of fence made only by Cyclone Fence Division. Accept no substitute.

NO JOB IS TOO LARGE—
NO JOB IS TOO SMALL FOR CYCLONE

FREE 32-Page Book on Fence—This book will help you choose the right fence for your home. Chock-full of pictures, showing many types. Whether you need a few feet of fence or miles of it, you'll find this book helpful. Send for your free copy today.

EXPERTS KNOW THE

SECRET of FINE ROSES

So do more and more gardeners. And so can you! For the big secret really is a well-known scientific principle:

Rose bushes must be well fed and they must be constantly protected against insects and blights.

Tri-Ogen Rose Spray, Dust and Food are used in more fine rose gardens than any other group of Rose "Grow-ers." They help guarantee you the big fine full-color blooms you want all season.

TRI-OGEN

World's Largest-Selling Group of ROSE "GROW-ers"

TRI-OGEN 3-WAY ROSE SPRAY

Experts say this is finest spray ever developed. A combination insecticide, fungicide and plant stimulant. Protects against both chewing and sucking insects; mildew and black spot. Stimulates luxuriant growth. Now contains E. I. duPont's Fermate! Famous easy-to-use Tri-Ogen "Kits." "E" trial size (enough for 10 bushes) only $1.35. Other kits $2.25, $6, $9, $30. Also suited to perennials, annuals and vegetables.

TRI-OGEN 3-WAY ROSE DUST

Here is world-renown balanced Tri-Ogen, ready prepared for those who prefer to dust. Scientifically balanced formula of Fermate, rotenone, DDT, sulphur and other valuable compounds. A complete insecticide, fungicide and plant stimulant—ready to use. Keeps plants healthy and blooming. 1-lb. tin 85¢; 5-lb. tin $3.50. Also 25-lb. and 50-lb. drums. Appreciated by gardeners who "save time."

TRI-OGEN 3-WAY ROSE FOOD

Introduced only four seasons ago, Tri-Ogen Food met instant success. Makes rose bushes root better, keep healthier and bloom like magic! An easily assimilated yet long-lasting food, especially balanced for roses. 5-lb. bag $1.00. Also 10-lb. bag $1.60; 25-lb. $3.00; 100-lb. $8.50.

WHAT THE EXPERTS SAY:

"Tri-Ogen is the No. 1 prerequisite of every rose garden."—C. EUGENE PFISTER, Vice-President, American Rose Society. "Tri-Ogen will reward you with the biggest finest roses you have ever grown."—J. V. STAUFFER, Executive Director, International Friendship Gardens. "Tri-Ogen is the best ever. It is a joy not to have roses eaten up . . . not to have leaves drop off."—MRS. CLIFFORD B. SMITH, Lecturer and Consultant, Kansas City Rose Gardens.

At Your Dealers or Direct—Because it's the biggest seller, you can get Tri-Ogen at good stores everywhere. Or order direct—postpaid. Also write for "Expert Secrets of Beautiful Roses" folder. Free. Send today. Rose Mfg. Co., 111-31 Ogen Bldg., Beacon, N. Y.

How to find more space on your lot

Increase play space with a tree house

de Gennaro

Children need a spot of their own? But you want to keep them in sight. The answer is a tree house. This one at the side of the Shirley Parker garden is large enough for parties and sleeping out, but proves that such a structure can be both good-looking and stoutly built. Wood of railings is painted to reduce danger from splinters and back that doors are almost impossible to open or shut.

8. Garage window is in wrong wall. The inside of a garage is never beautiful, so why have it visible from the porch? Window near the rear in the side wall would serve the same purpose.

9. Door from porch to yard would be better placed as close to the garage on the side wall as possible. Reason: traffic lane through the porch will be shorter and a better chair-grouping possible.

10. There is no rear door out of the kitchen. This means carrying garbage, trash, and wet laundry across the porch.

11. A window in the north wall of the kitchen would cost no more than the piece of wall it replaced, could serve as a pass-through to the porch, and would let more light into the kitchen.

12. Since the prevailing breeze in summer comes from either the southwest or southeast in most of the country, the porch is not well located. It will get little breeze, and suffer the heat and glare of the late-afternoon sun all summer. To put the porch in the proper place would mean redesigning the house.

13. Toilet and linen closet should be reversed, since toilet projects as far from the wall as the tub, while the linen closet can be broad and shallow.

14. If you live south of the Mason-Dixon line, you're forgiven for missing this one. Orientation of the garage in northern climates will mean having to shovel through drifts to get out of the garage or through the front door.

15. There is no broom closet nor space to store a vacuum cleaner.

16. Because the front wall of the house is straight, the exterior will be extremely uninteresting. A jog in a wall may cost a little, but it is worth the expense in looks.

Complications

When bringing up the second child,
Our plans were well rehearsed,
We wisely used the knowledge gained
In bringing up the first.

To all the problems that arose
Our answers were the true ones,
And would have worked if she had not
Presented lots of new ones.

The right grass

is Merion, which will stand close mowing, stays green longer, and grows in a wider range than ordinary bluegrass. Limited quantities are expected to be ready to market this year.

Kentucky bluegrass, most widely planted grass where soil is good and moisture is sufficient, produces excellent lawn turf. It grows in sun or light shade. Its range includes irrigated sections of the Dakotas, Idaho, Montana, Utah, and California.

A slow-growing perennial, bluegrass is widely used as the base of mixtures, with quick-growing "nurse" grasses added.

Bentgrasses. Better adapted to light or acid soils than bluegrass, bent strains make a thickly matted turf but require more care than other lawn grasses.

Disease-resistant Colonial bent is good in intermediate locations and soils with a mixture of bluegrass, needs fewer mowings, topdressings than other bent strains. Astoria and Highland are outstanding strains.

Redtop, one of the bent family, has a creeping habit of growth, makes a coarse, loose turf, grows under great variety of conditions. A vigorous grower, it is used as a "nurse" crop, is not recommended for lawns by itself.

Fescues. Strains of Creeping Red fescue make good lawns on sandy, gravelly soils, will stand more shade than other kinds. Chewing's, Illahee, and Oregon strains adapt widely to soil types, are drouth-resistant. Fescues with Colonial bents make a good lawn.

Bermuda. Adapted to clay, loam soils of South, Bermuda does best in full sun, won't stay green all winter. U-3 strain stays green longer, is fine-bladed and vigorous. Bermuda spreads rapidly, can be a pest close to flower beds.

Carpet grass. Grown in sandy soils where moisture is near the surface, it largely replaces Bermuda on sandy soils of South. Carpet grass does best in acid range.

St. Augustine. Thrives in tropical areas where climate is mild, humidity high. St. Augustine has a creeping root stock, stays green practically all year.

Zoysias. Matrella and Japonica strains are widely used south of Washington, D. C. These grasses produce tough, close sod that does not require frequent mowing. Grass doesn't green up early but holds color in sun or shade. Zoysias are established by planting of sprigs.

Ryegrasses. Perennial rye is a tufted, short-lived perennial with high germination of seeds. Italian ryegrass is also a quick turf producer. Ryegrass makes a hard-to-mow lawn, is adapted only as a "nurse" in mixtures when used in small quantities.

It's Wonderful...

what a down-to-earth pleasure it is to cut grass the Excello power mower way. No more endless hours cutting through lush growth in early Spring! No more pushing, straining, sweating under a broiling Summer sun! Just guide your Excello over your lawn . . . quickly, easily . . . regardless of season.

Lawns cut with Excello look better, too, because Excello effortless mowing means grass cut at the right time and height for improved lawn health. So, to "get things done" and for a carpet-like lawn, choose Excello . . . backed by years of experience in making fine mowers at popular prices. Full information concerning Excello reel and rotary power mowers, hand mowers and lawn sweeps sent on request.

thrives over most of the United States where soil is acid. It may be planted in both inland and coastal districts in California where extra moisture can be supplied in summer.

Willow oak, Quercus phellos, develops into a large, handsome tree, useful throughout the South.

Rapid-growing, it is easy to move, has a dense, oval or round-topped crown and slender branches with light green, willowlike leaves. Although willow oak grows best in moist, well-drained soils, it does well in drier places. It is moderately storm-resistant, relatively pest-free.

Norway maple, Acer platanoides, with ornamental, green-yellow spring flowers, dense, green summer foliage, and golden-yellow fall color, is a handsome tree which tolerates city gas and smoke better than other maples. Relatively fast-growing, it is easily transplanted.

Norway maple grows over the United States, extensively south from Central New England and New York. It is a favorite street tree in Rocky Mountain area cities where irrigation and fertilization are possible and space is ample for root development. Moderately tolerant of alkaline soils, also is satisfactory for lawns and streets in the interior and mountain valleys of California.

It is difficult to maintain a lawn in the dense shade beneath Norway maple. Other factors to consider are the need for pruning when planted on streets and the inclination of roots to raise sidewalks.

Forests of sugar maple, Acer saccharum, [Turn to next page

Big trees—sooner than you think

described as our most beautiful native shade tree, show an average increase in height of better than 2 feet a year. Adapted to suburbs, sugar maple needs pure air to survive, space to develop its magnificent, oval head. It is readily transplanted.

When grown in the open for shade, it has a short trunk with stout, ascending branches. Leaves are thin, bright, rich green in summer, become brilliant yellow, orange, and scarlet in autumn. The dense shade discourages a lawn.

Fast-growing American linden, Tilia Americana, or basswood, ranges over the United States where moist soil is available, transplants easily. Silver linden, a shapely tree hardy from western Massachusetts and central New York southward, withstands heat and drouth, may be grown successfully along the seacoast. Small-leaved European linden is satisfactory for suburban areas.

Preference of lindens for wet soil and their attraction for insects limit their value, however. Lindens also are susceptible to disease, although usually none is serious.

ca and protection counts

Dig hole wider and deeper than the tree root system

Use guy wires to support your newly planted trees

Before you plant a tree. Don't be hasty and lean hard on your common sense. Get your possible tree sites on paper before digging any holes. Show buildings, roads, drives, walk, shrubs, flower beds in scale. Plot areas trees will need when mature.

A nearby park will yield plenty of information on trunk size and crown area of grown trees. Remember to plant far enough away from fixed objects so you eliminate costly moving or much pruning when trees are big. Plant tall-growing deciduous trees no closer than 60 feet.

Think twice before planting close to property lines. Overhead utility wires have the right of way, and may mean ugly butchering of your tree eventually. Branches of nature trees might bother your neighbor, and a trunk over the line might lead to a court battle.

Until they are 15 to 20 feet high, trees that shed their leaves in fall can be moved easily with bare roots during the dormant season. Don't expose naked roots to direct sun however. Dig your holes and prepare the soil before you bring in trees to plant.

Move trees with a trunk diameter of 6 inches with a ball of earth 8 to 10 times the diameter of the trunk. Sugar maple and willow oak should always be moved with a ball of earth.

Once you have narrowed your choice to one or more trees get the advice of a nurseryman who knows kinds that will grow in your area. Follow his suggestions on selection, planting, and care.

It is best to discard any ideas you have about finding a nice tree in some nearby woods. As a rule, nursery trees are far superior to uncultivated specimens.

A tree of good size for planting is 2 to 3 inches in diameter at the base. Here are typical prices quoted for trees 2½ to 3 inches in diameter, in lots of one to four:

Thornless honey locust, $15; northern red oak, $20; pin oak $22.50; willow oak, $25; Norway maple, $18; sugar maple, $20; and American linden, $15.

Prices will vary slightly in different localities, and may include the cost of packing materials and [Turn to next page shipping charges. While smaller-sized seedlings can be bought for less, consider the tree you buy an investment rather than an expense. If you splurge a little and plant one 3 or 4 inches in diameter, it will pay you early dividends in shade.

Mature specimens can be transplanted safely, but costs run into hundreds of dollars.

Most small shade trees may be moved in early spring before leaves emerge or in early fall after leaf growth has ceased. Early spring, however, is probably the best time to transplant trees, big or small, where the ground freezes to a considerable depth.

Planting hints. If you buy a tree 4 inches or more in diameter, you'll probably get better results if you let the nurseryman plant it—and prune it. If you do it yourself, dig the hole at least a foot wider and 6 inches or so deeper than the root system.

Place well-rotted manure or fertilizer in the bottom of the hole and backfill with about 6 inches of soil before setting the tree. Add a bucket or two of water after inserting the tree and covering the roots with soil. Use good, fertile loam for backfill.

Newly planted trees up to 3 inches in diameter need support. A single stake, long enough to reach up into the lower part of the crown after being driven down to solid soil about a foot from the base of the tree, will do. Fasten the tree to the stake with wire run through a piece of old garden hose to prevent cutting of the bark.

Trees more than 3 inches in diameter should be guyed down with wires. (See sketch, page 295.)

It's a good idea to mulch a circle over the root area of a newly planted tree with a 2 to 3 inch layer of peatmoss, leaves, straw, or hay. This reduces evaporation, prevents early freezing.

Thin bark trees—maples, lindens, and pin oaks—should have their trunks protected with burlap or tough paper for at least two years to prevent sunscald of the bark.

Water is most important to a new tree, and the soil should be kept moist at all times, and well saturated occasionally. Avoid waterlogging, however.

Beauty and health of the trees you plant depend greatly on the care you give them. Advice on spraying, feeding, watering, and pruning can be obtained from your county agent, state experiment station, or any local nurseryman. It pays to use it.

Choosing trees with care for their good qualities and to fit your location is a wise move. Real-estate men recognize trees as a big factor in home sales.

But perhaps your greatest satisfaction will come with the realization that the setting you have created has changed your house to a home with individuality.
